And in Britain Too You Say . . .a Pity

LONDON (AP) — The traditional roast beef dinners of Olde England are being replaced by convenience foods and this nation of tea drinkers is switching to coffee.

These are some of the findings of a government report published today by the Central Statistical Office, surveying 40 years of British eating habits.

The British are consuming 16 per cent less beef, less bread and butter and fewer potatoes, the report said.

There has been a five-fold increase in the amount of chicken being eaten, along with more pork, eggs, milk, cheese and rice. Frozen foods are steadily replacing fresh foods.

People are drinking 12 per cent less tea and 500 per cent more coffee than before the Second World War.

The British love of beer remains about the same — 125 litres per head each year — while hard liquor and wine consumption has trebled over the past four decades.

The average British family spends $30.30 (U.S.) a week on food, or 19 per cent of household expenditures.

CABBIE ROBBED

Three persons are being held by Colwood RCMP while they investigate an early morning robbery in which a taxi driver was thrown over a bank at Colwood.

Police said the driver, who they won't identify at this time, picked up a man and two women between 1:30 and 2:30 a.m. in downtown Victoria and drove them to Colwood where he was assaulted, robbed and pushed down a bank.

The trio fled on foot.

No charges had been laid by mid-morning.

TANKER WASHES ASHORE

U.K.'s Beaches Drenched in Oil As Winds Shift

Times News Services

The oil drifted onto eight kilometres of coast between the villages of Corton and Hopton-on-Sea.

The 18,879-ton tanker Eleni V was cut in two Saturday when it collided with the French ore carrier Roseline in a North Sea fog six miles off the English coast. No crew member of either vessel was injured.

The tanker's stern section, containing most of its 5.7 million-gallon cargo, was being towed to Rotterdam, the Netherlands. The bow, beached four miles from the fishing port of Great Yarmouth, has leaked an estimated 294,000 gallons of oil.

An overnight wind shift began washing oil ashore before tugs could approach to train a detergent spray on it, but the tugs today were spraying the oil still at sea. A giant mechanical shovel was building a sand rampart at Corton to keep additional oil off the beach.

A department of trade official said divers would check the hull of the Eleni V's bow section to see if the oil left aboard could be pumped into another tanker.

The spill came less than two months after the supertanker Amoco Cadiz ran aground off northwest France, broke up and spread 64.7 million gallons of oil on the Brittany beaches in the world's worst oil spill.

Meanwhile, in Geneva after slogging through a month of meetings, Canadian negotiators are becoming pessimistic about the adoption of adequate measures to prevent pollution of the world's oceans.

They are extremely frustrated at their difficulties in getting through not only to some of the lesser-developed countries which are suspicious about the motives of the big maritime powers, but at the stiff attitude of many of those major powers themselves.

Earlier enthusiasm for a tougher regime flowed with the oil spilling from the supertanker Amoco Cadiz which went aground off the Britanny coast in March. But this enthusiasm seems to have faded as special interests float to the surface.

Among the most prickly and adamant delegations are Britain, the U.S.S.R., Cuba and Greece. Norway and even France, chief victim of the Amoco Cadiz, have balked at new international anti-pollution standards proposed by the U.S. and Canada among others. The French made a proposal early in the conference but have been notably silent lately.

Some of these countries, France, Britain and Norway among them, have been quick to declare or to threaten unilateral action to pro-

Rafters Missing

SQUAMISH (CP) — A search was to resume today for two teen-aged girls missing since Friday when a rubber raft overturned on the Mamquam River about nine kilometres upriver from the this community 60 kilometres north of Vancouver. An RCMP spokesman said Sunday a male teen-ager who was also on the raft made it to shore and notified police.

Absenteeism Cut

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer said Saturday that about 1.5 million student days have been saved during the 1977-78 school year because of efforts by school staff in British Columbia to combat absenteeism.

Tourists Pitch In

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — Thousands of tourists made their own beds and hefted their own baggage again today as a hotel strike along Spain's southern sun coast went into its third day with workers accusing management of a lockout.

Lava Still Pours

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — Mount Etna, Europe's highest volcano, kept pouring lava from its main crater for the ninth day today. Experts said the burning lava was not threatening arable land or inhabited villages on the slopes of the volcano.

$79 Fare Wanted.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans International Airlines, the world's largest charter air carrier, asked the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board today for approval to offer a $79 scheduled air fare on 10 flights this summer between New York and Los Angeles.

Slayings Admitted

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz pleaded guilty today to all six "Son of Sam" killings that terrorized the city in a year-long murder rampage.

Questions On Noose Ruled Out

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Ron Basford Sunday rejected any suggestion that there should be a referendum on the subject of capital punishment in this country, as contrary to the Canadian parliamentary system.

"You elect people to office for their judgment, for their decision-making, and I'm not sure why capital punishment is in any different category than abortion or a whole list of subjects," he said on the CTV Question Period show.

He said that his omnibus bills containing amendments to the Criminal Code on pornography, rape, prostitution and various other aspects of crime covered in the code would go before a meeting of the attorneys general late in June or early July.

Stiff Land Rules Eyed In Saanich

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A comprehensive program for protecting recreation and conservation lands in Saanich, through purchase, tough development controls, financial incentives, public information and other measures, has been recommended by the municipality's Staff Environment Group.

On the basis of a study conducted last summer, which provided detailed information on about 400 parcels of land in rural Saanich, the group concludes that action is needed now if Saanich is to protect its natural heritage and ensure for present and future residents "a quality of life much higher than that offered in most of urban North America."

And the advisory group — which consists of planning and engineering department officials — warns that such a program will require not only diligence and commitment but the "systematic allotment of a relatively large amount of capital."

Among the specific recommendations in the report, which will be discussed by Saanich council's environment committee tonight, are:

— A long-term (10 to 25 years) program of land acquisition, which would employ a wide range of acquisition methods including leasing with options to buy, puchase and lease back to owner and purchase granting lifetime estate to the original owner.

— Development restrictions through zoning and subdivision regulations, including establishment of a minimum 20-acre lot size in several areas of the municipality.

— Creation of a new category of municipal park, entitled "conservation park" or "nature reserve," where public access could be restricted "during critical periods for vegetation or wildlife, or when an unacceptable level of environmental degradation occurs."

— A public information program, designed to encourage gifts of land or sale of easements to the municipality.

Claiming that the rewards will be worth the cost and effort involved, the Staff Environment Group adds: "The consequences of inaction would be irreversible, and the loss irreplaceable."

NEARLY $9M TAX MONEY BOOTED

TORONTO (CP) — Sloppy management by officials of Sport Canada and many amatueur sport and recreation associations cost taxpayers nearly $9 million over five years, according to the Globe and Mail.

A back audit of the fitness and amateur sport branch revealed that at least 50 amateur organizations owed the federal goverment agency about $8,830,000 for projects between 1972 and 1976 and the agency wrote off at least $8 million of the debt rather than force many groups into bankruptcy, the paper reports.

Benzene Hazard Charged

KITIMAT (CP) — The union representing workers at Alcan Smelters and Chemicals Ltd. is demanding the removal of a supervisor for "human experimentation" by exposing workers to what it says are unsafe concentrations of benzene.

In meetings with Alcan in February, the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers (CASAW) said the chemistry laboratory supervisor failed to monitor benzene levels and required an analyst with severe symptoms of benzene poisoning to continue working with the chemical.

Other workers, says a CASAW spokesman, have been exposed to long-term low-level concentrations of benzene, since identified as medically dangerous.

A recent United States government literature review conclusively linked benzene to leukemia, chromosome disorders and malignant blood diseases, forcing the adoption of an emergency temporary standard of one part per million (ppm). Benzene was banned last week as a consumer product in the U.S.

A Farewell From Moro

Times News Services

ROME — Police sealed off all roads into and out of Genoa today in their search for the Red Brigades kidnappers of Aldo Moro, who told his wife in a goodbye letter: "They are going to kill me shortly."

Police said 26 arrests made during the weekend brought them no closer to finding the former premier, kidnapped March 16 by the Brigades and sentenced to death "by a people's court" April 15.

Italy's largest newspaper reported today the Red Brigades gang has compiled two long lists of potential victims for their terrorist attacks, complete with photographs and addresses.

Milan's Corriere della Sera said a police raid April 18 on a Rome apartment used by the gang as the hideout for one of their masterminds had uncovered the two lists.

Meanwhile, terrorists shot and wounded a doctor in the legs in Milan today. The Red Brigades did not immediately claim responsibility for the attack on Dr. Diego Fava, 52, but it was the fourth such attack in five days and the Red Brigades claimed responsibility for the other three attacks.

U.S.$ Buoyed By OPEC

Times New Services

The United States dollar opened higher in Europe today, apparently buoyed by the oil cartel's decision to retain the dollar as its currency.

The price of gold opened lower in London at $171.95 U.S. an ounce, down from Friday's close of $172.95.

The 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a meeting in Saudi Arabia rejected Iraq's demand to shift from the dollar because of the decline of the U.S. currency.

Socreds See Victory in Morals Crusade

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wildly cheering Social Credit party members predicted Sunday their new leader, Lorne Reznowski, will set the country on fire preaching economic reform and Christian morals.

"On to victory, on to victory," party members shouted in French and English when it was announced he had defeated his only opponent, Martin Hattersley, by 356 to 115.

Lex Miller, an Alberta delegate who faces Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark in the next federal election in Yellowhead riding, said he was surprised but pleased with Reznowski's victory over Hattersley.

Like many of the delegates, Miller said he believes Reznowski is the man to strengthen party support beyond the borders of Quebec. The party's eight MPs all come from Quebec and none has been elected from outside the province since 1965.

"Reznowski is a good Christian man," said one elderly French-speaking woman with a Reznowski photograph pinned next to the cross on her dress. "We Quebecers can live with him."

The 49-year-old University of Manitoba English professor had campaigned largely on promising to rid the country of homosexuals, abortionists, euthanasia, sterilization and corrupt bankers.

The government of Prime Minister Trudeau was "slaughtering the innocents," spreading degeneracy and enslaving the public to high finance by allowing interest to be charged on loans, said the father of five.

"It's Social Credit or slavery."

Much of his campaign and victory speeches also criticized the news media for allegedly laughing at and spreading lies about the party.

About half of the delegates at the two-day convention came from Quebec and at the urging of the MPs, supported Reznowski, who has never been elected to public office. He ran in the Manitoba riding of Provencher in the 1968 federal election but placed last on a slate of four.

He will run in the Winnipeg riding of St. Boniface in the next election. Since 1968 the constituency has been represented by Revenue Minister Joe Guay, who has since been appointed to the Senate.

Former B.C. cabinet minister Phil Gaglardi bowed out of the leadership race when his supporters were unable to fulfil his request for a plane and $1 million to use campaigning.

Internship for New Teachers Voted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — British Columbia school trustees decided on the weekend they want moderate leadership, more lay control of education and a one-year internship for all new teachers.

They rejected radical change in their leadership Sunday in favor of moderation for achieving education goals in voting during the annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees Association (BCSTA).

The 344 trustees attending the four-day general meeting determined these main goals should be a one-year internship for all new teachers and reduction of school taxes.

To achieve this—and more than 40 other resolutions—they selected incumbent BCSTA vice-president Dave Kandal, from the Abbotsford school district, as their president.

The 48-year-old air line pilot won the two-year position with a 71-vote margin on the second ballot over Ruby-Mae Parrot of Saanich.

Kandal was elected after a speech that stressed this year's association theme of local control of education.

"It's all in the approach we take to change," said Kandal in an interview after his election. "It can be with fine sand paper or a rasp and I think the membership showed they do not want radical change."

Kandal said the rejection of Brian Westwood of Langley on the first ballot showed school trustees did not approve of a confrontation approach in dealing with educational concerns.

The school trustees narrowly defeated- by one vote- a motion that would have made public school teachers ineligible as candidates for school trustee.

Resolutions passed were:

—that the association protest any increase in the basic mill rate beyond the 37.5 mill rate set this year;

—that the provincial government reduce the basic mill rate during the next five years so that only 25 per cent of the funding for the basic education program is raised through local taxes;

—that the ministry of education be urged to grant learning assistant approvals at all grade levels. At present, they are not given beyond the Grade 10 level.

LAW BROKEN. . .PERHAPS

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean Jacques Blais says recent findings by a federal commission probing alleged illegal activities by the RCMP indicate the police force may have broken the law.

However, Blais said Saturday that there are still a number of questions to be answered before any conclusive verdict can be reached.

AMIN'S AGENTS BARRED BY U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Two of Idi Amin's Ugandan security men were refused entry to Britain when they arrived to escort home a Ugandan Air Lines official who feared for his life, the British government said Sunday.

The two Ugandans arrived at London's Stansted Airport last Wednesday but were questioned, refused entry and sent home on a flight the next day, a spokesman for the home ofice said.

"They didn't give a legitimate and believable reason for wanting to come into the country," the spokesman said.

The home office said Ugandan Air Lines' senior representative in Britain, Enoka Bainomugisha, had asked British authorities for help a few days earlier, saying he had been dismissed from his job and ordered to return home.

"He has been in touch with us because he felt his life was in danger," the spokesman said.

The newspaper Sunday Observer newspaper identified the two Ugandans sent home as Muhammud Hussein, chief of security at Uganda's Entebbe Airport, and Suleiman Fajar, "a security man in Kampala."

Extra Year for Inmate

A 22-year-old Nanaimo man today had a year added to his jail time for a hostage-taking incident Oct. 26 at Wilkinson Road jail.

Rodney George Berry, who pleaded guilty in county court, will serve the one-year term in addition to seven years he is serving in the B.C. Penitentiary for two counts of attempted murder.

Judge Leslie Cashman said he accepted a submission from defence lawyer Derek Brindle that Berry has learned his lesson, but added that the offence is serious and this must be understood by others.

Court was told Berry was influenced by two older inmates, who were not charged, to seize guard Paul Smith and hold him in a cell for five-and-a-half hours while the other two negotiated with authorities for demerol.

BATTLEFIELD IS RESTORED

BANGKOK (AP) — Vietnam is restoring the battlefield of Dien Bien Phu where Communist forces overwhelmed a French garrison 24 years ago, marking the end of French domination of Vietnam, the official Vietnam news agency said Sunday in a broadcast monitored in Bangkok.

It said plans call for restoring relics of the two-month battle, setting up a victory monument and building a museum, hotel and airfield.

RAPE GRANT BACKED

The James Bay Residents' League (JBRL) has joined the Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) in calling on the intermunicipal grants committee to provide about $16,000 in funding to the Victoria Rape Relief Centre.

"In our opinion the problem of rape should be a concern of all levels of government and anything that can be done to minimize the traumatic results of rape should be supported," JBRL information officer Charles Ball says in a letter to the committee.

The grants committee has already turned down the Rape Relief Centre once but is being asked, by both Victoria and Oak Bay councils, to look at the organization's grant submission a second time.

"By its failure to grant funding to the Rape Relief Centre," Ball wrote, "the intermunicipal grants committee is contributing to the disastrous consequences of rape."

Ball's letter, along with earlier supportive corespondence from SWAG, will be considered by the grants committee in a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

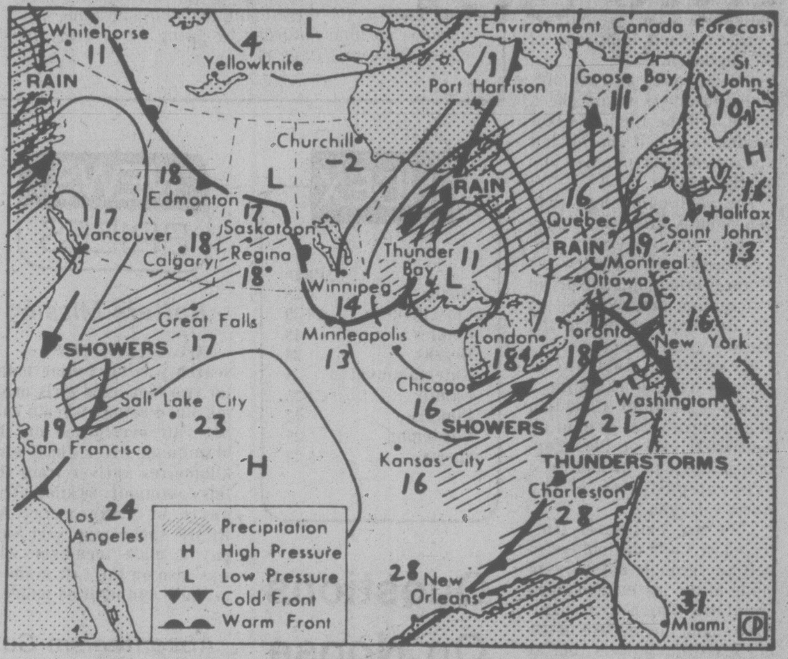

Map valid until noon Tuesday.

A front across B.C. this morning continued its eastward trek today and will move into Alberta overnight. Varying amounts of cloud — thickest on outer coasts — will accompany the front. Although building pressures west of this system will provide some clearing considerable low cloud and fog will persist along the coast. Tuesday will see a continuation of the drying trend over most of B.C.

Speeders Reprieved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Speeding and other traffic violation tickets are being thrown out of court at the rate of 20 a day while an appeal decision is awaited on a ruling that labelled ticket forms invalid.

Reg Munro, justice of the peace in charge of the provincial traffic court here, said all contested minor speeding, traffic light, stop sign and other moving traffic violations have been declared a nullity since the April 20 ruling by Judge C. J. Lewis.

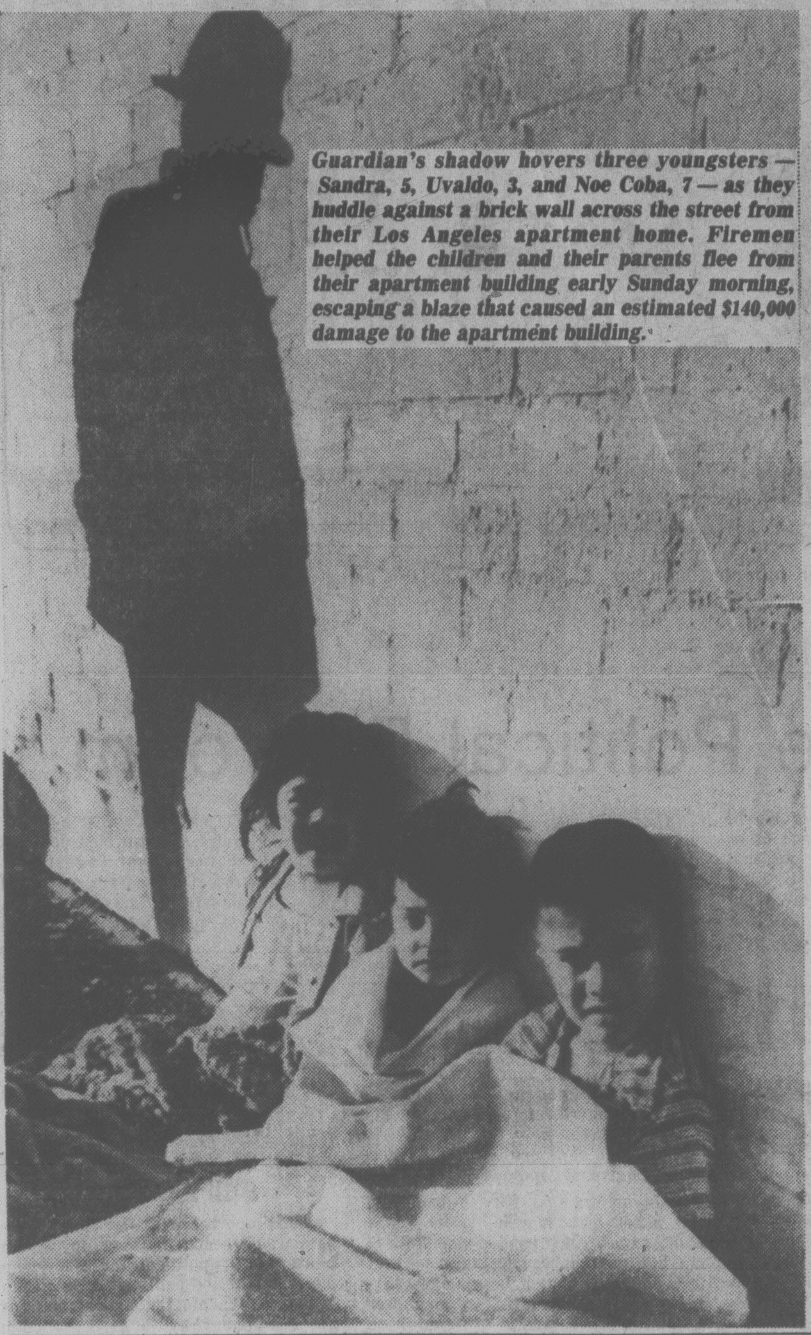
The traffic court judge found an altered ticket form invalid because it had not been published in the British Columbia Gazette.

By Friday about 220 tickets had been thrown out of court.

Munro said the cases of those charged with more serious traffic violations — where injury or property damage were involved — were being adjourned pending the appeal.

Bruce Donald, Vancouver chief Crown counsel, said steps had been taken to have the altered ticket form published in the B.C. Gazette — a weekly government publication listing new statutes regulations and other official actions. However he said it could be five to six weeks before it appeared.

The ruling has not affected jurisdictions outside of Vancouver.



Guardian's shadow hovers three youngsters — Sandra, 5, Uvaldo, 3, and Noe Coba, 7 — as they huddle against a brick wall across the street from their Los Angeles apartment home. Firemen helped the children and their parents flee from their apartment building early Sunday morning, escaping a blaze that caused an estimated $140,000 damage to the apartment building.

RCMP Keeping His Guns

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP have refused to return 146 guns, including two cannon and 45 government surplus machine guns, seized from a North Vancouver gun collector in January, John Hutchinson, 32, said during an interview in the gunsmith's shop in the basement of his home.

Neither Hutchinson nor the RCMP want his address publicized.

The shop is secured with a double steel door and holds 30 non-operating handguns, Very pistols and one Thompson sub-machine gun. In one corner stands a tripod machine gun mount and a belt of .50-calibre machine gun rounds of ammunition; in another stands a three-inch Russian mortar.

None of the guns can be used.

In January when Hutchinson was arrested, "they threw me in jail, they said for security reasons; it was alleged that I had restricted weapons and while I was in the lockup for about eight hours, the RCMP seized my guns."

He said that the RCMP said that he was to be charged with having a prohibited weapon, a .50-calibre Browning machine gun.

The guns were not delivered and Hutchinson was not charged.

Gov't Begins Probe Into U.S. Fish Ban

A department spokesman would not identify the official but said he would spend several days in Vancouver and Seattle.

The decision has been appealed but Fisheries Minister Romeo Leblanc was reluctant to comment on the situation until he receives a more detailed report, the spokesman said.

Judge Donald Vorhees, a U.S. district court judge, granted the temporary injunction requested by the Washington Trollers Association and the Quileurs Indian tribe, but stayed his order for seven days to allow time for an appeal to be heard.

Jack Nichol, president of the United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union, has demanded government action to protect Canadian fishermen.

Nichol said the government might have to prohibit U.S. fisherman from Canadian waters because of the court decision.

The U.S. fisherman argued that Canadians were violating U.S. statutes by fishing within the 200-mile limit.

Premier Bill Bennett also called on the federal government Saturday to take immediate action to protect Canadian fishermen.

Bennett said the action comes at a particularly sensitive time when the two governments are busy negotiating reciprocal fishing rights within the new, 200-mile fishing limits.

Edward Evans, northwestern regional counsel for the U.S. oceanographic and atmospheric administration, said Friday the U.S. government plans to ask the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for an emergency hearing on the decision.

Evans said reciprocal agreements between the executive branches of both governments have allowed Canadian boats to fish in U.S. waters since the early 1970s.

A Canada-U.S. agreement has been drafted but has not yet been ratified by Congress, Evans said.

ABALONE CLOSED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A decision to close off the abalone season May 31 for the rest of the year has been confirmed by the federal fisheries service.

David Schutz, chief of the West Coast district of the fisheries service, said Friday last year's harvest of almost one million pounds of abalone was "far in excess" of what the abalone beds were capable of.

He said the decision was intended to limit this year's harvest to about 600,000 pounds.

Hatchery Planned

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The federal government plans to spend $7.2 million on three fisheries projects on Vancouver Island, Hugh Anderson (L—Comox-Alberni) said here.

Anderson, parliamentary assistant to Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc, said the government's fisheries enhancement program will spend $4.5 million on a hatchery on the Puntledge River near Courtenay, and a $1.7 million salmon hatchery will be built on the west coast of the island at Tlupana Inlet in Nootka Sound.

Anderson said no date has been set for construction.

Diversion Not Set. - Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Bonner, chairman of British Columbia Hydro, denied Sunday that Hydro has decided to go ahead with a project to divert the Kootenay River into the Columbia River.

Bonner was commenting on a statement by MP Bob Brisco (PC-Kootenay-West) who said the Bonneville Power Administration in the United States has received a letter from Hydro which states, in effect, that Hydro would proceed with the project designed to increase the generating capacity of the Columbia.

He said Hydro is studying the project but no decision has been made.

Green Skies

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The pre-dawn sky over a large section of the west was turned a soft green, then orange and purple by a cloud of barium plasma shot into the ionosphere by the U.S. department of energy today.

A DOE spokesman said the Nike-Tomahawk rocket hurled the barium metal ions about 120 miles into the sky in an experiment to learn more about the ionosphere.

What Are They Saying?

In the B.C. legislature today, the MLAs will begin their sixth straight day discussing the spending estimates of Premier Bill Bennett. Already more than 20 hours have been spent in debating the areas of government administration that fall under the premier personally.

With such an amount of time spent on the subject, it must be that the opposition really has been tackling a number of significant issues with the premier, or at least has been getting him to engage in some basic philosophical debates about his views on the important problems facing the province and the nation. Right?

Wrong, unfortunately. Almost all the debate between Bennett and the NDP has been focussed on old issues, sometimes issues so old they were debated during the 1975 election campaign. The legislature has heard at interminable length about the complicated financial plan under which the government sold its new ferries in 1976 and then leased them back; it has heard again about the government's heartlessness in closing down the money-losing RailWest boxcar manufacturing plant more than a year ago; it has, for heaven's sake, even heard references to the Robert Somers scandal that is now more than 20 years old.

A few of the latest developments in the continuing saga of the B.C. Railway have been mentioned along with the railway's past sordid history, but that isn't much of a topic for debate since the government's easy answer is that the McKenzie Royal Commission is still studying all aspects of the BCR.

The only major new issue raised with the premier in the week of debate is the important question of coal lease policy which was brought up, not by the official opposition but by Liberal leader Gordon Gibson. Gibson asked some relevant and useful questions on the subject and got a reasonable response from Bennett: a promise of a "stall" on the issuing of licenses until new legislation governing the matter is passed.

For the rest, the government's responses to the NDP questions have been little better than the questions themselves. Bennett is much more likely to offer political rhetoric to the NDP than he is to offer details of old administrative deals.

By the end of the week, the House seemed to be falling into a vicious circle in which political and vague answers from Bennett prompted more political and vague questions from the NDP.

This is a pity because the overall atmosphere in the House this year appears to have improved substantially. Much of the credit for this should go to the new Speaker, Harvey Schroeder, and his new deputy, Stephen Rogers, both of whom are learning to handle the members with just the right combination of firmness and tact.

But even Schroeder and Rogers will not be able to maintain the relatively positive atmosphere if the members are going to spend entire weeks discussing nothing at all.

Reciprocal Pensions

A few months ago in Victoria a British pensioner began writing letters to the newspapers and the politicians and organizing petitions to try to get some action on an old problem that was still causing hardship to hundreds of Victoria residents. Now, with the participation of some other pensioners and a couple of local politicians, a full-scale campaign is developing on the issue, a campaign which everyone in our city, indeed in Canada, should support wholeheartedly.

The issue is the need for a reciprocal agreement between Great Britain and Canada to allow indexing of pensions between the two countries i.e. to allow recipients of British pensions living in Canada to receive the same indexing as recipients in Britain and the same for recipients of Canadian pensions living in Britain.

It is a strange anachronism that such an agreement does not already exist since Britain already has similar agreements with a number of other countries. But it is an anachronism that is causing hardship to many of the thousands of British pensioners now living in Canada.

A Britisher who was receiving a pension of £15 or £20 a week when he came to Canada is still receiving that same amount, even if he immigrated 20 years ago. He watches while Canadian old-age pensions go up five per cent a year or more, while the pensions of his friends in Britain at home are increased to try to keep pace with the cost of living, while prices rise so much that his own pension is now little more than a bad joke.

It would not cost either the Canadian or British governments much to enter into a reciprocal agreement. But it would make an enormous difference to the lives of pensioners who move from one country to the other.

MARJORIE NICHOLS

In the Political Bedroom

WASHINGTON — Among world leaders, there probably is none other who is subjected to the same personal scrutiny as the president of the U.S. If a president nicks his finger in a late night foray to the White House kitchen, it is regarded as a legitimate matter of public inquiry.

Health records and bank balances are viewed as public documents. Family and friends are fair game for public comment. The president of the U.S. is not even allowed to attend church services without an accompanying entourage of press.

No More Crevices

The rules about which aspects of presidential life are public and which are private are largely unwritten. There is no law that requires a presidential candidate to make public his medical records. Yet, in 1976, Jimmy Carter and all of the other major contenders did so voluntarily.

What this means, of course, is that disclosure of medical records is now a requirement for any future candidate. It may seem to some that the the enormous appetite for private detail of presidential life must now be approaching the saturation point, that there are no further crevices in which to poke, barring passage of legislation requiring the president and his family to take up residence in a public park.

That, however, is not the case. Judging from the items that have been appearing lately in the public prints and on the public airways, the political bedroom is about to be classified as part of the public domain. To be specific, the sexual preference of the politician. The topic, heretofore a taboo for speculation, is an issue of widespread debate.

A lot of Canadians were outraged by what they regarded as the unnecessary prying into the private life of Trudeau during his recent marital difficulties. One can only imagine what their reaction would have been to the question put to New York's new mayor, Edward Koch, at his news conference announcing his mayoral candidacy.

Mayor Koch, a fiftyish bachelor, was asked directly whether he was a homosexual. Koch replied that he was not, but that if he was, he didn't see that it would have much bearing on anything. One of Koch's first actions after assuming office, was to bring down an executive order forbidding municipal discrimination against homosexuals.

Mayor Koch is not, however, the prime object of the current debate. That honor goes to Jerry Brown, the bachelor governor of California who is regarded as the prime challenger to Jimmy Carter in 1980.

Brown denies the allegations that he is anything other than heterosexual, but that has not stemmed the speculation. A recent article on the California governor in Esquire, a respected journal, raised the matter of Brown's sexuality. And last week it was also a matter of discussion on NBC's Today show.

Host Tom Brokaw, whose guests were the authors of two recent books about Brown, asked them to speculate on the governor's "sexual preference." Both conjectured that Brown was probably "straight," but one went on to speculate that the governor was somewhat "afraid of women." It probably goes without saying that none of this is helping Brown in his presidential bid.

Anti-gay Laws

The importance of the current debate would seem, however, to involve more than the political future of a couple of unmarried politicians. Both California and Washington state campaigns are now underway to garner enough votes to force other anti-gay referendums.

As the story on the front page of The New York Times aptly summed up the situation: "Laws aiding homosexuals face rising opposition around nation."

The growing consensus in this country would seem to be that the state does indeed have a place in the bedrooms of the nation, including the one at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

CLAUDE ADAMS

I Didn't Mean It, Honestly

WASHINGTON — When the history of the northern Virginia separatist movement is written decades from now, they will give a small footnote to an expatriate Canadian who did not know enough to keep his mouth shut.

So let me go on record now as stating that I did not mean it. I'm sorry I ever mentioned the words "sovereignty-association" and "referendum," and if I've contributed in any way to the breakup of the commonwealth, it was done in all innocence.

I hereby dissociate myself from the rebellion and throw myself at the mercy of the immigration authorities. Should the day come that Rene Levesque proclaims "vive la Virginie-Nord libre" from the steps of Alexandria town hall, I shall not be there shouting along with the rest of the secessionists.

I believe in a united commonwealth of Virginia, and the union of 50 states, strong and free. Honest. Historians, take note.

But let me tell the story from the beginning.

Eight Year Idea

The proposed breakaway of northern Virginia from the rest of the state is an idea that dates back to 1970, long before I moved into the region's model town, Reston, the pride of Fairfax County, Va., from Montreal.

Secession, or separatism, or whatever you want to call it, was first voiced by a noble lady named Martha Pennino, a county politician and budding patriot who is outraged at the share of the state tax revenue that northern Virginians send to the state capital in Richmond, and how little they get back in return.

The region, she says, is cosmopolitan and sophisticated, and has much more in common with Washington, D.C., than the rural backwater of the state's southern reaches, where the spirit of the Confederacy is yet strong.

As one looks closer, some parallels with the Quebec experience also surface. Northern Virginians speak differently, culturally they are more attuned to Washington's Kennedy Centre than to the country music of the south and feel themselves poorly represented by their state and federal politicians.

Like Quebecers, northern Virginians feel they have the resources, population and political acumen to govern themselves.

Affluent, educated and perhaps the most politically-conscious of Americans (most work for the federal government), they are taking the first, halting steps towards self-determination.

Recently, a northern Virginia housewife, taking Martha Pennino's cue, had a column published in The Washington Star. She gave a stirring argument for the "new and glorious state of North Virginia."

RENE LEVESQUE
. . . a few pointers for Virginians

The column ended with the question: "Does anyone know where to start?"

That is where I stumbled in, a psychological casualty of Rene Levesque's victory in 1976. (I hang a Parti Quebecois election poster in my bathroom; it's a local curiosity piece.)

I called Martha Pennino. She was delighted by the international attention. After eight years, she was getting discouraged.

"Back home," I said, "we don't call it secession or separatism any more. We call it sovereignty-association."

Pennino rolled the phrase over her tongue. "That sounds lovely," she said.

"And the way we are going about it," I continued rashly, "is with a referendum."

That appealed to her democratic sense. "Yes, yes, the people should decide for themselves. Very good."

"But before the referendum, you have to convince the people that self-determination would work. In Quebec, there is a lot of talk about a common market, a joint currency, the exploitation of natural resources. I suppose in North Virginia, you could stick to things like regional transportation, sewers, zoning and a better use of tax monies."

"Of course," she said. "Of course."

"And your next step . . ." at this point, I stopped myself. I was exceeding the bounds of journalistic ethics, edging towards sedition. What dastardly seeds was I planting?

Statehood Movement

But Miss Pennino was fascinated. She wanted more. I could almost hear the political gears in her mind turning over. Should I go into the matter of mass public rallies, manifestoes, activism on state college campuses, a liberation news sheet, a grassroots political movement?

Should I introduce her to the concept of "two solitudes," "maitres chez nous," or maybe even a quiet revolution?

But no, I had already said too much. Soon, we'd be into trade corridors and boundary disputes and nationalist rhetoric, and then there's no pulling out.

As we ended our conversation, Miss Pennino, sounding fortified and enthusiastic, said that when she retires from country politics, she will devote full time to the North Virginia statehood movement.

I hung up.

The next day, in a lead editorial, The Washington Star pondered the idea under the headline A State of North Virginia?

Driving home from work, I swear I was passed by a Brinks truck racing toward Richmond. I didn't mean it, Miss Pennino. Honest.

Riding Academy

I read in the Victoria Times of April 29 that Dr. David Philip, chairman of the Oak Bay recreation committee has said that he is opposed to the land on Cedar Hill X Road, where the Victoria Riding Academy is located, falling into the hands of a private developer and also that careful consideration should be given to future recreational needs for Oak Bay and that additional space is needed for the future.

As a strong supporter of the present riding academy, I agree and would like to add that since the riding academy is the only place now existing for riders within the Greater Victoria area, I wonder why it must be moved. We need that particular recreational facility also. There is a group of people who go there daily. Every afternoon after school and in the evening you can find young and old there caring for and loving the horses. On weekends all sorts of people turn up to have an hour of riding or a lesson, because there is no other public place to rent a horse unless you drive to Duncan. Yes, there are lots of horses in the Saanich peninsula, but all privately owned.

If no immediate use is planned for the land, why must the people who want to ride and enjoy horses in this area be deprived of their particular recreation and leisure? Is the land to lie idle?

Lots of those young people have no hope of ever owning a horse themselves or would have no way to get to a stable far out in Saanich every day. They now have the work, pleasure and discipline of helping to care for the horses every day. They are not getting into trouble as many seem to be these days.

Think of the outcry there would be if the tennis players or the baseball or hockey players, soccer, swimmers, curlers, etc. were told they couldn't play any more "because the land is needed for housing or development or more taxes."

In my view it is very shortsighted to eliminate an existing sports facility. Horses are becoming more popular than ever. Must we really have wall to wall housing between here and Sidney by the year 2000, as I once read in the paper? This is a place that all of Greater Victoria should be supporting, not tearing down. — Elise Spratt, 3000 Rutland Road.

Big Macs

As I was speeding through the aroma of Big Macs surrounding the drive-in McDonald's in Colwood, I realized what the final step in the McDonalds phenomenon will be. The customer will drive into the McDonald's restaurant, he will put his head out of the window, he will open his mouth under the small end of a large funnel and pre-chewed plastic food will be forced down his throat. Then he will drive away. — Fraser Homer-Dixon, 4563 Parry Cross Road.

Wonderful Staff

After nearly five weeks at the Royal Jubilee, Bay Pavillion ending with 12 days at the Gorge Hospital, I was discharged on April 29. My wife was discharged after four days in Royal Jubilee emergency.

I want to say what wonderful attention we both received from the doctors, nurses and all the assistants that are required in such busy hospitals. No matter who was with us, they were kindness itself.

The people of Victoria are very fortunate to have such excellent hospitals. I even received a copy of the Times every day I was in the Gorge delivered by a little girl! — W. E. Shepley, 3232 Service Street.

No Moral Cripple

On behalf of thousands of British Columbia marijuana users I must protest in the strongest terms the implications by Dr. Pat McGeer that we are not "of the highest moral character" (Pot-smoking Teachers May Be Fired Says McGeer; Times, April 27). Contrary to his assertion that "every parent in the province is behind me on this one," I know for a fact that marijuana-smoking parents of school-age children (such as myself) are definitely not behind him.

There is no logical connection between smoking marijuana and what McGeer describes as "tainting the minds of our youngsters." It is he who is smearing the pot-smoker with the taint of being less trustworthy than the non-smoker.

As for Dr. McGeer's contention that marijuana-smoking teachers could be fired without being convicted of any criminal offence, it is beyond belief that a minister of the Crown could openly support such an outright violation of both civil liberties and the rule of law. For a doctor and a supposedly educated man, in a position of highest public trust, Dr. McGeer is certainly letting his ignorance shine through.

To those of you who are confused by the marijuana debate now raging in North America I say this: try this pleasant herb yourself and decide whether you have become a moral cripple or not. — Franklin Lewis, Victoria.

U.S. Can't Accept Soviet Parity

JONATHAN STEELE
Manchester Guardian

WASHINGTON — It has set President Carter's national security assistant, Dr. Brzezinski, against the State Department. It lies behind the angry carping on Capitol Hill over the Administration's proposals on arms control which Mr. Vance has taken to Moscow. It is the source of most of the emotional hostility to the Panama Canal treaty.

The problem has no agreed name. For want of any other it might be called "living with parity." The concept that the Russians are equal to the United States in strategic nuclear power has crept up on most Americans slowly. It has not been like the rude shock they received when the Russians launched the first Sputnik in 1957. That was an emotional blow which hit hard but faded relatively quickly when the Americans overtook the Russian space effort in the mid 1960s. Strategic military parity struck more gradually — but more painfully because the chances of regaining clear American superiority are virtually nil.

If it had been an isolated blow Americans might have been able to adjust to it. For a time during the halcyon days of detente in 1972, when the first SALT treaty was concluded, it looked as though they would. On his first trip to Moscow President Nixon seemed to have broad public backing.

But several further blows to America's self-image have ensued. For those who have not seen the writing on the wall much earlier, the humiliating retreat from Vietnam three years ago dented the country's image of omnipotence. The energy crisis in 1973 showed that the U.S. could be put at the mercy of oil suppliers. However frantically some Pentagon planners itched to send in the Marines, military intervention in defence of the oil was an impossible option.

Dollar Slides

The slow slide of the dollar, once a key symbol of American empire, illustrated how far American power had declined in relation to its Western European allies and Japan. Finally, in the last two years, in Angola and Ethiopia, there has come the realization that the Soviet Union is not only equal on the nuclear front, but now has the power and the inclination to intervene with conventional forces in the Third World in situations where the West once felt it could operate unchallenged.

Until these five crises are assimilated into the national consciousness, American foreign policy will remain in a state of confusion. The long Panama Canal debate, now mercifully over, has been a stage on which many of today's doubts, irritations, and impatience were displayed. Buoyed by the ideological certainties of the cold war, the Senate took less than two weeks to ratify the NATO Treaty. The Panama Canal debate has taken more than two months. It had many similarities to the post-mortem in Britain after Suez. Canals seem to be tenacious symbols and both in Britain and the U.S. the question of giving them up (a forced decision in England, voluntary on the U.S.) prompted uncomfortable imperial soul-searching.

It might be tempting to include Watergate as a sixth crisis. But it turns out not to be a major factor. Watergate was a passing governmental crisis, not a national one. It damaged the public view of politicians, which was never very high. Americans did not lose faith in their country; indeed, the speed and orderliness with which Watergate was overcome has strengthened America's self-image as a democratic nation.

The deep uneasiness which the Five Crises has caused does not centre on democracy, but on power. It transcends the simplistic old divisions of hawks and doves, anti-detente and pro-detente, isolationism or internationalism, pragmatism or ideology. Surprisingly perhaps, there is no major division over the reasons for the decline in American power.

Few people, except the far Right, believe the decline is something that the U.S. could have prevented. No one is claiming that some internal enemy "lost" America its superiority, in the way they allegedly "lost" China 30 years ago. It is generally recognized that the process was caused by economic and political forces over which the U.S. had minimal control. Some would argue that it could have been delayed.

This is one of the current issues for debate, but the issue has little steam behind it and fortunately, therefore, there is no backing now for a new wave of McCarthyism.

The fundamental division is over what to do now, given the altered circumstances in which the U.S. faces the world. Does one accept the changed nature of U.S. power, or does one try to hark back to an earlier age? The split goes right through the foreign policy establishment and the Carter Administration.

It explains the mixed and confusing signals coming from Washington. Because it is an issue of psychology as much as policy, a question of adjustment more than of perception, it even produces contradictory reactions from the same policy maker at different times. In his Wake Forest speech on defence recently President Carter sounded pugnacious. On the neutron bomb question he was mild.

Inner Tension

In general, the Administration more often takes the milder view. But no policy area is immune from inner tension. Some younger elements in the State Department have been trying to put more emphasis on "functional issues" like human rights, nuclear proliferation, and restraining the trade in conventional arms. But all the time the thrust risks being forced back into traditional channels. Unlike its predecessor, this Administration says that human rights include economic and social rights as well as political ones. It is not at all clear that all the officials agree.

A signal victory for the school which accepts the new realities was the non-interventionist American attitude to the conflict between Ethiopa and Somalia. It required considerable soul-searching and internal debate for the Administration to reach the view that the Russians had legitimacy on their side, however annoying it was to see them in Ethiopia.

The issue is not yet fully resolved, as is clear from the conflict within the Administration over "linkage." Dr. Brzezinski still hankers for a way somehow to "punish" the Russians by denying them a SALT treaty. He is one of the principal phrasemakers in the new emphasis on "global issues" and the architect of President Carter's two world trips. He claims that Dr. Kissinger was "obsessed" by East-West relations, yet his actions in recent months suggest that he has not come to terms with parity.

Pugnacious in manner, schooled in the ideology of the 1950s, and easily needled by Soviet propaganda, Dr. Brzezinski believes that a SALT treaty is a favor to the Russians. He is also more anxious than most other members of the Administration to play the China card against Moscow.

Mr. Vance's assistant for Soviet affairs, Marshal Shulman, takes the opposite view. He argues that a SALT treaty is of equal interest to Washington and Moscow and is central to American foreign policy. It cannot be used as a lever to try to control Soviet behavior.

Further down the line the Administration has not yet found an internal consensus in its attitude to the Third World. Which countries are more important to the U.S.? Ones which have large reserves of raw materials, ones which can be "denied" to the Russians, or ones which respect human rights in the broadest sense? Perhaps it is unrealistic to expect a definitive answer in the lifetime of this Administration. Living comfortably with parity and without the arrogance of power will require the rejection of an enormous amount of baggage. It will take years rather than months.

Where Are Brave Voices?

By GEORGE BAIN
Toronto Star

OTTAWA — The current newsletter of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association (CDNPA) and the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference begins on a self-congratulatory note.

"Little did we know when we invited York University political scientist Arthur Siegel to speak at the national legal seminar in February," it says, "just how timely his remarks would be."

Siegel's subject was The Canadian Mass Media and Politics: Legal and Constitutional Restraints. What made it timely, of course, was the soon-to-follow fuss in Parliament about leaks and the laying of a charge against the Toronto Sun and editor Peter Worthington under the Official Secrets Act.

Timeliness is fine, and the publishers and managing editors are entitled to a small glow of self-satisfaction — as would be an equal number of members of Rotary, the Canadian Club, or the Lilac Current Affairs and Historical Society — at having bagged a speaker whose subject would be so beautifully in tune with events.

However, it would be a great deal better for everybody, including most particularly themselves, if the publishers and managing editors were able to demonstrate, along with their readiness to listen to academic lectures on restraints on the media, that they also recognize restraints and have something to say about them when they encounter them in real life.

Among Siegel's comments, as reported in the newsletter, were these:

"The Official Secrets Act is worrisome in that its very vagueness makes it a net which . . . can cover all illegal disclosures of secrets . . ." "The broad nature of the act could lead to possible abuse . . ." And: "The Official Secrets Act can be seen as a subtle but nevertheless effective instrument of censorship" — subtle, evidently, because its catch-all nature and stiff maximum penalty themselves are intimidating.

Given these timely reminders of the nature of the act, it might be expected the publishers and editors would have had trenchant words to say, if not about the case itself, about the act, when one of their own was charged.

A sampling of newspapers in the parliamentary reading room, which has them all, says otherwise. The impression is confirmed by phone calls around the country.

There have been honorable exceptions, but most editorial pages have said little or nothing. They've commented to say "the law is the law," in effect, tough luck on you, Bro. Worthington. Or they've not commented because "the case is before the courts." (When it isn't, comment won't be timely; there'll be no "peg.")

Another thing Siegel said was that Canadian newspapers, unlike those in Britain and the United States, hadn't fought much in the courts to "define and expand" media rights in the political setting.

Timely? Uncannily prescient.

The CDNPA board of directors met in late March, and, evidently in a brief flash of understanding that there might be something here potentially affecting them all, discussed aiding The Sun in its defence. In the end, the question was pushed to a committee.

Another case was different.

With CDNPA backing, plus the considerable legal talents of J. J. Robinette, the St. Catharines Standard has just had a favorable decision — being appealed by the Justice Department, however — in Federal Court in Toronto.

It revolved around the question of whether a newspaper is involved in "manufacturing and processing."

It seems that regulations 5200 and 5202 under the Income Tax Act create a better tax break if what a columnist and other newspaper people engage in is not writing but "producing, assembling and handling goods in process."

First things first.

We shall soon be engulfed by European and Japanese tourists. Because of the dollar's decline in relation to the franc, the mark and the yen, it is now cheaper for people from the hard-currency countries to spend a month touring the United States than it is for an American to spend a weekend in Dusseldorf.

Foreign tourists can be trying, particularly when they come swarming down upon an old culture like ours to spend money ostentatiously without regard to good taste or refinement of manners. It behooves us as good hosts, however, to greet them hospitably and make a sincere effort to understand their ways.

A few myths should be dispelled immediately. One of these is the notion that all Europeans and Japanese are rich. It may seem that way when a Japanese couple stop you on the street, hand you their camera and offer you $20 to take their snapshot. You must remember that though $20 seems like a substantial sum to an American, on the Japanese economy it would scarcely be coin for the laundromat.

Nor, despite what our newspapers suggest, are all Europeans gangsters, kidnappers and killers. True, compared to the Old-World serenity of America, Europe seems a violent and dangerous place where thugs terrorize the streets with automatic rifles and fast getaway cars; but the average European neither approves nor participates in this lawlessness.

It is true, of course, that most of these foreign tourists will be brash and ignorant of the older American culture. This should not be surprising. For the most part, they will be coming from countries that scarcely existed thirty years ago except as rubble inhabited by people feeding on chocolate bars and chewing gum.

But they are people of immense vitality who have been able to build a new world complete with expressways, traffic jams, air pollution and frozen food in the space of a single generation. Small wonder if they have had little time to acquire polish and refinement and know little of the more sophisticated pleasures of life they will be encountering in the United States.

Thus, many will doubtless sneer at such things as our railroads and declare them antique and ridiculous. In Europe, or Japan, remember, they have spent their lives arriving on time at railroad stations for appointments about frozen food. They have never known the pleasures possible in a two-hour delay on the Metroliner when one is trying to advance a love affair with a passenger who got on in Newark.

We must overlook their adolescent passion to arrive at railroad stations on time and not be rude by pointing out that a two-hour delay will never stop the spread of frozen food but may quite often promote the spread of romance.

Courtesy, always courtesy — this must be our principle of conduct.

And so we must not, upon being introduced to a Japanese visitor, invite him home to repair our television set. Despite popular mythology, not all Japanese are wizards of television mechanics, and it is rude to treat them like stereotypes.

For the same reason, one should not, upon meeting a Swiss tourist, ask him to turn a bundle of dollars into gold. There are many Swiss who know nothing more about banking and currency speculation than the average American banker.

One should not ask a German couple who have dropped in to see a quaint American household if they knew Adolf Hitler. One should not invite a French visitor to come by the house and prepare a six-course meal. This insults the visitor by invoking the tired old stereotype of the Frenchman as one who prefers food to frozen TV dinners.

With a modicum of civility, America should be able to profit from its foreign guests. Block parties at which Americans perform traditional native dances like the jitterbug, the twist and the hustle should net a pleasant shower of yen, francs and marks when the tambourine is passed.

There is always posing on street corners in native costume for the tourist with his insatiable camera and bottomless purse. The manufacture at well-travelled intersections of native products — the car that breaks down the day the last instalment is paid, the light bulb that burns out the instant it arrives home from the store — this sort of thing may net a handsome profit from tourists looking for a souvenir to take back to Bavaria, Osaka or Basel.

Demonstrations of traditional American pastimes such as squeezing the toilet paper or denting a fender on the supermarket parking lot can not only be profitable but also enrich our brash European and Japanese visitors, through exposure to the subtleties of an older, more complex culture.

We are, after all, the Old World, and though these innocents from materialistic new cultures cannot be expected to grasp it on a first or even a tenth visit, our example can at least give them a glimpse of what is possible in a seasoned civilization.

I BOUGHT MY HONDA AT 115,000 MILES AND IT'S STILL FLYING. As told by Roland Poitras, Editor/Bush Pilot.

"My 'rather used' Honda is the car I use for rallying. It's not the fastest car around, but it more than makes up for it in the handling and the road holding."

"When the weather's socked in and I can't take my plane up North, I take my Honda."

"With its front wheel drive the Honda will go places a mule wouldn't."

Excuse us, Mr. Poitras, but we just can't get over the fact that someone would buy any car that already had 115,000 miles on it, even if it is a Honda. Isn't that a bit chancey? "Notreally," Roland answered. "You must understand that I bought it from an ex-girlfriend, so I knew the history of the car. I remember when she bought it, it was one of the first Hondas in Montreal. All our friends laughed: 'Honda makes motorcycles not cars. Are you crazy?' they said. Now they're all driving Hondas, themselves." Is that the only car you own? "No. At the same time that I bought the old Honda I bought a brand new Honda and that's the car I use to drive everyday. I use the old Honda for rallying and for wilderness fishing trips when the weather is too risky to take my plane. With its front wheel drive it'll go places a mule wouldn't."

What impresses you most about your Hondas? "Driving them. For some people driving is just a means of getting from point A to point B. Not me. I really enjoy driving and my Hondas are just a ball to drive. I think anyone who enjoys driving owes it to themselves to at least try a Honda or they won't know what they are missing." Thank you, Roland Poitras.

You can take Mr. Poitras' word for it, but we'd sooner have you see for yourself by taking a test drive. You'll soon see why in just four short years Honda Civic has become the second best selling car* in all of Canada. HONDA

Jobs Picture Called Bright

Former B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson said today that while unemployment is a problem, the over-all employment picture in Canada is good.

Most people who want jobs are working, and the ones not working can expect jobs soon, Anderson told a group of student debaters from across Canada.

He was the featured speaker this morning at the annual Canadian student debating seminar. The address at the University of Victoria opened a week of debates on the central theme, Employment Opportunities for Young People.

This is the first year the national student debating championships have been held in B.C. and about 75 students will take part in a week of debates in local public and private schools.

Anderson predicted that unions will eventually be forced to give up restrictive practices such as unrealistically high wage demands that limit job opportunites for young people.

Anderson said the government can't provide enough jobs for students if union requirements force them to hire at wage levels that are too high from the point of view of experience and the large numbers of young people looking for work.

Anderson said he finds it strange that in Victoria's construction industry, half the carpenters are unemployed while the rest are getting $11 an hour.

Anderson also said unemployment insurance benefits are too generous and discourage people from taking lower-paying jobs.

He predicted major changes in the UIC system in the near future.

BRIGHT VANES of wind-driven generator gave a ferris wheel look to Sun Day at Beacon Hill Park Sunday. Thousands turned out to see demonstrations of solar energy, recycling, bean and alfalfa sprouting and other conservation practices. Phil Esmonde, an organizer of the event as part of International Solar Week, was pleased with the turnout and said if there is still a need for solar education, Sun Day will be repeated next year.

B.C. Loses Out to Quebec

VANCOUVER (CP) - British Columbia consulting engineers win proportionately fewer contracts from the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) than their colleagues in Quebec, even after population densities are accounted for, according to agency statistics.

Statistics from the agency's resource branch state that B.C. engineers ended up with 5.6 per cent of CIDA contracts for 1977-78, while Quebec won 52 per cent of those awarded.

The CIDA statistics stated that of 231 contracts worth $82.1 million 120 went to Quebec for a total of $45.6 million; 58 contracts worth $24 million to Ontario; 21 contracts worth $1.52 million to Alberta and 15 contracts totalling $5.54 million to B.C.

CIDA officials said population densities account for part of difference, but B.C., with 11 per cent of the population, received 5.6 per cent of total contracts, while Quebec, with 27 per cent of the population, got 52 per cent of the contracts.

Some engineers say the problem stems partly from the fact that when information on contracts is sent to B.C. firms, it is sometimes in French only.

"I have no doubt it happens," said Robert Johnson, head of CIDA contracts.

He said two of the six units of the agency are operated in French so that information regarding their areas — Latin America and French-speaking Africa — may well be written in French only.

Martin Holden, chairman of the board of the Consulting Engineers of B.C., said CIDA president Michel Dupuy recently assured members of the profession in Vancouver that it appears the agency will be taking greater care in allocating contracts in future.

Central Drug Data

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association plans to develop a universal system for providing information to health practitioners, governments and consumers, president Bob Yorston of Moncton, N.B. said today.

Speaking at the association's 71st annual meeting at The Empress, Yorston said the development of such a system is being studied by a special committee.

He told the 750 delegates a new office will be established in Ottawa in August to make the organization's presence felt in the capital.

The association will continue its Toromto office for administrative and publishing purposes.

Noting that Manitoba now has universal pharmacare, he predicted that in time this will spread to the other nine provinces.

Yorston said because each province has its own health programs pharmaceutical practices vary but through the influence of the association and other related organizations universal systems are gradually developed.

Music Festival's Last Hurrah Tonight: The Highlights Concert

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A male-dominated City of Victoria Medallion class topped off an evening of piano championships Saturday at the Greater Victoria Music Festival.

The last hurrah comes tonight at McPherson Playhouse with the Highlights Concert featuring performances by the cream of the talent heard this year.

For what is probably the first time in the long history of the Medallion, four young men were chosen to compete for the diploma-level trophy. The winner, with a brilliant performance of Bartok's Improvisations, was Arne Sahlen. Runners-up were Arthur La Vertu, Claude McLean and Malcolm Woodland.

Chosen to represent Victoria in the Provincial Music Festival in Vernon in June was Miranda Wong, winner of the open performance class. Claude McLean was named as alternate.

Bob Tweten, playing a set of difficult preludes by Canadian composer Srul Irving Glick, won in the senior championship class and will be compete in the Provincial Festival's junior section. Alternate is Monica Pfau who was a runner-up in the contest along with Anna Lowe and Gloria Wong.

Marlis Neumann topped the junior championship class with Michelle Himick, Annie Ho, Denise Oliver and Derk Wolmuth as runners-up.

Melinda Cownden won in the intermediate class followed by Theresa Lowe, Daphne Kalfon, Ingrid Brandstetter and Helen Kim.

Several bursary awards and book prizes were presented. Recipients were, piano concerto, Arthur La Vertu; piano ensemble, under 15, Theresa Lowe and Melinda Cownden; under 18, Monica Pfau and Gloria Wong; diploma level, Susan de Burgh and Carla Dodek; sight reading, Soo Shin; solo, romantic, Willette Neijmeijer; contemporary, Claude McLean; accompaniment, junior, Monica Pfau; senior, Malcolm Woodland.

A highlight of the festival's dance section, which concluded at the weekend with an honor performance program, was the presentation to Victoria ballet teacher Wynne Shaw of a scroll containing the signatures of all her past students gathered from many parts of the world. At the same time it was announced that a perpetual scholarship fund has been established in her name to be awarded at the Victoria Festival. The first winner is Jennifer Sanders.

Other dance awards: Erith Smith Memorial Award for classical ballet, Joseph Bain; Classical Ballet, Tracey Gendron, Eugenie Ngai; Kathleen McCreesh Most Versatile Dancer Award, Kim and Nicole Martin; Modern Dance, jazz, Colleen Love; tap, Donna Grey and Teresa Young; Character-Mime, Petra Johns and Linde Looy.

Brass and woodwind awards were received by Victoria Gray, Phillip Thompson, Karen Hough and Janet Underhill. Janet will be a representative at the Provincial. The Castle Flute Quartet won the ensemble award. Organ class awards were won by Ann Sunde and Mike Dangschat, electronic, and Roy Morris and Kathie Edge, pipe.

PAINTINGS ON DISPLAY

SAN JOSE (AP) — Forty-four paintings by Van Gogh, Degas, Cezanne, Stuart and Rubens went on display at the weekend to honor the inauguration of Rodrigo Carazo as president of Costa Rico.

PROFIT LEVEL LAGS IN REAL ESTATE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The profits of the real estate industry in Canada are barely adequate to attract investors, says a report published by the Fraser Institute.

The report, Profits in the Real Estate Industry, was written by Basil Kalymon of the faculty of management studies of the University of Toronto. The Fraser Institute is a Vancouver-based economic research organization.

While stating that data for analysis is fragmentary, Kalymon said the figures he came up with show profit levels of real estate companies are in line with those of all industries.

For all industries, income as a percentage of equity averaged 9.37 in 1969 and 15.04 in 1974, compared with 10.51 and 14.79 respectively for the real estate industry.

Kalymon said the industry is highly competitive.

"The total number of firms participating in the industry in 1974 was 35,078, as reported by Statistics Canada," he said. This figure exceeds the total number of firms in all lines of manufacturing despite the fact that total income in the manufacturing sector was almost eight times greater."

Kalymon said the largest 11 firms hold no more than 15 per cent of the total market.

Kalymon said inflation has boosted the value of many unsold lots and units so that the reported income of a real estate company may appear artificially high.

The only way income levels can grow at the same rate in future is for prices to continue going higher.

Nuclear War by Year 2000?

TORONTO (CP) — Experts from both the United States and Soviet Union expressed serious concern for the chances of nuclear war by the year 2000 at a private symposium attended by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Dr. George Arbatov of the Soviet academy of sciences said there is a general mood shared by delegates from 10 countries—including all the nuclear powers except China— attending the Pugwash symposium that the world may face a nuclear war in the next 30 years if the arms race continues and political climates do not improve.

The symposium is being held under the auspices of Pugwash Organization—a loose grouping concerned over implications of the nuclear age. The organization was initiated in the mid-1950s by industrialist Cyrus Eaton of Pgwash, N.S., which lends its name to the international group.

Arbatov told a news conference: "It is the opinion held in the Soviet Union that there is a need for urgent measures or the situation could become catastrophic."

Trudeau, who met for 2½ hours with 30 scientists, defence analysts and political scientists at the symposium, attended as an observer. He was not at the news conference.

But Canadian delegate Prof. John Polanyi said Trudeau, who later attended a private dinner with conference participants before returning to Ottawa, joined in the discussions on nuclear problems.

When asked if delegates had asked the prime minister about the sale of Canadian nuclear technology to other countries, Polanyi said delegates believe the spread of nuclear capabilty to additional countries cannot be prevented unless the proliferation of weapons by the superpowers is limited.

Canada suspended nuclear shipments and aid to India in 1974 when India used a Canadian-supplied reactor to detonate its first nuclear device.

McGeorge Bundy, former U.S. presidential assistant on national security, said world safety has not been improved by the increase in the numbers of countries which now have nuclear weapons.

"The nuclear age has not been a source of comfort to anyone," he said.

Bundy said the most urgent issue is the successful completion of a new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II) between the Washington and Moscow.

He said the treaty would set the stage for further efforts to bring about arms reductions.

Delegates also discussed the problem of terrorists using nuclear weapons in the future.

Lord Zuckerman, former chief scientific adviser to the British government, said he does not believe nuclear weapons would help terrorists.

"Terrorists want to get the sympathy of the world," he said. "If they use bombs they will lose it (sympathy)."

But Polanyi said he cannot agree with that view because terrorists have committed appalling acts.

"They don't seem to be thinking about sympathy," he said. "I can visualize some anarchists who want to create havoc and confusion having that objective."

The conference ends today.

Cosmos Cleanup Bills Top $10M

EDMONTON (CP) — Calculating the cost of Canada's efforts to locate fragments of the Soviet Cosmos 954 is almost complete, almost four months after the nuclear-powered satellite slipped from its flight path to disintegrate above the Northwest Territories.

A external affairs department spokesman said Friday a claim for search costs—possibly more than $10 million—might be ready within two weeks to one month.

But at least one Russian official has indicated the Canadian government might have some difficulty collecting the full bill from the Soviet Union.

The official with the press office of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa said although he did not know what the final position of his government would be, he thought it might only be willing to pay for damage caused by the fallen satellite.

Cosmos 954 plunged through the atmosphere Jan. 24 and Canadian Forces search units, accompanied by Canadian and American scientists, immediately launched an intensive effort in the Northwest Territories to locate fragments.

The Soviet embassy official, who did not wish to be identified, quoted an Tass news agency release issued in February that reported a high Soviet diplomat as saying Cosmos 954 fell from its planned orbit, likely after a collision with some other object, and "ceased to exist over northern Canada."

The release said the Russian government, under terms of a 1972 international agreement on responsibilty for various nations' orbiting objects, would be accountable for any damage cause by 954's sudden reunion with earth.

When quoting from the release,, the embassy official made a point of repeating the phrases "ceased to exist" and "would pay for damages." The Russians have not yet seen any of the satellite debris that has been recovered, he said.

Asked whether he thought the Soviet government would be favorable to paying for the search costs, the official replied: "Of course not for the cost of the search, you could look and look and look and find nothing."

Meanwhile, Hugh Spence, a spokesman for the Atomic Energy Control Board of Canada, said an active search for satellite debris has been temporarily halted until spring.

Spence said only about 200 pounds of debris has been recovered so far. The satellite was estimated to have weighed about 10,000 pounds, he said.

Men Complain

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — A discotheque that charges one Australian dollar more for men than for women for entry on peak nights is in trouble with the Equal Opportunities Commission. The commission has asked the disco, known as Jules Bar, to explain its actions following several complaints of discrimination from male patrons.

Carter Loses To Kennedy

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Pollsters who have been monitoring President Jimmy Carter's declining popularity gave him another shock Sunday: a majority of Democrats would prefer Senator Edward Kennedy in the 1980 U.S. presidential election.

Democrats asked in a Gallup poll whom they would prefer if the 1980 Democratic party convention offered a choice between the two men gave Kennedy 53 percentage points and Carter 40. The remainder were undecided.

Kennedy was also the first choice when pitted against Carter and four other possible contenders for the Democratic nomination.

The order of preference: Kennedy 36 per cent, Carter 29 per cent; California Gov. Jerry Brown 12 per cent, Vice-President Walter Mondale eight per cent, Senator Henry Jackson five per cent, Representative Morris Udall three per cent.

Kennedy, whose brother President John Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 and brother Senator Robert Kennedy was shot dead in 1968, has repeatedly stated that he would not be a candidate in the 1980 election.

Only once in the 43-year history of the Gallup poll has a sitting president eligible for re-election been defeated in a showdown test of strength.

That was in September, 1967, when Democrats chose Robert Kennedy by a margin of 51 per cent against 39 per cent for the then president, Lyndon Johnson. Johnson did not run for re-election in 1968.

Carter, whose popularity in the polls has plunged drastically in recent weeks, has said he has not yet made up his mind about running for a second four-year term in the White House in 1980.

A Gallup poll last week showed that only 39 per cent of those questioned approved of the way he was handling the presidency.

In a Harris poll, Carter's job performance rating was 33 per cent positive, and a joint National Broadcasting Co.-Associated Press poll gave the president only 29 per cent approval.

Brezhnev Talks Praised

HAMBURG (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt says the "real political result" of his four-day meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev was "the complete openness of the talks on almost everthing in the world."

Schmidt spoke with reporters Sunday shortly after seeing Brezhnev off from Hamburg Airport.

A final communique said Schmidt and Brezhnev believe their discussions made a "contribution to strengthening peace in Europe."

They discussed a wide range of issues including arms development, the neutron bomb, divided Berlin, the Middle East and Africa. After three days of talks in Bonn, the two leaders flew to this northern port city for the final session Sunday.

The meeting produced a 25-year agreement on economic co-operation aimed at doubling trade between the two countries in the next five years and at promoting West German development of Russian natural resources.

PLO Rocket Marks Israel's Anniversary

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility Sunday for the first rocket attack on Jerusalem since 1976 and said it was timed to coincide with this week's 30th anniversary of Israeli independence.

Authorities here said one woman was injured in the explosion of a Soviet-made Katyusha rocket. The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) in Beirut, Lebanon, said several persons were killed or injured in a "heavy rocket attack" and Israeli government buildings were damaged.

It was the first time in two years that Arab guerrillas had fired a Katyusha rocket into the Holy City. Independence day celebrations have been traditional targets for Arab terrorism and Israeli police and civilians were placed on alert against possible attacks.

A spokesman for the PLO command said an underground squad launched "the heavy rocket attack on government buildings in Jerusalem Saturday (which) commemorated the 30th anniversary of the Israeli occupation of our Palestine."

Meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has ended his visit to the United States in a frenzied encounter with 100,000 supporters of the Jewish homeland.

The visit, which marked the 30th anniversary of Israel's statehood, was climaxed with a Salute to Israel parade up Fifth Avenue and a speech by Begin at a rally in Central Park.

"I say to our Arab neighbors, give up all your designs that Israel can be destroyed by force of arms," Begin said. "Israel will never be destroyed. Never!

"I call upon you on behalf of the people of Israel," he said. "Let us sit down and negotiate peace, negotiate peace!"

The crowd interrupted Begin's speech with applause 25 times and greeted him with chants of "Begin! Begin! Begin!"

Earlier in the day, at the taping of NBC's Meet the Press, Begin said he has "great hope" that peace talks between Israel and Egypt, broken off nearly four months ago, will be renewed.

tect their own shores and shipping lanes. But they are unwilling to go along with general rules which would apply to their vessels, in other people's waters. They want to protect their own, whether it be a ship or a load of oil.

There are essentially two main areas of environmental protection under debate: the territorial sea, extending twelve miles offshore, and the economic zone, extending out 200 miles.

The one causing the most grief to the Canadian team here is the struggle to draft an effective sea law on protection of the territorial sea.

Draft language introduced at an earlier session by Britain would have the effect of restricting the powers of coastal states — in quite minute detail — to lay down rules for sea safety. They would be bound by "generally accepted rules or standards" which simply do not effectively exist and which Canada, among others, had hoped the conference at Geneva would lay down.

Tests Find Pinto Deadly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. transportation department today issued a preliminary finding that 1.9 million Ford Pintos and 30,000 Mercury Bobcats built during the 1971-1976 model years have potentially deadly fuel system flaws.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said tests of the Pinto showed a rear end crash at low or moderate speeds could puncture or tear the fuel tank or separate the filler pipe from the tank, causing "massive fuel leaks" and fires.

The safety administration said information supplied by Ford said that Mercury Bobcats "utilize essentially the same structures as Pintos of contemporary manufacture, and their fuel systems and related components are identical to those employed in such Pintos."

Based on that information, the safety administration concluded that "the crash performance of Bobcat fuel tanks and filler pipes would be comparable to that of the Pinto."

Two of 12 Pinto crash tests produced fires, the agency said. It said lawsuits against Ford Motor Co. back up government test results by showing that wrecks involving Pintos struck from the rear have resulted in burn injuries, some of them fatal.

The safety administration's notice of initial determination of a safety defect is one of the last steps in the process leading to a mandatory recall, a safety administration spokesman said.

A public hearing was scheduled for June 14 to allow Ford to present its views.

The agency said its findings apply only to 1.9 million Pinto and 30,000 Bobcat passenger cars built in the 1971-1976 model years. Station wagons are not included, it said.

Ride a Whale? 'Not Me,' Says Trainer

SCHRAGE
. . . Haida has his respect

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Sealand killer whale trainer Cees Schrage wouldn't be caught dead climbing into the same pool as Haida.

"Not me," he says. "I wouldn't take the risk."

He thinks people who do are courting trouble.

As far as Schrage is concerned, whale's backs are not for riding, nor their pools for swimming, at least by humans.

"If I want to ride I'll get on a horse," he says. "But to do that with a whale . . . frankly I'd be too scared."

He says 13-year-old Haida, like all killer whales, is temperamental and moody, perhaps even more so because he's a male.

He wouldn't venture into the pool with the whale even though he's worked with Haida for several years and there's an obvious close bond between the two.

"The problem is he likes company. If I went in he probably wouldn't let me out. And who would I be to argue. He weighs 4½ tons; I weigh 200 pounds. He can stay underwater for 15 to 20 minutes. But what he doesn't understand is we humans can't."

Schrage (the name's pronounced schraw-haw) says he thinks Haida likes him most of the time, but when the whale doesn't he lets him know by spitting at him or trying to grab Schrage by the leg and give him a nip with his razor-sharp teeth.

Schrage says he used to do a kissing act with Haida.

One day Haida performed the trick sloppily and Schrage made him do it again. The whale didn't want to but Schrage insisted and knelt by the pool encouraging him. Haida circled and then exploded out of the water hitting Schrage on the face, sending him sprawling.

Schrage says he picked himself up and decided to try once more. He went to the pool edge and gave the cue again for kissing.

This time Haida came out with his mouth wide open. Schrage jumped away and as he did so, he says, he could hear the snap of the whale's jaws clamping shut.

"I never bothered with the trick again . . . and never will," he says.

Still Schrage doesn't believe killer whales are inherently dangerous to humans and seldom mean harm.

"What you must have above anything," says Schrage, "is respect."

Boat Capsizes, Woman Drowns in Cowichan

A young woman drowned in the Cowichan River Sunday afternoon when an inflatable boat in which she was rafting overturned, trapping her under a log.

Duncan RCMP said Debborah Anne Carson, 21, of Duncan, was thrown into the river with her husband Wayne, 38, and a neighbor, Richard Agitheitkoetter, 16, when the raft was caught in strong current near a jam of debris in four to five feet of water.

All were wearing lifejackets, but the woman apparently failed to surface from the spill because her legs were caught between a submerged log and other debris.

Carson and the 16-year-old went to her assistance immediately when they saw through the clear water that she was pinned. Police said they were not successful until Carson went underwater and forced the log away with his feet.

The trio had ridden the three-man inflatable about 1½ miles downstream to a point off Riverbottom Road near a bible camp when they approached the obstruction and swift water.

The mishap was the second in two days in B.C. involving rubber rafts.

A search was to resume today for two teen-aged girls missing since Friday when a rubber raft overturned on the Mamquam River about nine kilometres upriver from Squamish, 60 kilometres north of Vancouver.

An RCMP spokesman said Sunday a male teen-ager who was also on the raft made it to shore and notified police. The teen-agers, from Vancouver, had been picnicking in the area, the spokesman said.

Names were withheld by police.

SOME CLOUD THEN SUN

Calm, bright weather may suffer a minor setback as clouds move over coastal B.C. tonight and Tuesday morning, but a return to sunshine is forecast for most of the week.

The five-day outlook is for clear sky with short overcast.

Two days of warm sunshine at the weekend equalled the year's top temperature for this area, 18 degrees at Patricia Bay weather office both Saturday and Sunday. At Gonzales obervatory the thermometer rose to 17 degrees Sunday, up one from Saturday.

Speedway Sponsor Ban 'Disciminatory'

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. government policy prohibiting breweries from sponsoring motorsport events is unrealistic and discriminatory, the manager of Western Speedway said today.

Tony Mortel said it doesn't make sense to penalize car racing by denying the sport such sponsorship when breweries are allowed to support other athletic endeavors, like baseball.

He said drinking alcohol is prohibited at Western Speedway, off Millstream Road, and those involved in the sport have strict policies about the participants and their use of alochol or drugs while driving.

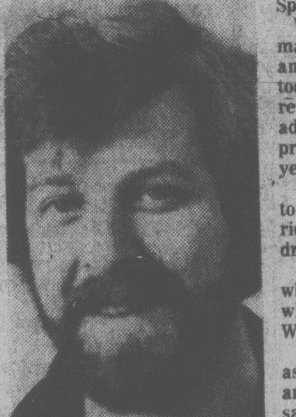
Mortel said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, responsible for the liquor administration branch, is "way off base on this one.

"He's picking on the wrong group of people."

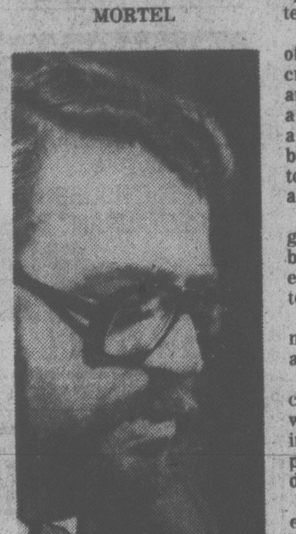
Until this year, Carling O'Keefe had been the speedway's prime sponsor but had been reducing its involvement over the past few years. As a result, Mortel worked out a deal last winter with Labatt's to transfer sponsorship.

However, the government then informed Labatts that there was to be no further connection between alcohol and auto racing.

The speedway has negotiated a deal with Gray Beverage Co., local distributors of Pepsi-Cola, to provide some money and a large number of Victoria businesses have also rallied to Speedway's cause.



MORTEL



MAIR

Vic Woodland, general manager of the liquor control and licensing branch, said today the policy stems from a review of the government's advertising, marketing and promotional code about 1½ years ago.

The policy backs up the attorney-general's campaign to rid the highways of drinking drivers, he said.

"Drinking and driving, wheels and alcohol, this is what our big problem is," Woodland said.

The idea is to eliminate any association between driving and alcoholic beverages, he said. There is also a policy of disallowing breweries to sponsor midget or junior teams of any kind.

Woodland said it is all part of a national trend toward cracking down on drinking and driving. He said a national advertising, marketing and promotional code is being worked on which will toughen up the policies in this area.

Woodland said there is a growing national feeling that breweries should be prohibited from advertising completely.

Mortel said the government's policy is hypocritical and unrealisitic.

He said the government cracks down on motorsports while at the same time allowing beer parlors to have huge parking lots for the beer drinkers to park their cars.

"For a free enterprise government, they are certainly very selective about choosing who is free," Mortel said.

He said alcohol is sold at Sandown race track and there is no reason to believe that horse race fans are any more responsible than those who fancy car racing.

He said he wrote a letter to Mair in March and didn't get a reply until he phoned the minister's office "and raised hell."

He then replied to Mair's letter April 3 countering the minister's statements and has not yet had a reply.

He said he is considering taking some form of legal action but won't consult Western Speedway's lawyer until after he hears from Mair.

FESTIVAL WINDUP SET

The concert, one of the most versatile presented in recent years, begins and ends with ensemble performances.

The St. Patrick's School speech choir will open with two pieces, and the evening will close with the Metropolitan United Church Choir directed by Don Kyle.

In between there will be dance items: Kim and Nicole Martin's My One and Only Highland Fling, and from ballet classes, a Valse choreographed by Maureen Eastick.

Award-winning violinists David Lowe, Alan Horgan (who won the prestigious Congress of Strings Scholarship), and Mark Neumann who will represent Victoria at the Provincial Festival, will be heard in solos. Piano representatives at the Provincial, Miranda Wong and Bob Tweten, will play Chopin and Bartok respectively, and also from piano classes there will be Noni Urquhart, Marlis Neumann, Melinda Cownden, and Arne Sahlen (City Medallion winner).

Singers Carmen Gozdan and Anne Bennett (Rose Bowl and Provincial representative) are taking part and cellist Marlene Tureski will play a portion of the beautiful Saint Saens Cello Concerto with orchestral part performed at the piano by Anne Crose.

Karen Hough playing the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata for Horn and Piano with Heather Pidcock, and Janet Underhill accompanied by Wendy Stofer playing two movements of a Vivaldi Concerto for Bassoon, are also chosen for the Provincial Festival. Wind players who received enthusiastic praise from adjudcator Martin Boundy — Isabel Ramsay and Philip Thompson — will be heard in a Telemann Sonata for two flutes.

Target: Vice-Principals

Greater Victoria school superintendent Allan Stables has recommended vice-principals be sent back to the teaching ranks after a maximum of seven years if they fail to win promotion to principal.

In a special report to the school board, Stables suggests an organizational policy change that would weed out "career vice-principals," some of whom have been in their jobs 20 years.

The position should be regarded as training for principalship, not a career in itself, Stables says in a paper scheduled for discussion at the board's June 26 meeting.

The change would eliminate ineffective administrators and bring new blood into the system by providing opportunities for ambitious young people.

A new set of criteria would be established to judge vice-principals on a yearly basis, with a major evaluation after five years. If candidates are judged unsatisfactory for jobs as principals, they would return to the classroom as teachers.

Two-year extensions would be granted under special circumstances, Stables says in his report.

Greater Victoria Teachers Association president Syd Langhelt said today such a change could have positive effects for younger ambitious teachers, particularly women, who want to move into the administrative ranks.

Upward mobility at present is hampered by declining enrolment, which creates a "real bottleneck of administrators," he said. "They get locked into a position and remain static."

He also welcomed the idea of administrators getting back to their roots as teachers, but said some protection must be arranged for the incumbents who have been vice-principals as long as 20 years.

Stables recommends a one-year notice be given to all vice-principals before the change takes place.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is there such a body of water called the Greenland Sea. M.M.

A. Yes. It is part of the Atlantic Ocean. It lies between Spitsbergen on the northeast and Greenland and Iceland on the south and west. Its greatest width is 500 miles.

Q. The old Christmas Day came on Jan. 6. Why did they change it to Dec. 25? When did New Year's Day come after Jan. 6? A.F.S.

A. Bishop Liberius of Rome ordered people to celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25 in A.D. 354. Christians of Egypt celebrated Christmas on Jan. 6 and many members of the Eastern Orthodox Church still do. New Year's Day became Jan. 1 when the Gregorian calendar was introduced. The Julian calendar places the first day of the year 13 days later on Jan. 14.

To the Music Master, a Fond Farewell

LASZLO GATI, THE music master, will not be coming up to Campbell River any more, and even such a drastically non-musical person as I must feel that we have lost a friend.

For Gati's popularity with local concert audiences was nothing less than fantastic. He held us in his hand.

Twice a season or thereabouts, Gati would bring the Victoria Symphony Orchestra — or as much of it as he could stuff, with instruments, into a couple of buses — north to play for us. At first, the concerts were held in the local junior high school. When that burned down we worried that lack of an adequate stage might throw a crimp into Gati's visitations.

But with cheerful adaptability, the maestro made do with the stage-plus-makeshift-extension provided by our Van Isle Theatre.

Gati gave us more than good music. We were a mixed audience; enthusiastic, but in many cases ignorant of the conventions that attend the presentation of symphonic selections. We clapped in all the wrong places. Gently and always with the kindest good humor, Gati took us in hand.

In layman's language, he unravelled the music for us. He deepened our appreciation and understanding of each movement by telling us what it was about. Without a trace of condescension, Lazslo Gati contributed to our musical education.

We liked him. I venture to think that he liked conducting for us. We repaid his efforts with full-house audiences, and with standing ovations.

Good luck to him in his new endeavor . . . but let the good man know that we up here will miss him.

As a puzzled ex-Victorian, I find myself hard-pressed to follow Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's reasoning when he urges another major shopping centre on a downtown which is obviously not straining its present facilities.

I suggest that any outfit so unwise as to launch yet another downtown department store, or shopping complex, would be flying directly in the face of Victoria's over-all development pattern. And as such, its sponsors would be courting disaster.

Increasingly, downtown is going to be tourist country — and all the more so when the city finds the sense and the wherewithal to build that needed but long-delayed convention centre.

For its salvation, downtown must look more to the visitor and less to the resident. Why, after all, in a city of extensive and spacious suburbs, should the year-round resident discommode himself by shopping to any great extent downtown?

He's got it all there in his local shopping centre, plus welcome freedom from traffic congestion. This to the extent that anyone planning another department store for Greater Victoria would, as a matter of basic business savvy, choose an open, suburban location.

The future of downtown Victoria isn't hard to predict. As a matter of fact, it can be previewed in Vancouver's Georgia-Granville-Robson area.

What you will find there, predominantly, is the smart specialty shop, tourist-oriented, and a variety of restaurants, all of which to the casual eye appear to be flourishing.

For Bawlf, a precept to ponder: Left to the residents, downtown will continue its downhill course. If you want to perk it up, go after those tourists.

We are now out of the "R" months, but in this cold spring, the oysters are still far from spawning. So today we will tap an oyster bed down the line for a dozen or so of its highly-superior bivalves. These will be dredged in flour, then tumbled with bread-morsels in a smoking-hot pan, and fried in butter.

A brisk peppering, a final touch of Worcester sauce, and they will be ready for the table

Pepper-pan oysters . . . Can any man eat better?

Dial 911 for Emergency?

An emergency dialling system that would allow residents in the four core municipalities to dial 911 when they need police, fire or medical help will be considered by the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee at a meeting Tuesday.

The dialling system was rejected by the committee in 1975 because it was too expensive.

Saanich's fire and emergency committee asked the intermunicipal body to take another look at the matter because of a letter from area resident Marilyn Wilkins.

She complained that in times of emergency seven-digit numbers are too long and hard to remember

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Advancing oil issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher today in active mid-afternoon trading.

Trading was halted about 1 p.m. in shares of Cara Operations Ltd. after the stock climbed 2⅛ to a new high of $16 a share on the sale of 2,200 shares.

Hambro Canada Ltd. has said it was considering a merger between Foodex, which last traded at $7¼ a share, and a wholly-owned subsidiary. Hambro holds a 58-per-cent interest in the company.

Canadian Vickers was halted pending the results of negotiations between its parent company and an unidentified company for the sale of its 72-per-cent interest. Canadian Vickers last traded at $30¾ a share.

Canadian International Power Co. Ltd. Class A shares were up six cents to $2.00 a share following its opening resumption after the company announced its third distribution of assets. Class B last traded at $22⅛ a share.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B gained 2 to $47, Consumers Distributing 1¼ to $12, Westburne International 1¼ to $23¼, Home Oil A 1 to $41¾ and Canadian Occidental Petroleum 1 to $18½.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market managed a small gain today in response to a strong showing by the dollar in Europe.

The dollar rose against most European currencies, apparently fueling hopes for continued interest in U.S. stocks among foreign investors.

Traders also seemed to respond favorably to news that Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' oil ministers had adjourned a weekend meeting without making any plans to increase prices.

Saudi Arabia's Ahmed Zaki Yamani was quoted as saying he didn't expect any oil price increase through the rest of 1978.

Continental Oil picked up 1 to $30 and Exxon rose ¾ to $49⅜. Both companies are taking part in the search for oil and gas in the Atlantic Ocean off New Jersey.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 310,300 shares, compared with 350,600 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

Alcan climbed ⅜ to $31½, Brunswick Mining and Smelting 15 cents to $3.35, Inco A ¼ to $18⅝, Bell Canada ⅜ to $56¼ and Kaiser Resources ¼ to $14½. Trans-Canada Pipelines dipped ⅛ to $14⅝, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅛ to $29⅛ and FCA International five cents to $2.40.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices slipped fractionally near the close of light trading today on the London stock market.

The Financial Times index was down 0.7 to 480.8 an hour before the close.

Leading industrials declined, while gold shares were mixed.

Canadian issues advanced.

Auto Prices Boosted

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has followed the lead of General Motors Corp. on and announced a price increase averaging 1.4 per cent or $90 on all its 1978 model cars.

The price increase, to take effect today, includes an average $56 on the suggested retail price a car and an average $34 on options.

The action by the No. 3 U.S. auto-maker was expected after GM, the trend-setter in auto prices in the United States, announced a 1.4-per-cent or $100 a car average price increase.

Like GM, Chrysler said its "moderate" increase only partly offsets the increased costs of material and labor since the last general price increase at the start of the model year.

Chrysler said it supports U.S. President Jimmy Carter's effort to control inflation and that the price increase "is in line with his effort to achieve deceleration of prices."

Chrysler also said that, like GM, it had discussed the price increase with Robert Strauss, the president's inflation counsellor.

Though domestic automakers have raised prices several times on 1978 small cars, the increases this week are the first across-the-board ones since 1978 models were introduced. Ford Motor Co. is expected to follow suit.

Western Mines

Western Mines Ltd. is in a good position to ride out the current dismal state of the mining industry, company president Hugh Snyder said.

"The company is well-placed to take advantage of any significant improvements in metal prices, through its on-going operations, its wide-ranging exploration program and its ability to participate in a suitable investment," he told shareholders.

Net earnings before extraordinary items in the first three months this year were $480,963 or nine cents a share, compared with $389,236 or seven cents a share in the same period last year. Extraordinary gains in both periods boosted final profit figures to $498,963 in 1978 and to $503,236 in 1977.

Revenue was $3,565,286, down from $4,050,541.

Gold and silver accounted for 48 per cent of the net smelter return, compared with 33 per cent last year, while zinc's share was down from 37 per cent at 25 per cent.

Snyder said most zinc and copper producers can not continue to operate at today's depressed prices levels, but prices should shoot up significantly when present inventories run out.

Snyder said Western is participating in 24 exploration projects with 14 partners. It is cutting down its exploration budget from $1.4 million last year to $1 million in 1978.

It will manage an additional $2.6 million of expenditures, Snyder said.

Versatile Mfg.

Versatile Manufacturing Ltd. of Winnipeg reported unaudited first quarter consolidated net income of $2,102,000, or 71 cents per share, compared with $4,083,000, or $1.37 per share, for the same period last year.

Consolidated net sales for the first quarter were $33,864,000 compared with $33,669,000 for the same period last year.

Paul M. Soubry, the company's chief executive officer, said in a statement one reason for the decline in profit margin was higher operating costs, including interest charges and special sales programs designed to meet competitive pressures.

He also said anti-inflation controls on price increases and the low level of production at the company's Fargo, N. D. plant caused the drop in profitability.

Redpath Ind.

Redpath Industries Ltd. reported its net earnings dropped to $2.4 million or 76 cents a share in the six-month period ended March 31 from $3.2 million or $1.01 in the comparable period a year ago.

Revenue increased to $119.7 million from $86.3 million.

The company attributed the profit decline partly to losses incurred in sugar refining operations in the United States and to lower sales of plastic drainage pipel.

Unusually poor weather conditions affected results in both areas, it said.

The company said Refined Syrups and Sugars Inc., New York, suffered intense competition from imported sugar into the northeastern U.S. before the start of the International Sugar Agreement on Jan. 1.

In addition, government levies on sugar imports designed to assist domestic sugar producers also caused a heavy buildup of inventories, ie said.

The additional stockpile of sugar resulted in erosion of margins with a consequent adverse effect on the New-York based company.

It said the aluminum operations of Daymond Ltd. have been moved to the new plant in Chatham, Ont., with the expanded capacity expected to result in improved efficiency and a reduction of labor costs.

Packaging division sales and profits were satisfactory, the company said, adding that improved resuots in all areas are expected in the second half.

Greyhound Comp.

Recent investments in new equipment should put Greyhound Computer of Canada Ltd. in a position for future growth, says company president W. D. Maunder.

At the recent annual meeting, Maunder said Greyhound expects to purchase several million dollars worth of IBM processors.

"These purchases should make a substantial contribution to our results during the next few years and put Greyhound on a growth curve once again," he said.

Trans-Mountain

Trans-Mountain Pipe Line Co. reported net earnings of $1,147,000 or 15.1 cents a share for the three months ended March 31, down from $1,333,000 or 17.6 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

Operating revenue was down to $6,575,000 compared with $6,725,000 in the first three months of 1977.

In a report to shareholders, chairman E. C. Hurd and president K. L. Hall said a portion of the decrease in profits was due to a National Energy Board directive which caused the company to increase by about $260,000 the amount provided for depreciation.

The company's average daily delivery of oil was 147,643 barrels compared with 154,458 during the first three months of 1977.

Reed Paper

The financially-troubled Reed Paper Ltd. has managed to check a major slide in profits, although it recorded another loss in the first three months of this year.

In a report to shareholders, Reed reported a loss of $4.5 million or 27 cents a share for the first quarter, compared with a net loss of $1.5 million or 21 cents a share in the same 1977 quarter.

But the loss in the last three months was less than half of the $9.2 million recorded in the last quarter of 1977.

Company officials said they were encouraged by the drop in red ink and expect to further reduce the deficit in the second quarter of this year.

Reed said the major reasons for the deficit were the almost 20 per cent drop in the price of market kraft pulp and "significantly higher interest charges."

"In addition, the company's share of the profit of the British Columbia joint venture mills declined by $1.4 million."

Part of the improvement in the first quarter can be attributed to a more favorable exchange rate, the company said. But they also gave credit to changes made in the company organization.

In the quarter, Reed completed the sales of its drapery and furniture operations. It also plans to divest two unprofitable bag and sack manufacturing plants and related distribution centres in eastern Canada.

Denny Coverdale readies one of his pets for new owner

First Boat Off Line At Sidney Shipyard

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Philbrook's Shipyard Ltd. at Sidney has produced its first production sailboat for distribution in Canada and the United Staes.

She's the Fast Passage 39, off the drawing board of local architect Bill Garden whose designs have made him internationally famous.

Seven hulls have been completed and at least one of the new boats will compete in this year's Swiftsure.

She is now being prepared for her owner, George Galpin of Seattle, who has asked Philbrook's sailboat production manager Denny Coverdale to take command for the annual classic.

A veteran racer, Coverdale will have local sailors Grant Mebs, Al Kelly, Rod Andrews and Kelpy Cavanaugh rounding out the crew.

It was a chance meeting between Coverdale and David Howe of Seattle while cruising in 1975 that triggered the Fast Passage 39 project.

Howe owns Bolero which Garden designed for an old boatbuilder friend, Jimmy Hillman, about 20 years ago. Hillman built her just inside the Ballard Locks in Seattle.

The two boats cruised together for a few days and by the time they parted Coverdale had decided a modernized Bolero was for him.

In co-operation with Philbrook president Don Dobie, Garden began working on a production version in the fall of that year.

While Bolero had a long cruising keel the Fast Passage 39 has a shorter keel and a rudder skeg with deep rudder blade.

"This is a great advantage in fast directional control during tight starts, or marks when racing, and for the cruiser, fast dodging ability when, God help us, under the bows of a ship," Garden says.

The lines of Bolero's interior are also vastly different.

"The accommodations of the two are equally far apart and with Fast Passage 39 we simply started forward with a good two-berth coastal cabin, then lockers, a sit-around saloon, a galley," Garden said. "Then we started again from aft with the cockpit size we needed and between these developed ends was space for a stateroom or sunken deckhouse and, to starboard, a head and chart table plus a passage berth or storage option.

"I like the layout. The little aft stateroom is a good place to hide when you're racing and away behind, or just to get away."

The Fast Passsage 39, which can be either sloop or cutter-rigged, has a designed-in space in the main cabin for a fireplace or oil-fired cabin heater.

Three of the new boats have been bought by Seattle sailors, one went to Vancouver, another to Toronto and another was sold to an Oliver couple. Vicotoria sailor Dr. P.C. Clark has the seventh.

HOLIDAY SOLUTION TO UNEMPLOYMENT

WORTHING, England (Reuter) — Union leader Terry Duffy says one way of combating high unemployment — give workers every 10th year off on full pay.

He told a union conference here it also would create thousands of jobs if Britain developed a 24-hour society with around-the-clock shift work and entertainment.

Duffy, who was elected president of Britain's second biggest union, the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers, said the country's unemployment figure of 1,451,000 was totally unacceptable.

Europe and the United States should help in a world-wide effort "to reduce the working week, the working year, the working life," he added.

That Amber Hue To Take 20 Years

Henceforth, Saanich municipality's street lighting system will be forever amber.

But the conversion process from the present mercury vapor lighting to the energy-saving high-pressure sodium vapor type will take at least 20 years.

Officials estimate that on the basis of present power rates a sodium light costs $1 a month less to operate than the mercury type.

If the rates remained unchanged it would take eight years to write off the capital cost of installation, but with the certainty of steadily climbing hydro charges the pay-back period is expected to be much shorter.

Council made the first commitment to change in mid-January, when it adopted a resolution "that Saanich establish a policy for street lighting whereby any future installations will be made with sodium luminaires where feasible."

The second step came last week when council included in its 1978 budget $50,000 for the engineering department to make a start on the conversion program.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren says the amount should cover the installation of about 300 sodium lights on three or four miles of arterial and collector roads.

As Saanich has a 200-mile road network and about 6,000 street lighting units, the changeover to the new type will take about 20 years to complete.

The conversion program will concentrate on mercury vapor units which become due for routine, five-year bulb replacement.

Aside from the operating economies which will benefit municipal coffers, the sodium lighting policy is good news to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

For years the observatory has been trying to persuade local municipalities to adopt the yellowish sodium lights rather than the bluish-green mercury vapor variety, with the aim of reducing ultraviolet emissions which hamper telescope observation.

How many times have you decided to quit smoking?

At one time or another most people who smoke talk about giving it up.

Some, we don't know how many, actually stop. Others are simply not ready to lose forever the enjoyment a cigarette can bring.

If you are one of those who still value the pleasure of smoking, you might want to consider Vantage.

When you smoke Vantage you get the full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. The Vantage filter, which is based on a new design concept, lets real taste come through. Vantage gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.

Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked—avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Spriggs Tops Expert Class

Martin Spriggs edged out Ron Wilson on the last lap Sunday to win the expert class in the Millstream Trial held off Millstream Road by the Victoria Motorcycle Club.

Spriggs, riding a Yamaha, accumulated 46 points under the reverse-scoring system while Wilson, who lost on on the final few checks, had 48.

Results:

SENIORS: 1. Peter Wille, Montessa, 10; 2. Brad McMahon, Lake Cowichan, Yamaha, 46; 3. Greg Lohrmann, Yamaha, 47.

Victorians Win Three

BURNABY — Victoria athletes picked up three victories during the annual Vancouver Relays held Saturday at Swangard Stadium.

Debbie Scott of Esquimalt Athletics won the women's 1,500 metres with a time of four minutes, 26.8 seconds; Wendy Davies of Victoria Track Club topped the 400-metre hurdles in 61.9 and Cheryl Noble of Victoria Mercuries claimed first place in the 100 metres.

Brent Fougner of VTC finished second in the triple jump while third-place finishes were recorded by Craig Taylor (long jump) and Joanne Rogers (100 metres), both of Esquimalt Athletics.

Esquimalt relay squads finished second in the women's 4×800 and third in the 4×100.

A's Blank Bradner; Breeze to Cup Semis

Victoria Athletics romped into the semi-finals of the Province Cup competition by blanking Bradner Red Shirts 5-0 Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Athletics, who topped the Vancouver Island Soccer League's Jackson Cup competition, went ahead when striker George Pakos blasted in two goals at 33 and 43 minutes.

Peter Zachary made it 3-0 with 13 minutes left to play and Joe Mendonca and Dave McCaig finished off scoring with goals at 87 and 89 minutes, respectively.

Bradner, who topped the knockout competition in the Fraser Valley League, missed a chance to get on the scoresheet when Ron Price went wide on a penalty shot at 85 minutes.

Athletics, who won the Province Cup and then went on to capture the Canadian title as London Boxing Club in 1975, now advance to the semi-finals on the May 20-21 weekend.

Cosmopolitan Royals, who earned the other Island berth by reaching the Jackson Cup final, will play their quarter-final match against Langley Borsato on May 14 in Langley.

At the annual VISL awards banquet Saturday night, McCaig was chosen as the rookie-of-the-year, Dan Lomas of University of Victoria Vikings received the Wilf Sadler Memorial Trophy as the player best combining sportsmanship and ability, Prospect Lake won the Referees' Trophy as the most sportsmanlike team and vice-president Dave Unwin collected the McDonald Trophy as executive of the year.

Most-valuable-player awards went to Robbie Williams of Victoria West (first division), Steve Vigor of Castaways (second division), Jos de Bruin of Oak Bay (third division) and George Paul of Saanich Police (fourth division).

NAMDOR FOURTH IN JUNIOR TOURNEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Teams from Quebec topped both the men's and women's competitions Sunday at the Canadian junior volleyball championships.

In the men's final, Montreal Hochelaga defeated Sherbrooke, Que. The Oaks from Guelph, Ont., won third place with a victory over Esquimalt Namdor.

In the women's final, defending champion Jonquieres, Que., beat South Shore, another Quebec entry. The Manitoba team came third.

NEW ESSO EXTRA PREMIUM UNLEADED

High-octane performance that could help solve 3 problems!

This is remarkable gasoline.

Esso Research designed it to solve three kinds of driving problems for users of unleaded fuel.

- Knocking and pinging.
- Engine run-on.
- Poor mileage.

Read about them.

If your car has any one of them, the solution may be in your first full tank of new Esso Extra Unleaded.

1. Your car knocks or pings when you accelerate.

You can hear it. And it worries you.

It's that pinging sound from the engine when you step on the gas. It can also spell damage.

One of the easiest ways to handle it is to move up to premium gasoline.

Because premium gasoline has more knock-resisting hydrocarbons than regular gas.

Now, with Esso Extra Unleaded, you can put premium gasoline in a car designed for unleaded fuel.

So you can reduce—or possibly eliminate—knock.

And enjoy all the benefits of high-octane performance.

2. Your engine runs on after you turn it off.

Is there anything more frustrating than an engine that runs on and on and on after you've turned the key off?

Shaking, sputtering and back-firing as you walk away from the car.

Esso Extra Unleaded can help you reduce—or possibly eliminate—run-on.

With its highly refined blend of octane-rich gasoline stocks.

If run-on with regular unleaded is your problem, move up to high-octane performance.

3. Your engine's timing could be cheating you of mileage.

You retard the engine's timing to get rid of knock.

Unfortunately, it also cuts down on fuel economy.

When we surveyed 1000 cars that need unleaded gas, we found that 1 in 7 were running with the timing retarded.

An average of 4.6 degrees.

And some of the owners didn't even know it!

If they use Esso Extra Unleaded and reset their engine timing to manufacturer's specifications they could expect up to 5% better mileage. That could be worth up to 4 or 5¢ per gallon.

With knock or run-on reduced or possibly eliminated.

MILEAGE OFFER: timing check & reset
$5.95 or less.

In about 20 minutes, a participating Esso dealer will check your engine's timing.

And reset it to manufacturer's specifications if necessary.

Your car could give you up to 5% better mileage with specified timing and Esso Extra Unleaded.

High-octane performance for older cars too.

Drivers of most cars that now use premium gasoline: Esso Extra Unleaded delivers the high-octane performance you expect.

And there's no lead to deposit anywhere. So spark plugs, mufflers and tail pipes will last longer.

How much longer depends on where and how you drive. But last longer they will. That's real money to be saved.

A real reason to switch from any other premium gas you may be using now.

Now-2 grades of Unleaded

Esso Research brings you two high-quality unleaded fuels: Esso 2000 and premium Esso Extra Unleaded.

If your car runs right on regular unleaded, stay with Esso 2000.

But if it knocks or runs on with regular unleaded, switch to new high-octane Esso Extra Unleaded.

If your car needs unleaded and retarded timing's been robbing you of mileage, a reset and Esso Extra Unleaded can improve fuel economy up to 5%.

And if you now use Esso Extra, just keep coming in. Esso Extra is still high-performance gasoline. Only it's unleaded now.

For Unhappy Athlete, Brian Laughs a Lot

Situation Wanted, Male:
World superstar, adept at cycling, swimming, gymnastics, rowing and track, seeks starting position with pro soccer team. Can double as PR man, after-dinner speaker and resident flake. Apply Brian Budd, care-of Colorado Caribous. No triflers.

Brian Budd, Superstar, is patiently explaining that he is not AWOL from Colorado Caribous. "They know I'm gone," he says, "They just don't know where I am."

While the Caribous were in Washington Sunday losing their North American Soccer League game 2-0 to the Diplomats, Budd was at Empire Stadium watching Vancouver Whitecaps beat Portland 1-0. "What the hell," he said. "I've got as much chance of playing here as I'd have if I was there. More, maybe. You might say things are not going well."

They are, of course. They've never gone better.

Last June he made $15,000 winning the Canadian Superstars. That earned him a trip to the Bahamas, where he won the World Superstars and another $39,400 in two days last March. In a few weeks he defends his Canadian title, and as defending champion he gets a bye into the next worlds and another shot at the big money.

He has a manager. He is a client of the Mark McCormack agency, which handles people like Arnold Palmer. Television commercials are in the offing. The endorsements are starting to come in. He's off to Toronto to appear on Front Page Challenge ("Me and Gordon and Pierre and those types.") and 90 Minutes Live. He is 26, and life is still one big yuk.

There is only one problem.

He makes all his money in off-beat events at which he is an amateur. As a pro soccer player, he can't find a job.

It was soccer that gave him the opportunity to enter Superstars, a competition not for the man on the street, however athletic he may be. Budd was eligible only because he played for the Whitecaps.

You know how Superstars works: competitors pick certain events but aren't allowed to compete in their specialty. "He'll win," the locals said when they heard the rules. "He's got a big advantage: he doesn't have to enter the soccer."

Soccer people here were never overly impressed by Budd. Apparently the Whitecaps weren't, either. When he got back from the Canadians he was permanently benched.

For a while it seemed he'd have to go to the worlds as "Brian Budd — Unattached." Then the Whitecaps sold him to the new Denver franchise, and he went off to win his $39,400. It seemed an ideal partnership: new franchise and talkative world Superstars champion to haul in the people. There was only one thing wrong: he hardly ever got to play.

"I played in one intra-squad game and scored eight goals," he says. "I played in an exhibition and scored two. But in five league games I've subbed twice. So I told them to trade me, and when they wouldn't I said to hell with it, I'm going on holidays."

So there he was Sunday, tanned and fit and laughing, tongue in overdrive, the only gear it possesses.

Naturally, he had an explanation for his present, rather ambiguous status with the Caribous.

"There are not hard feelings about this," he says. "Dave Clements, the coach, says there are three to six players he'll trade before he'll trade me. But they've got problems.

"They have eight or nine forwards for three positions. One of them, Sead Sucic, they bought from Red Star of Yugoslavia for something like $96,000 plus his salary, so they have to play him. He's got skills beyond compare. But he won't train and he won't work and when he gets on the field he's pathetic.

"I'm playing better now than I ever have. Face it, I had a crap year here. But now I've got it going. When I do get out there I'm a centre forward with two good wingers and for the first time I'm not afraid to just keep my eyes on the goal and let fire. Paddy McMahon, our captain, told me 'Brian, if I could bring one player on as a regular it would be you.'

"So how come I'm not playing?" he says indignantly. "I ask you, how come?"

Because he could get no better answer in Denver than he got here, Budd rose from his spot on the bench and issued an ultimatum. He has given Clements until May 17 to decide whether he'll play him or trade him. Meanwhile, he'll visit Toronto and discuss things with his manager, Peter Smith, who has been talking to other NASL clubs and, says Budd, has a couple of nibbles.

By happy coincidence, the Caribous' first game following the deadline is here on May 20 against the Whitecaps. Could Budd resist the show biz possibilities of that one? Can he not picture the headlines: Superstar Tramples Ex-Mates.

"Tell you the truth, I think I'll be back here to play the Whitecaps, but with another team," he says. "But I won't tell you which one. Not yet."

VISTAS OPEN WITH VICTORY

Victoria Vistas opened their inaugural season in the Pacific Northwest Soccer League with a victory Sunday, tripping North Vancouver Pegasus 1-0 before approximately 150 fans at Centennial Stadium.

Vistas, made up of players from nine different teams in the Vancouver Island League, showed promise despite playing together for the first time.

Steve Forslund scored the only goal needed by the Victoria club, deflecting a shot by Robbie Williams into the net at 31 minutes. Williams went in on a pass from Mike Hardy and then set up Forslund from about 20 yards out.

Victoria goaltender Ted Van Waes had an outstanding game, robbing former professional Doug Scorse, who played for Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American League last season, on three separate occasions and making several other key saves.

Pegasus, who suffered their first loss in three starts this season, were lucky not to have fallen further behind early in the match. Williams hit the cross-bar and Mark Robb bounced a shot off the post before the break

The victory moved Vistas into a three-way tie for third place with Fraser Valley and B.C. Selects, each with two points. Pegasus and Whitecaps Reserves share the lead with six points each and winless Seattle Sounders Reserves occupy the cellar.

Whitecaps Reserves edged Seattle 2-1 and Fraser Valley topped B.C. Selects 1-0 in matches played Friday on the Mainland.

Pacific Logging Fells Police

Pacific Logging topped Colwood RCMP 12-0 Sunday in Senior Men's Flag Football play at Braefoot Elementary School.

In other games, Juan de Fuca Vampires tripped Ex-Drakes 26-21, Black Crush blanked Remnants 26-0, Hollywood Park downed Coachlines Seagulls 30-8 and John Stubbs won over Shop Easy by default, 6-0.

MONTREAL ENJOYS COMMANDING LEAD

Kate Sings and Flyers Hum

Times News Services

Kate Smith made a comeback and so did Philadelphia Flyers but Toronto Maple Leafs are in trouble in the National Hockey League's best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Smith, whose rendition of God Bless America had spurred the Flyers to 49 victories in past seasons, had not been used as Philadelphia's good luck charm for quite some time because she had not brought them any luck.

"It wasn't my idea to have it played," said Philadelphia coach Fred Shero after the Flyers defeated the Bruins 3-1 Sunday to cut Boston's lead in the series to 2-1.

Montreal Canadiens, meanwhile, have taken a commanding 3-0 lead in their semi-final series with Toronto by defeating the Leafs 6-1 Saturday.

The Flyers' management tried everything to whip the crowd of 17,077 at the Spectrum into a frenzy. They had introductions of each member of the starting lineup with both lineups supposed to line up on their own bluelines.

Philadelphia's players did to the rousing cheers of Spectrum faithful, but the Boston players just stood at their bench until the introductions were over.

"They wanted us to line up next to the boards and come out like football players," said Cherry. "We are not going to do it."

The crowd was excited throughout the opening period as the Flyers and Bruins matched goals and Boston netminder Ron Grahame and Philadelphia's Bernie Parent played solidly.

Andre Dupont shot the Flyers into a 1-0 lead with a screened drive from the left point while Dave Hoyda was skating in front of Grahame.

The goal came at 10:36 and marked the first time in the series the Flyers had been in the lead. But Boston's Brad Park tied the score on a power play at 13:42 and it remained 1-1 until 11:56 of the middle session when Orest Kindrachuk converted Tom Bladon's rebound into his second goal of the semi-final on his second shot of the series

Bill Barber then put the game away at 3:32 of the third period, converting Bobby Clarke's pass from the right side of the net into his fifth goal of the playoffs.

Former Victoria Cougar junior Mel Bridgman had a hand in both of Philadelphia's first two goals.

There was no reason to fault Grahame, another Victoria graduate, on any of the goals, in fact Cherry thought he had played well.

"I thought he made some excellent saves," said Cherry. "I decided to start him at the start of the series. I did the same thing in the Chicago series. He won the first two games in that series in Boston and then (Gerry) Cheevers went out to Chicago and played."

The victory snapped Boston's six-game winning streak against Philadelphia in Stanley Cup play and was also their first loss in seven games this spring after they swept Chicago Black Hawks in a four-game quarter-final and won the first two games of the semi-final against the Flyers.

In Toronto, the Canadiens finally played up to their potential and their followers now are looking to a four-game sweep when the series resumes in Maple Leaf Gardens on Tuesday.

The Canadiens, buzzing Toronto goaltender Mike Palmateer from the opening face-off, scored three first-period goals and coasted to victory.

Montreal fired 39 shots at the little netminder, who had been outstanding in the playoffs so far, and got two goals from Guy Lafleur and singles from Steve Shutt, Rick Chartraw, Yvon Lambert and Jacques Lemaire.

The Leafs, who managed only three real scoring opportunities while turning in their worst effort of the playoffs, broke Ken Dryden's shutout bid at 8:50 of the second period with a goal by George Ferguson. Dryden never really was tested on the other 23 shots he faced.

Krimmer, Lee Take Pin Honors

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

The names in the bowling game are spares and strikes, those funny little marks on the scoresheets that are needed for winning tallies.

Dorothy Krimmer finally settled for the spare route and King Lee travelled the strike path most of the way as they made it like a meeting of old friends when it came time to present trophies Sunday at Town and Country lanes following fivepin competition in the 15th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Dorothy ran off a string of spares under final-game pressure to charge from behind and collect her third rolloff title with a three-game tally of 763, finishing eight points ahead of another former rolloff champion, Marie Fisher, and 23 in front of Evelyn Sholefield, the leader after two games.

Rolloff champion in 1973 and 1975, Dorothy joined May Wallis, last year's fivepin queen, as a three-time rolloff winner in the annual event.

King, also a former visitor to the presentation circle with a rolloff triumph in 1974, had his southpaw tosses on the headpin most of the way. Somewhat less than sensational on spare attempts, collecting only three over the three-game distance, Lee chalked up the remarkable total of 22 strikes, including 10 in the final game as he zoomed from fifth place to the title berth with a 344.

Combined with earlier games of 292 and 214, that 344 got Lee home with a total of 850 and a comfortable margin over steady Cliff Soady, who took second place with 784, eight points ahead of Ron Andrew and 14 ahead of Dennis Beckwith, the man who held a 39-point lead over Brian Smith after two games.

With their repeat victories, Krimmer and Lee each received a Times Trophy and King also picked up a bonus prize of $150 as a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times. Dorothy, unfortunately, is not a Times subscriber and missed out on the bonus award.

Bowlers qualified for the rolloffs during the 1977-78 season by winning weekly awards in the 26-week Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest, making 26 eligible for each rolloff. Perhaps because of Sunday's warm sunshine, only 14 ladies, their lowest-ever total, joined in the rolloff chase while 21 men went gunning for glory.

Tenpinners decided their rolloff titles the previous weekend with Emmy Plesch and Bob Willis collecting both trophies and bonus prizes.

Over the first two games, Krimmer notched 10 strikes and five spares as she posted tallies 274 and 241 for 515, holding down third place behind Fisher (527) and Scholefield (522).

She managed only two strikes in her last game, but ran off six spares that were enough to carry her to a third rolloff crown. Fisher punched a couple of headpins to finish with 228. Sholefield, threatening to take it all until she left the eighth frame open in the final game and losing her last chance in the 10th frame as she failed to mark when a three-strike finish would have moved her to the top, wound up with 218.

In his final game, Beckwith got away to a good start before hitting a string of six successive open frames, skidding into fourth place with a 206. Smith also bumped into big troubles and dropped to fifth with 203.

Soady, who had started with tallies of 281 and 239, climbed into the runner-up berth with a last-game 264 and Andrew grabbed the third spot as he followed games of 255 and 267 with a closing effort of 254.

Unger the Shadow Casts Bright Glow

PRAGUE (CP) — Garry Unger is enjoying his role as Team Canada's defensive specialist assigned to neutralize the top centres on opposing clubs at the world hockey championship.

The St. Louis Blues veteran who stands five-11 and weighs 170 pounds is teamed with Mike Murphy of Los Angeles Kings and Bob MacMillan of Atlanta Flames on the Canadian checking line. They call it the MUM line.

On Saturday, his personal task was to shadow Per-Olov Brasar and the result was that the No. 1 Swedish line of Brasar, Roland Eriksson and Mats Ahlberg failed to score in Canada's come-from-behind 7-5 win.

Prior to that, Unger had Czechoslovakian captain Ivan Hlinka as his charge and, although the Czechs won 5-0, Hlinka was blanked. And in Canada's 6-2 win over West Germany, bigh Erich Kuhnhackl was so effectively tied up that the big centre hardly had a shot on the net.

"Hlinka doesn't speak English but he got the message," said Unger. "He didn't want to have anything to do with me.

"But Brasar does speak English so I told him 'I'm sorry, I've got a simple job to do—I've got to cut your head off.' He was no trouble the rest of the night."

Unger, who scored 32 goals in the National Hockey League this season, hasn't a point in the this tournament.

But he won praise from coach Harry Howell. "He's had three tough centres in the last three games and he's won all the skirmishes. He's done a good, good job."

It would all have gone for nothing, however, if the Canadians hadn't recovered their scoring punch after falling behind 4-1 late in the second period.

The result is that, instead of seeing their medal hopes disappear, the Canadians are back in the fight, tied with Sweden for third place at 4-2.

A gold medal may be a bit beyond Canada's reach but a silver is still a possibility, especially if it can beat the Russians.

The Czechoslovakians, with a 6-0 record after handing the Soviet Union its first loss, a 6-4 beating Saturday, appear to be on their way to a third successive world title unless they suffer a letdown.

Howe Leads Whalers

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — To Mark Howe, imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

Howe watched New England Whalers team-mate Larry Pleau skate in on Quebec goaltender Richard Brodeur three times Sunday night and each time Brodeur stopped Pleau. But Howe saw something he liked.

"I liked the way Larry cut to the right and then to the left and I made up my mind that if I had the chance I'd use that move," Howe said. "I did and it worked."

Howe scored three goals and assisted on two others to lead the Whalers to a 6-3 victory over the Nordiques that enabled New England to clinch its best-of-seven World Hockey Association semi-final series 4-1.

New England now faces Winnipeg Jets in the final which gets under way here Friday night. The second game will go here Sunday night before the series shifts to Winnipeg for games three, four and five, if necessary.

The nice thing that manager Harvey Stevenson likes about some of the new additions to Victoria Budgets' lineup is the promise of added lefthanded batting power.

But the old guard of righthanders still produces for the reigning Canadian senior "A" men's softball champions.

New lefties and old righties both contributed as Budgets won three of four exhibition games against Abbotsford Rempel Brothers A's at the weekend.

Abbotsford rebounded to win the second game, 3-2, behind the strong pitching performance of Rudy Wiebe but Victoria hitting, both left and right, finally produced as Budgets swept Sunday's twin-bill, 5-0 and 7-1.

Right fielder Dennis Eckert, one of the rookie lefthanded hitters, cracked a three-run homer and a single to highlight the 5-0 victory. Eckert also scored the first (and winning) run after leading off the game with a walk and completing the circuit on a passed ball, wild pitch and an infield out.

The righthanders did their thing in the series finale. Catcher Bob Burrows, Stevenson and Randy Benn belted solo homers as Budget batters tagged Wiebe and reliever Peter Rempel for 10 hits. Benn, Underwood and sophomore Dave Williams, one of two holdover lefthanded batters, each collected two hits.

Sonics Square Series

By The Associated Press

Guard Fred Brown came off the bench at Denver to score 26 points and centre Marvin Webster made key blocks and baskets down the stretch, helping Seattle SuperSonics to a 121-111 victory Sunday over Denver Nuggets in National Basketball Association semi-final playoff action.

The Sonics victory squared the best-of-seven series at 1-1. Games three and four are scheduled in Seattle on Wednesday and Friday.

Elvin Hayes, playing at times like a man possessed, predicts the underdog Washington Bullets will finish off Philadelphia '76ers on Wednesday night.

"I know we're going to win the next game," Hayes said after his 35 points and 19 rebounds paced a 121-105 victory Sunday

CABLES CLIP MACS IN GOALIES' DUEL

BURNABY — Victoria McDonalds, who failed to capitalize on some early odd-man advantages, dropped a narrow 11-10 decision to Burnaby Cablevision in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game here Sunday.

The game featured outstanding goaltending by both teams.

Mike Duch of Victoria blocked 43 shots and Greg Pryde of Burnaby made 58 saves.

Derek Dickson scored three goals to lead Burnaby while Craig Wilson and Allan Kirk added two each and singles were contributed by Gordie Roberts, John Purdon, John Swan, Terry Bingley.

Petes Conquer Bruins

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A lot of desire overcame physical fatigue to carry Peterborough Petes to a 7-2 conquest of New Westminster Bruins in the Memorial Cup major junior hockey final, coach Gary Green claimed Sunday.

"Our guys weren't full of desire yesterday," said Green, referring to a 5-2 loss to Trois-Rivieres Draveurs in the opening game at Sault Ste. Marie on Saturday night, "but they were up today."

Mike Meeker and Bill Gardner scored two goals each for the Petes, champions of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League, and Tim Trimper scored one goal and assisted on three others in the convincing victory over New Westminster, defending champion from the Western Canada Hockey League.

Keith Crowder and Steve Larmer had Peterborough's other goals, while Larry Melnyk and Doug Derkson scored for the Bruins.

"I had quite a lot of confidence coming into this game today," Green said. "The mental attitude was much better today. The thing I was most concerned about was the physical drain."

That drain resulted from a seven-game Ontario final against Hamilton Fincups that ended last Wednesday night, a first-night game against the swift-skating Trois-Rivieres club from the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and a three-hour overnight bus trip here after the game.

A loss would have almost ended Peterborough's chances in the double-round-robin affair, in which the top two teams advance to the championship game next Saturday at the Sudbury Arena.

Milliken, Mick Gain Island Final

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The road was rough and rocky for one, smooth and easy for the other but both Grant Milliken and Dave Mick arrived at the same destination: next Sunday's 36-hole final for the 1978 Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

Milliken, the 1976 champion and last year's City Amateur winner, found the going toughest in Sunday's quarter-final and semi-final matches at Cedar Hill Golf Club. The 24-year-old Gorge Vale member has to fire sub-par golf to subdue tough Phil Scott of Glen Meadows 2 and 1 in the morning quarter-finals, and then went an extra hole to knock off Nanaimo's Sandy Harper in the afternoon semi-finals.

Mick, in contrast, breezed into next Sunday's playoff for the CFAX Trophy at Uplands. The 27-year-old dentist, a former member of British Columbia Willingdon Cup teams, reached the final for the first time by defeating Uplands greens superintendant Bill Shvetz 7 and 5 and then eliminating Cowichan's Alex Forward 6 and 5.

Mick went the 26 holes approximately six under par. Now playing out of Colwood, Mick was two under against Shvetz and four under against Forward.

The semi-finals, however, seemed almost anti-climatic when Harper, a former provincial junior champion, fired a dramatic eagle-two on the par-four 18th to upset Cec Ferguson, the last surviving professional in this year's field.

Ferguson and Harper were all square playing the 18th after the professional rallied from a three-hole deficit after 12 holes. The long-hitting Ferguson used an iron off the tee on the tight, 280-yard hole.

Ferguson hit safely to about 70 yards from the green. Harper stayed with his driver and laced a good shot to within 25 yards of the hole. After Ferguson played his shot to the green, Harper stepped up and sank the 75-foot chip shot.

A late rash of birdies carried Milliken past Harper in the nip-and-tuck semi-final. Milliken came from behind with successive birdies on 11, 12 and 13. One up after 16, Milliken missed a four-foot putt that would have clinched victory on the 17th green, then ran into trouble by hooking his ball into the woods that Ferguson feared.

Milliken found his ball and recovered but missed another comparatively short putt and the match went into extra holes.

Milliken drove the first extra hole, a par four, while Harper was just short. Harper chipped to within eight feet of the hole. Milliken missed his eagle putt and finished two feet away. Harper then missed his eight-foot birdie try while Milliken made his two-footer.

Uplands veteran Al Senior, the defending champion, and Colwood junior Glen Barlow advanced to the handicap final.

Senior scored a one-up victory over Oak Bay's John Hough and then nipped Dave Anderson, last year's open finalist, 3 and 2. The 16-year-old Barlow eliminated Uplands' Jim Taylor 2 and 1 and then scored a one-up win over Keith Swetnam of Glen Meadows.

Jan Takes Lead by Four

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jan Stephenson, regaining her cool after a temper tantrum in the second round, took a three-under-par 69 Sunday in the third round, of the International golf tournament for a seven-under-par 209 total.

Her closest rival, four strokes behind, was amazing amateur Beth Daniel of Charleston, S.C., the U.S. Amateur champion. The nearest pro competitors, six strokes off the pace at 215, were Pam Higgins, Amy Alcott and Penny Pulz.

If her five-stroke lead holds up through today's final round, the Australian, now playing out of Palm Springs, Calif., will increase her earnings this year by $12,000 to more than $42,000.

Stephenson's performance Sunday was in sharp contrast to Saturday's explosion, when she also began with two birdies but went to pieces after three-putting the ninth green to finish with a par 72.

Marlene Streit, an amateur who plays out of Fonthill, Oht., had a third-round score of 70 for 224, putting her 15 strokes behind the leader. Streit had earlier scores of 80 and 74.

Cathy Sherk, also from Fonthill, Ont., has a 236 total with scores of 79-79-78.

Watson Outduels Trevino

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, twice tied by Lee Trevino, responded to the pressure with a boyish grin and some magnificent shots down the stretch and scored his third victory of the season Sunday in the $200,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

The dynamic red-haired Watson finished off the four-under-par 66 with a fantastic chip shot from deep trouble on the 18th, saving par there and the $40,000 first prize that made him the season's leading money winner and the game's 17th $1-million winner.

Watson acquired his ninth American title—not including his two British Open triumphs—by a single stroke over the onrushing Trevino with a 72-hole total of 272, eight shots under par.

Trevino, now a two-time runner-up this season, also shot a 66 in the hot, muggy weather and finished at 273.

It was another three shots back to the group of four tied for third at 276. Veteran Don January and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton shot 67s, Ed Sneed had a closing 68 and nervous Joe Inman a 69.

South African Gary Player, whose three-tournament winning streak was broken last week, closed with a par-70 and was tied with Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., at 285. The Canadian tour rookie finished with a final-round 72 and won $627.

Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year and winner of the Tucson Open and Bing Crosby Pro-Am earlier this season, opened the final round with a one-stroke lead and maintained that margin until the 14th hole.

It was there that Trevino appeared to open the gate for him. Lee took four strokes to reach the green on the long par-four, but salvaged a bogey with a 15-foot putt. That put him two shots behind but he made it up with the speed of summer lightning.

Two great shots set up an 18-foot eagle putt on the 15th and Trevino rolled it in to gain a tie for the lead.

Watson, playing immediately behind him, birdied the hole from four feet moments later and regained the advantage.

Trevino tied again with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 17th. Watson, waiting in the fairway to hit his second shot, grinned when he heard the roar from the massive gallery. He flew his approach to the fringe of the green and promptly rolled in the putt that put him ahead again.

But the drama wasn't over.

Trevino made routine par on the 18th and Watson, from a perfect position in the fairway, jerked his approach far to the left of the green. He had a delicate, uphill chip over a yawning bunker and punched it only a couple of feet from the hole.

He tapped in for the par he had to have to avoid a sudden-death playoff.

Affirmed's Win Just as Expected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Laz Barrera viewed Affirmed's Kentucky Derby victory as a teacher regards a star pupil's perfect score. He knew the colt would do it and so his reaction was satisfaction rather than excitement.

"This was the same race the horse runs all the time," said Barrera, who also trained Bold Forbes, the Derby winner in 1976.

"I'll tell you something," Barrera added Sunday. "At the end of the race he could have kept running and Alydar would not have caught him. My horse runs as hard as he needs to win."

Affirmed, ridden by 18-year-old Steve Cauthen in his Derby debut and owned by Harbor View Farm, took the lead at the top of the stretch Saturday.

He got home 1½ lengths in front of Alydar, who came from eighth place with one-half mile remaining to finish second, 1¼ lengths ahead of Hickory Tree Stable's Believe It. The time of 2:01 1-5 for 1¼ miles was the fifth-fastest Derby.

John Veitch, trainer of Alydar, who has been beaten five times in seven meetings with Affirmed, felt his colt was too far back when he made his run.

But, he added: "If they had gotten head to head Affirmed might have pulled away again."

Veitch said that jockey Jorge Velasquez told him that Alydar had trouble getting a hold of the track.

"If he don't get a hold of the track, he don't finish second," said Barrera. "The only trouble he had was he couldn't get a hold of Affirmed."

Alydar will try to get a hold of Affirmed and spoil his Triple Crown bid May 20 in the 1 3-16-mile Prekness. Both colts will fly to New York's Belmont Park today and go to Baltimore the week before the Preakness.

Believe It also is expected to race in the Preakness.

Trainer Woody Stephens said he wanted to run the colt in the Withers at Aquedut because he thought that one-mile race was two weeks away. But the Withers is next Sunday so it looks like the Preakness for Believe It.

Two other Derby starters are considered possible Preakness starters—fourth-place Darby Creek Road, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Phillips, and Top of the Marc Stable's Sensitive Prince, who finished sixth.

Trainer Larry Rettele said Jerry Frankel's Esops Foibles—fifth in the Derby—is headed for the Illinois Derby the same day as the Preaknes. The other five Derby starters also are headed in direction away from Affirmed.

"The Preakness will shape up differently," said Stephens. "We'll get rid of all the 90-to-1 shots."

Darby Creek Road and Esops Foibles—the fifth and sixth betting choices in the Derby—went off at 33 to 1 and 49 to 1, respectively. The odds on the last five finishers were: Dr. Valeri, 96 to 1; Hoist the Silver, 123 to 1; Chief of Dixieland, 121 to 1; Raymond Earl, 117 to 1; and Special Honor, 171 to 1.

Five three-year-olds who are expected to give the Preakness a fresh look are Victor J. Coladonato's Iron Legend, Miami Lakes Ranch's Noon Time Spender, William S. Farish III)'s Forever Casting, Carlyle J. Lancaster's Star De Naskra, and Aisquith Stable's Track Reward.

Iron Legend scored an upset in the Woodlawn Stakes at Pimlico on Derby Day. Noon Time Spender finished second to Alydar in the Flamingo. Forever Casting won four stakes in 1977 and two allowance races this year.

Star De Naskra won three stakes as a two-year-old and this year won the Penn Treaty at Keystone. Track Reward was unraced as a two-yearold and in 1978 has two wins in six starts and a third in the Wood Memorial wonby Believe It.

The third largest crowd in the 104-year of the Derby, 131,004, watched Affirmed win and those who favored him at the mutuel windows were favored with a payoff of $5.60, $2.80 and $2.60. The winner's share was$186,900 from a purse of $239,400.

Two records were set—$4,425,828 was bet on the Derby and $10,336,433 was wagered on the entire 10-race program.

Esquimalt, Saanich Lacrosse Winners

Metal tripped Hampton Park Hustlers 17-11 and Saanich edged Victoria Athletics, 10-9.

Kim Browning and Randy Bryant set the pace for Metal with four goals each while John Entzminger contributed two goals and seven assists and Lance Hobbs scored twice. Mike Yager and Bob Clifford scored three goals each for Hustlers and Gurdave Sunher added two.

Peter McCreash set the pace for Saanich with five goals and his brother, Jim, had five assists. Mark Schoor led Athletics with two-and-five.

CANADA GYMNASTS DOWN BULGARIANS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada swept the top three individual placings and defeated Bulgaria by a narrow margin in the team competition in a two-day women's gymnastics meet that ended Sunday.

The six-women Canadian team compiled a total of 373.80 points to 370.55 for Bulgaria. Canada had identical totals of 186.90 points in each of the compulsory and the optional programs. Competiton was on the vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercise.

Monica Goermann of Winnipeg was the top individual with 75.15 points. She was second after the compulsory program Saturday but earned 37.60 points in the optional program to take the overall title.

Elfi Schlegal of Toronto was second with 74.95 points. Karen Kelsall of Vancouver, the leader after the compulsory program with 37.60 points, fell to third overall with 74.55 points.

Competing for the Canadfan team were Ellen Stewart, Karen Gould and Diana Carnegie, all of Toronto, along with Goermann, Schlegal and Kelsall.

Depailler Captures Monaco Grand Prix

MONTE CARLO (AP) — France's Patrick Depailler, driving a Tyrrell-Ford, won a thrill-packed 36th Monaco Grand Prix on Sunday to take the lead in the 1978 world drivers' championship.

Reigning champion Niki Lauda of Austria, in a Brabham-Alfa, fought back brilliantly from sixth place after a pit stop. He grabbed second place from South African Jody Scheckter, driving a Wolf, only three laps from the end.

Fourth was Britain's John Watson, who forged into the lead with his Brabham at the start. He held off Depailler for half the 75-lap race, only to spin at the harbor-front chicane. This enabled the Frenchman to take over the lead for good.

It was Depailler's first Grand Prix victory in 69 championship races, although he has placed second seven times.

Titans Keep B.C. Title

KELOWNA — Victoria Titans retained the British Columbia high school rugby crown Saturday, tripping Mountain High School of Langley 15-7 in the final of a three-day tournament.

It was the fifth straight victory for Titans, who ousted Kelowna 10-0 in the semifinals earlier the same day.

Oak Bay Barbarians, who finished fourth, were eliminated 16-0 by Langley in the other semi. Kelowna earned third spot.

Mark Wyatt set the pace for Titans by kicking three penalty goals while Mike DeGoede booted another three-pointer and Laurie Bunch kicked a drop goal.

Alan Pratt scored a try and John Blackhall kicked a penalty goal for Langley, the only side to score on Titans in the tourney.

Titans were ahead 9-7 at half time and wore down their opponents in the second half.

In consolation play, Claremont Spartans tripped North Kamloops 12-4 and downed South Delta 10-0 to finish ninth over-all.

OUR FINEST RADIAL EVER!

The new generation Steel Belted Radial

NEW STRONGER STEEL CORD
Seven brass-plated steel filaments wrapped around two and bound together with one more. Seven, over two, plus one. 10 steel filaments instead of 5 as in our previous steel belted radial.

BETTER BOND
The new 721 cord has more bonding surface for better rubber to steel adhesion than in our previous steel belted radial.

TORTURE TESTED
Proven for 5,000,000 test miles in the heat of the desert, on the test track, on rough terrain, on the highway and on city streets.

LONG TREAD LIFE EASY HANDLING
A more tear resistant rubber compound to isolate the belt motion and a wide tread pattern, add up to greater stability and long tread life.

LOW COST PER MILE
The long tread life means savings on replacement tires and low-rolling resistance of the 721 means extra savings on fuel costs.

The Bridge Expert

Generally speaking, when declarer has a loser in his own hand which he can trump in dummy, he does so. But situations arise where this straightforward play is a losing one. This point is demonstrated in today's deal.

Neither side vulnerable.
North deals.

2 NT	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	6 ♣	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

North's jump to two notrump was a "stretch" of one point (as a passed hand, he promised 12 points). From South's position, slam prospects looked bright, especially since North, for his bid, rated to have the diamond queen. When North subsequently showed that he had club support, the Blackwood Slam Convention was employed to make sure that the opposition did not possess the two outstanding aces.

The opening heart lead was won by dummy's ace, after which a heart was trumped in the closed hand. A diamond was then led to dummy's queen, and this was followed by the trumping of the board's remaining heart. Next came the ace, king and queen of trumps, gathering in the adversely held pieces.

Declarer now cashed the ace and king of diamonds, hoping that the six outstanding diamonds were divided 3-3 originally. Had they been so divided, declarer's fourth diamond would become the only one remaining in the deck. On it he could discard the board's two of spades, and his only loser would be a spade trick.

But when he cashed his two top diamonds, East discarded a heart, revealing that West still retained the high jack of diamonds. South now led his remaining diamond, and West played the jack. Declarer, however, did not trump. Instead he discarded the board's duece of spades, allowing West's diamond jack to win the trick.

With nothing remaining in his hand except three spades, West was forced to lead this suit. When he led the seven-spot, the five was played from dummy, and South's queen became his slam-going trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, May 9
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have a choice, to take overall view and temporarily skip details — or to put off journey, social affair and put nose to grindstone. Perhaps a combination of work and visits might be the most constructive course. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio figure prominently. Check messages.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money picture is brighter following an exchange of messages, ideas. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. You locate "key" which unravels mystery. In matters of speculation, stick with number 5. A fast-talking individual may be obnoxious, but is on your side. Grin and bear it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get your way. Be sure to request what is important. Seek harmony, stability on home front. Property could be worth more than originally anticipated. Gift is on the way. Beautify surroundings. Be rid of eyesore. Accent quality and taste.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much that occurs is subdued, behind the scenes, secret. Key is to know what you want, to bide your time and to be discreet. Get second emotional wind. Pisces is likely to be involved. Activity indicated in connection with organization, institution or hospital.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional involvement is highlighted. One close to you sends sparks flying. New light is cast on relationship. Stakes could be high — if merely playing fun-and-games, be ready for surprise. Creative endeavors now bring positive results — and profits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Climb another rung of ladder — there is room for you at higher elevation. Aries, Libran figure prominently. You find ways to reach more people with product or message. One who seeks counsel is really asking for your approval.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Creative juices are activated — you perceive what you can accomplish and you do something about it. Accent on publications, travel, educational project, new start, meeting someone who strikes with Cupid's arrow. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You've survived! Period of emotional turmoil has passed. The path now is onward and upward — obstacles will be steppingstones. Follow through on hunch; teach, learn give full play to intuitive intellect. Aquarian could play important role. Money dispute will be settled.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on marital status, partnership, willingness to make concessions, to experiment and travel. Artistic tendencies move to forefront. You're able to perceive potential and to express desires. Gemini plays important role. Be aware of legal requirements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message — go slow enough to be thorough. Line up priorities, bring actual needs into focus. State case frankly — be positive concerning basic issues. You will be given benefit of any doubt — and credit due.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Curiosity leads the way — you are no longer satisfied merely to know something happened. You want to know why it occurred. You are revitalized by creative endeavors, romance, the feeling that you are alive. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture — and so is the number 5.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Home, security, providing for future — these could become dominant considerations. Close transaction, check possessions, deal with Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons. Don't sell yourself short. You have plenty to offer and others know it.

IF MAY 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unique way of expressing yourself. Aries, Libran persons play important roles in your life. Travel, accelerated social life is featured this year — you make new start and valuable discovery in July. You are sensuous, have sense of drama, understand pulse of public and could gain renown.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"I know your birthday's next month," said Molly. "But what's the actual date?"

Jeff smiled. "See if you can figure it out," he replied. "There'll be three times as many days in the month before my birthday as there'll be days after it."

You try.

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Betty's number was 89.

Mr. Hunter answers all letters: ideas welcomed.

Whitecaps Jump On Top in West

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Whitecaps jumped back on top of the pack in the west of the North American Soccer League Sunday with a 1-0 victory over Portland Timbers.

The Whitecaps did it the easy way. They managed one goal on 10 shots in the first half, but it was all that was needed. Defender Bob Lenarduzzi headed Alan Hinton's corner kick to midfielder Steve Kember who banged the ball past Portland goalkeeper Mick Poole at 32:34.

Mike Flanagan put on a one-man show, scoring all four of his club's goals, as New England Tea Men dumped Chicago Sting 4-1 in the top individual performance of the day.

Roger Gibbons assisted Flanagan on his first goal at 2:56 and he added an unassisted goal at 53:11.

The Tea Men—now 3-2 on the season—took a 3-0 lead on Flanagan's third goal, assisted by Keith Weller, at 54:57, with Peter Carr and Gerry Daly assisting on his final goal at 66:21.

In other games, Toronto Metros-Croatia beat Philadelphia Fury 3-0, New York Cosmos blanked Detroit Express 2-0, Minnesota Kicks got past Dallas Tornado 2-1, Seattle Sounders tripped Los Angeles Aztecs 2-0, San Jose Earthquakes nipped Tampa Bay Rowdies 1-0 and Rochester Lancers downed Houston Hurricane 3-1.

On Saturday, Fort Lauderdale Strikers defeated Memphis Rogues 3-2, Washington Diplomats blanked Colorado Caribous 2-0, Tulsa Roughnecks whipped Oakland Stompers 3-0 and California Surf edged San Diego Sockers 2-1.

Erol Yasin, required to make just two saves, recorded his fourth shutout of the season and has allowed just three goals in six games for the unbeaten Cosmos, now 6-0. The game attracted 45,321 to Giants Stadium.

EX-BAKERS BREAK LOOSE

NANAIMO — Jim Lynch, Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool — three former members of Victoria McDonalds — scored five goals each Saturday to spark Nanaimo Timbermen to a 21-10 victory over New Westminster Salmonbellies in a Western Lacrosse Association game.

Brian Evans, who won the league scoring title last season, came up with 11 assists for Timbermen in their season-opener before 681 fans.

Bays Sweep Provincials

James Bay Athletic Association retained both the first and second division British Columbia rugby titles Saturday with victories at Macdonald Park.

James Bay won the first-division Rounsfell Cup for an unprecedented fifth straight year with a 23-10 decision over Vancouver Ravens, who are also known as the University of British Columbia Old-Boys.

The James Bay seconds grabbed the Province Cup for the second straight year, topping Vancouver Georgians, 41-3.

Ken Wilke, Mick Eckardt and Chris Mills connected for JBAA tries in the first division match while Barry Robbins booted two penalty goals and Murray Allen kicked a penalty goal and a convert.

Jim Bergen sparked the second division romp with a try, a penalty goal and three converts. Ron McGuiness and Gord Racette added two tries each while Drew Denniston, Tony Flynn and John Sutherland also had four-pointers.

Quarless Hits Century

Tony Quarless batted a "century" Sunday to help Castaways defeat Cowichan by 61 runs in a Victoria and District Cricket Association match at Beacon Hill Park.

In other matches, Albion topped Alcos by eight wickets at Windsor Park and Incogs tripped Oak Bay by 82 runs at St. Michael's University School.

A scheduled match Saturday between Nanaimo and Albion was cancelled when the up-Island squad was unable to field a team.

Quarless scored 106 runs to pace Castaways to 208 for seven wickets declared. Dave Shaw added 36 runs and Cec Meyer came up with 29 while Howard Martin took five wickets for the loss of 33 runs to lead Cowichan bowlers.

Tim Lord (37) and Malcolm Ringham (33) were the leading batsmen as Cowichan ran up 147, all out. Alec Porter (four for 28) and David Auld (five for 51) led Castaways' bowling.

Alcos took first knock and were all out for 70 with Sandy Hutchison scoring 18. Malcolm Shanks (five for 18) and Alan Carter (three for 26) set the Albion bowling pace.

Albion then reached 71 for two behind Don Hughes (28, not out) and Steve Buchanan (25, not out). Steve Hanson of Alcos took two for 10.

Incogs declared at 145 for eight after Graham Mahabir scored 52 and Jim Wenman has 38. Jan Aten took four for 33 to lead Oak Bay bowlers and then scored 24 to lead his club to 63 against the bowling of Dave Gladders (four for 26) and Rob Wilson (four for 37).

Gingell Trophy To Visitor

Miffed Elks Go on Rampage

It doesn't pay to fool Mother Nature, or the Elks' batters in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Held to one hit by Athletics' Ray Beveridge in the season's opening game at Central Park, Elk batters have gone on a rampage that has carried the team to three straight victories, the latest a 17-hit, 17-2 thumping of Ingraham Hotel Sunday.

After the opening embarassment, Elks have hammered out 36 hits, including five home runs and five triples. Mike Lee clouted two homers and and two singles to drive in five runs while Bob Wheeler connected for two triples and a double to drive in four runs Sunday.

Glen Wallis also homered for Elks, his second in as many games.

In other McGinnis action, Seaboard swept a Saturday doubleheader in Port Angeles, beating Telecable 4-2 in nine innings and 6-1; Sooke Merchants edged Batesons 4-3 and Juan de Fuca Builders upset Athletics 4-1 as pitcher Len Carolan tossed a seven-hitter and contributed a three-run homer.

In the Heywood Park Men's League, Greg Gagne's five-hitter sparked Webb and Trace to an 8-1 victory over Athletics while Remcos and Taylor House Movers split a doubleheader. Two-run homers by Jim Anderson and Dwayne Robinson carried Remcos to a 5-3 win but Taylors won the second encounter 8-7 when singles by Bruce Thompson, Dwayne Bertrand and Bob Palmer produced the winning run in the ninth inning.

At Sidney, Harvey's banged out 26 hits to sweep a doubleheader from Tsawout, 19-5 and 11-2 and unbeaten Travelodge won its fourth straight by blanking Prairie Inn 5-0.

Pollard's One Slick Driver

The veteran campaigner avoided the slippery stuff Saturday at Western Speedway and raced to victory in the super-stock main event before a crowd of 3,602 at the Millstream road circuit.

Pollard appeared destined for a second place finish in the second super-stock main of the season but the oil took care of Jim Caudwell, who had built a comfortable lead.

Caudwell, winner of the season opener the previous weekend, started eighth in the 13-car field but swept into the lead on the 14th lap. He moved half a lap ahead of the pack and was breezing along with no worries when all of a sudden he hit an oil slick, spun and was passed by the field.

The patient Pollard held off Gary Bemister the rest of the way to take first place while Caudwell faught back to capture third and was closing on Bemister when the checkered flag dropped after 35 laps.

Neil Montgomery, piloting the car that Terry Forsyth drove on opening day, took fourth place.

Greg Court was responsible for dropping the oil that killed Caudwell's victory plans. Court knocked a hole in his oil pan after spinning through the infield in turn four. He completed a circuit of the track before being black flagged and the race was delayed for several minutes while work crews covered the oil slick with cement dust.

Caudwell had started the evening program by knocking his own track down from 18.12 to 18.06.

In the stock-car division it was a case of Al Miller regaining most of the points he lost to arch-rival Gordie Stone on opening day.

Miller finished second in total points on the first day but was disqualified for using an illegal carburetor.

His carburetor was legal Saturday and he proved he could do just as well the honest way as he won the 25-lap main event going away.

Youngberg, Backhouse Named to Games Team

EDMONTON (CP) — Jane Youngberg, a Surrey, B.C., teacher, captured one title and shared another Sunday in the Canadian badminton championships.

She successfully defended her women's singles title with a stimulating 12-10, 9-12, 12-10 victory over favored Wendy Clarkson of Edmonton and shared the women's doubles title with Claire Backhouse of Vancouver.

Youngberg and Backhouse, who finished fourth in women's doubles in the recent all-England championships for the best finish ever recorded by Canadians, were named to the 10-member Canadian 1978 Commonwealth Games team moments after they downed Johanne Falardeau and Pauline Delisle of Montreal 15-1, 15-4.

Also selected were Greg Carter of Edmonton, John Czich of Ottawa, Lucio Fabris of Creighton Mines, Ont., and Ken Priestman of Kitchener, Ont.

McKee defeated Czich 15-6, 15-10 to retain his national singles crown.

Carter and Clarkson combined to whip John Taylor of Vancouver and Sherri Boyse of Calgary 15-5, 15-8 in mixed doubles and Ian Johnson and Pat Tryon of Montreal combined for a 15-12, 15-8 victory over former Thailand residents Raphi Kanchanaraphi and Soon Aukuyapisudhi, now living in Torono.

This is the first full season together for Backhouse and Youngberg, who did not lose a set in the four-day competition and only once gave up as many as eight points in a set.

Tryon and Johnson were considered underdogs against their veteran rivals although they won the 1977 championship. Johnson was playing with a bad knee but had no trouble after the game started.

Johnson was overlooked in team selections. Tryon, born in Wilmington, Del., was not eligible to be chosen.

Eight Earn Final Berths

PORT ALBERNI — Eight competitors from Victoria Crystalettes qualified for the British Columbia synchronized swimming championships during a regional meet here Saturday.

Marion Hvozdanski, Diana Parker, Kelly Lloyd, Lynn Porterfield, Saskia Acton, Tracey Coulter, Becky Knowles and Lisa Devana earned berths in the provincial meet scheduled for Vancouver next month.

Elyssa Durban of Crystalettes is an alternate.

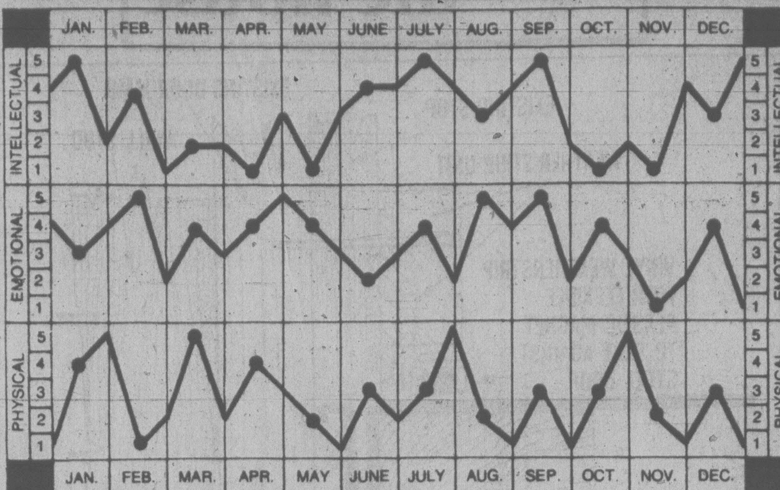
Bio-dex

Your computerized biorhythm

By Ken J. Michaels

© Copyright 1977

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	Physical stress could be dangerous. Wait for a better day.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	A good time to stay in the groove. Don't innovate and you will be successful.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Avoid appearing to be shy. Ask the question right out, and face the consequences.

As the study of biorhythms becomes more popular, charts and calculators can be found in almost every department store. Personally I'm glad to see such widespread interest, even if some of the newcomers to this field don't interpret the biorhythm cycles too clearly. Most of the products are fine, and though I don't sell individual charts myself, there's no doubt that a personalized chart or biorhythm profile can provide more details than is possible in this column. (Costs a little more though!)

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that brides-to-be can write hundreds of invitations and wedding announcements to people they scarcely know, but after the wedding they can't write a simple thank-you note for the gift?

You have a booklet on "How To Have a Lovely Wedding." How about writing one on what to do afterwards?— L.S.

DEAR L.: I have. It's "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

DEAR ABBY: The woman signed SICK WITH FRIGHT reminded me of myself not too long ago. I too was afraid to open my mouth in a group because I felt I had nothing important to say.

At age 43, I went back to college and earned a degree in accounting, but I was too shy and self-conscious to stand up and talk in front of a group. Then I joined the Toastmasters Club where I was employed — and still am. Three years later I was elected president of the club!

The first six times I stood before an audience (of only 20), I shook like a leaf. Today, I am calm and enjoy it!

Toastmasters is a club where we learn how to listen, think and speak better. There is a Toastmasters Club in nearly every city. Tell SICK WITH FRIGHT to look in the yellow pages of her phone book, or call the Chamber of Commerce. I know she can overcome her fright. If I did it, she can. — EVY

DEAR EVY: I know you're right. Some of the best speakers I've ever heard were once "sick with fright" but overcame it — thanks to Toastmasters.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I read a very moving article in your column about a 17-year-old boy who had been killed in a car accident due to his own reckless driving. It made a deep impression on me. Little did I know that we would lose our own 18-year-old son in a car accident soon after. If this letter saves one life it will be worth writing.

Our son wasn't driving Mother's or Father's car, he was walking home from a party with a friend. A car stopped and the driver, a 19-year-old boy, offered the boys a ride home. They happily accepted.

The driver started to speed and the police took out after him. He refused to stop. Finally he struck a tree and his car was severed in half!

Our son was killed instantly and his friend died three days later without regaining consciousness. The driver survived with minor injuries. This happened only half a mile from our home.

We later learned that the driver of the car was on probation and the car was stolen, so he was afraid to stop. No alcohol was involved. And yes, Abby, he was our only son. — LONELY

DEAR LONELY: There is a valuable lesson to be learned here. Never accept a ride just because it's offered.

Psychology Going to the Dogs family

Dr. Tortora counsels Jerolyn Brown on dog, Petie

There was no peace in the home of Fred and Barbara Fenster. Their two dogs, Ginger and P.J., no longer got along. Ginger, a seven-year-old part-boxer, part-shepherd, was constantly fighting with P.J., a 3½-year-old of approximately the same breeding.

No matter how many times Ginger was punished and scolded, she continued to pick on the younger dog and to steal food from him. The Fensters were getting desperate.

Finally, following the advice of their veterinarian, they took Ginger and P.J. — not their real names — to what has to be considered an ultimate by-product of the "me generation": a psychologist for pets and their owners.

"After a few sessions with the doctor — about five in all — Ginger stopped fighting with P.J.," said Mrs. Fenster.

The two dogs were treated by Dr. Daniel Tortora, who with a colleague, Dr. Peter L. Borchelt, opened the Animal Behavior Therapy Clinic last January at the Animal Medical Centre. What the doctors did was to separate the animals in different rooms and then gradually, on leashes and by stages, bring them together with soft reassurances and rewards for gentleness.

"It was amazing," Mrs. Fenster recalls.

Every Saturday, pets with "serious behavioral problems" are seen and their owners advised on how to handle them.

But more important than treating the animals, as in the case of Ginger and P.J., is conselling the owners. In telling masters and mistresses how to get along with their pets, Drs. Tortora and Borchelt, both animal psychologists, are really training the people. It is usually the humans, the doctors have found, who must change their habits and schedules to suit the animals.

Dr. Borchelt, for example, had to change the way he answered the phone to help his own two dogs.

"Whenever the phone would ring, my dogs would yelp and get very nervous," 33-year-old Dr. Borchelt said the other day following several hours of animal counselling.

"I discovered through questioning by Dr. Torota, that every time the phone would ring in my house, my wife, or myself would run to answer it, usually disturbing the resting dog."

The obvious solution. Walk, don't run, when answering the phone. The Borchelts followed the advice, and now when the phone rings, they don't have a nervous dog.

The solution to Dr. Borchelt's problem seemed simple enough. Like many of the problems, what was required was mainly common sense. So why pay a psychologist $40 an hour?

For many of the owners, Dr. Tortora explained, animal psychology is the final step in treating a problem. If behavior modification through the clinic does not work, many owners feel they have no choice left but to destroy their pet.

"Many people find life with the pet in the house becomes unbearable," said Dr. Tortora, 31. He owns five pets.

Problems range from a cat or dog incessantly crying or fighting to urinating on the floor.

Dogs, however, are not the psychologists' only patients. Dr. Tortora, who has a private animal psychology practice in Westchester County, said his clients had included a parrot and a horse.

Over 1/2 of Victoria Homes have no insulation
The average B.C. Home is either very poorly insulated or has no insulation. In a Federal Energy, Mines and Resources Report "Keeping the Heat In" they show how an average B.C. home built between 1951-60 of approx. 1750 sq. ft. will save 49% in heating costs by upgrading the insulation to present standards and by installing storm windows.
Don't waste your hard-earned money any longer. Weathergard your home now! We'll install Therm-attic blown insulation in your walls and attic and Thermo-gard double sliding windows. It's easy to afford. The Federal government offers an outright $350 grant to homes built prior to 1946. And homeowners can take advantage of the B.C. Hydro loan of up to $500 at 10% interest. SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Skateboarding, a sport for those who like pavement whizzing by inches from their bones, generates a sensation of freedom and excitement, but an increasing numbers of cerebral concussions, fractures, soft tissue bruises and injuries to internal organs.

Dr. Kaye Wilkins, a clinical associate professor of orthopedics at the University of Texas Health Science Centre specializing in sports medicine, says the medical community is becoming more concerned about skateboarding as it becomes more popular with the younger set.

Wilkins and Dr. Mel Thornton compiled statistics on injuries suffered in unorganized sports for presentation recently to the American Academy of Pediatrics and are helping the Academy prepare a policy statement on skateboarding, laying down guidelines for the sport.

"We're trying to educate the public and the physicians," Wilkins said.

He said types of orthopedic and nuerological injuries seldom seen in emergency rooms in years past now are nearly everyday occurrences because, since 1973, there have been more than 35,000 emergency cases resulting from skateboard accidents nationally — an increase of five or six-fold from earlier years.

A majority of the patients were between the ages of 11 and 20 and most of the injuries involved the lower arm.

"If children are going to use skateboards, they must wear safety gear such as gloves, knee and elbow pads and lightweight helmets," Wilkins said. "Choosing a good quality skateboard and learning the hazards involved with the sport are important, too."

Your basket collection surely must have one that was stained darker by a potted plant or over-ripe fruit. Scrub the stain with warm water containing a small amout of bleach. Rinse and sun dry. You can bleach the whole basket lighter, if you like. Then, why not make a wall arrangement of your seldom-used baskets. That's an attractive way to make more storage space!

He'll Steel Himself Against Weather

By A. J. HAND

The aluminum storm door on the front of my house is pitted, sagging, and ugly. It won't latch properly. The wooden door behind it swells and shrinks with the seasons so it's too loose in the winter, and it binds during the summer. The paint is blistered and peeling, the weatherstripping is worn out, and the lockset is totally obsolete.

In short, those two doors are ready for retirement. So, soon I'm going to replace them both with a single door, one that will solve all those problems listed above.

It will be a door with skins of steel and a heart of plastic foam. The steel won't change dimensions with the seasons, so the door will always fit right and work smoothly. The foam core will give it good insulating properties, so it will have an R-value around 15. My present wood door with aluminum storm gives me about R-3.7, so the single door that replaces them will be far more fuel efficient.

Not only that, the new door will make my home look better by eliminating the need for a storm door.

The weatherstripping will be like the stuff used on refrigerators and freezers. A flexible strip magnet inside the hollow plastic weatherstripping will pull it up tight against the door whenever it is closed to provide an almost perfect seal against drafts.

Foam-core steel doors come in two types. Some come prehung, complete with their own frame and hinges. To install one of these you remove the old door and its hinges, plus the casing (the trim around the door frame). You don't have to remove the old jambs if you buy a special "replacement" or "remodelling" door. These are sized a little smaller than your present door so the new frame can slide inside the old jambs.

I'll choose one of these prehung remodelling doors because my whole doorway including threshold and jambs is in bad shape. But if you only want to replace your present door, just buy an unmounted door. You'll be able to hang this type of door right on your present hinges. Then you'll probably want to add magnetic weatherstripping. That's a simple matter of nailing the stuff up. You should be able to put up an unmounted door and its weatherstripping in about an hour.

Who makes these foam-cored steel doors? Quite a few people. Among them are Stanley Sta-Tru, Pease Ever-Strait, Therma-Tru, Benchmark, and Taylor.

The doors are available in a wide variety of styles and colors. Some interesting features are available, too. For example, Pease has a new door called the Security 3. It has three deadbolts, plus reinforcing plates in the frame to resist jimmying. The hinges lock, too, so even if the pins are pulled the door still won't open.

Benchmark has a new door with extra-wide frame to fit the new superinsulated "thick wall" construction. They call it their "Total Energy Package." Taylor has a sill design that lets you adjust the threshold with a screwdriver.

In fact, there are so many interesting foam-core doors around, I still haven't decided which one to buy myself.

WAGE RAISED

PARIS (AP) — The French minimum legal wage was raised 3.9 per cent this week to 10.45 francs an hour (about $2.50), in a move the government said would increase workers' buying power by 1.2 per cent.

NEW YORK — According to fashion designers who wound up their showings for fall here last week, it is a sophisticated, confident, sometimes even aggressive kind of woman who will be dressed in their clothes next season.

Skirts that swing open with a long stride, flashy, funny fur pieces over broad-shouldered and belted suits and blouses that plunge to the waist add up to sexiness, but it's more glamor a-la-Greta Garbo than the some-like-it-hot variety.

The rest of the look, as fashion gurus see it, is rounded out by stilletto heels, long hair and red lipstick, dark colors (particularly black) and natural fabrics, including leather.

So is any female lawyer going to keep a date in court next fall looking like a modern Barbara Stanwyck?

As always, the extremes of some New York designers will be much diluted and modified by the time their concoctions arrive on the sales floors of stores and boutiques. A certain fraction of what comes down the runway in Paris, Milan or New York is done for amusement and attention-getting anyway. And existing popular styles, including the Annie-Hall look, are likely to go on and on.

But what buyers, reporters and an ever-bigger gaggle of celebrities like Bianca Jagger, Andy Warhol, Ali McGraw, Bob Evans and Annie Hall herself, Diane Keaton, saw last week is a definite shift toward grown-up, confident sophistication for daytime as well as night.

There are sexy evening clothes that almost fall off the body or scarcely veil the wearer, and a look meant to be worn to the office that in many cases uses shoulder pads for a broad, roomy look at the top, more slimness toward the bottom. Belts, which add to the shape, high heels and big fur pieces carry out the effect.

All of which is based loosely on a perception that women are ready to look more and more womanly, to please themselves, perhaps, rather than to attract attention from men, as in the past.

LIST FIVE CLASSICS

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: I suspect that if a guy knew the classic and old-car market, he could own cars that wouldn't depreciate the way new ones do. Could you please list five newish cars in the medium price range that can be driven daily and yet can be expected to hold their value?—BIRD IN HAND

Dear Bird: Pre-Mustang-II Mustangs, Camaros, Firebirds, all U.S. convertibles, and most open sports cars. You have to remember, though, that you'll have to keep any of these cars in mint condition — and original inside and out.

Dear Mike: I have a 1973 Wagoneer with the 360-cid V-8. This engine is worn out, so I'd like to replace it with a Ford, Chevy, or Plymouth V-8. What problems will I run into? The transmission is an automatic with the conventional 4-wheel-drive lockout hubs. I'd like to put in a smaller engine for better economy.—SWAPPER

Dear Swapper: I suggest you stick with an AMC engine. The 304 V-8 would be a good choice for better economy, and it'll drop in without any modifications. If you start to fool with a non-AMC engine, it'll cost you a lot more to install than you'll save in fuel costs.

Dear Mike: Both my Honda dealer and the owner's manual say to use only Honda's own oil filter in my 1977 Accord. Is this absolutely necessary? There are less expensive brands on the market.—FILTERED OUT

Dear Filtered: In my opinion, all oil filters are pretty much the same. Just to be on the safe side, though, go along with Honda's recommendation while your car is still under warranty, and then switch.

Dear Mike: My 1965 Chevy starts fine most times, but if I let it stand for a few days, it takes at least 15 minutes of grinding before it finally catches. It seems as if it has to pull gasoline all the way from the tank. If I prime the carburetor, it'll start right away. Is this problem due to the fuel pump or carburetor or both?—FUELER

Dear Fueler: Most likely it's a leak in the float bowl of your carburetor. Or if the bowl gasket isn't tight, the gasoline might be evaporating.

Dear Mike: Regarding the reader who had a problem with an oily film forming on the insides of his car windows — the same thing happened to me. I've found that the best way to clean it off is with vinegar water. I use a quarter cup of vinegar to a cup of water. It completely cuts the film and leaves the glass sparkling.—INA

Dear Ina: Many thanks for the tip. For you readers who missed the original letter, the film is caused when sunlight heats up the vinyl upholstery or sealing mastic inside a newer car. There's no way to prevent this buildup, and at the time of the original letter, I knew of no sure way to clean the glass.

If you have automotive problems or questions, please feel free to send them to Michael Lamm, Box 7607-B, Stockton, Calif. 95207. Not all letters can be answered personally. Those of broadest reader interest will appear in future columns.

Crossbow Silent

GWENT, Wales (AP) — Mutton poachers in Wales are using a modern version of the ancient crossbow, irate sheep farmers report. "The use of crossbows as a new and sinister method of sheep stealing appears to be on the increase," said Brian Edwards, the secretary of the local farmers' union. The union wants crossbows licensed as firearms are.

CIA's 'Blundering' Led to Cuba Moving into Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA official said Sunday that "blundering stupidity" by the intelligence agency paved the way for massive intervention in Angola by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

John Stockwell, a 12-year CIA veteran who said he commanded the CIA's Angola committee at agency headquarters at Langley, Va., made the allegations in an interview on the CBS television program, 60 Minutes.

Stockwell said the CIA embarked on what amounted to a secret war in Angola, but withheld information about its activities from the congressional committees set up to oversee covert CIA operations.

A CIA spokesman, Lavon Strong, said the agency had no immediate comment on Stockwell's allegations.

In the interview, Stockwell said:

—The CIA had advisers and trainers on the ground inside Angola in violation of the orders of its operations advisory group.

—The CIA offered bounties for stolen aircraft, then used the planes to fly arms to Angola.

—The CIA recruited and delivered European mercenaries and played a role in sending U.S. mercenaries to the country.

—The CIA and the U.S. government encouraged South Africa to intervene in Angola and had close contact with them once they were there.

Former CIA director William Colby, also interviewed on the program, said the agency carried out its training and advisory activities from neighboring countries.

"There were some people that went in (to Angola) to see what was happening for intelligence collection," Colby said. "But they just went in and came out. They weren't on the ground. They didn't stay there."

He also said the CIA kept itself totally separate from South Africa in the whole operation.

The interview was broadcast the day before publication of a book by Stockwell about the CIA operation called, In Search of Enemies.

"Had the CIA option, the violent option, not existed in Angola, we wouldn't have had the escalation of war and we wouldn't have had Cuban soldiers . . . looked upon as heroes of the people of Africa," Stockwell said. "And this is because of the blundering stupidity, if you will, of the CIA's paramilitary operation."

Stockwell said former U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger had the original idea of a CIA operation in Angola, but intended it as a bluff aimed at the Soviets.

"(But) it was certainly clear, I believe, to 98 per cent of the world at that point, that the CIA could not go in with another Vietnam-sized operation," Stockwell said.

"The public, the press, the Congress would not put up with it. So it was Kissinger's desire to bluff the Soviets when he couldn't follow through, and they knew it."

Kissinger was unavailable for comment.

Stockwell said the CIA effort included a small air force of stolen planes to ferry arms into Angola. "We even put a bounty out of $30,000 for anyone who would skyjack a plane that had some weapons on it," he said.

He also said the CIA actively recruited mercenaries to fight in Angola. One plan involved 20 Frenchmen sent in as advisers and the other involved a group of Portuguese. Both were total failures.

"The third bunch, the British-Americans, included psychotic killers, maniacs, people who were literally deranged, as well as people who were highly incompetent," he said.

Glacier Threatens Port Valdez

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The continued break-up of an Alaska glacier could pose a threat to shipping lanes at Port Valdez, the southern terminus of the Alaska pipeline, the U.S. Geological Survey warned Sunday.

The problem is with the Columbia glacier, which has stubbornly refused to retreat northward in the last several thousand years and whose seaward edge continues to grow thinner and more brittle.

Dr. Mark Meier, head of the Survey's glaciology project, noted that last August an unusually large numbers of icebergs calved.

Radioactive Dust Trucked Away

SEATTLE (AP) — Tons of radioactive waste from the Teledyne Wah Chang Corp. of Albany, Ore., 65 miles south of Portland is being buried at the Hanford atomic reservation near Richland, Wash.

About 6,500 tons of the dust, which contain amounts of radium 226 higher than acceptable under standards set by the Oregon health division, is being buried in landfills under the direction of the Nuclear Engineering Co., Inc.

The state, however, has told the company to move the material to a waste-disposal site and company spokesman Jim Barrett said four trailer trucks will leave daily until the huge pile is gone.

The job is expected to take about nine weeks at the rate of 120 tons a day, he said.

The radioactive sand is a waste product of the plant's refining process for zirconium, a rare metal used to manufacture products ranging from nuclear reactors to flash bulbs.

Police Hit By Stones

TOKYO (Reuter) — Six riot policemen and a journalist were injured by stone-throwing radicals Sunday after a march by opponents of Tokyo's new international airport.

More than 7,000 protesters paraded through central Tokyo without major trouble, but police said they arrested 14 radicals for throwing stones.

About 3,000 riot police stood guard in and around the airport at Narita, which is scheduled to open on May 20.

'Insidious Symptoms' Can be Early MS

The young father is not feeling up to scratch.

He feels weak, his limbs become clumsy, his vision blurred and his sense of feeling is not quite what it should be.

His friends tell him he should take it easy.

The symptoms, however, could be the first onslaught of multiple sclerosis, says Dr. William McIlroy of Toronto, chairman of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada's medical advisory board.

Visiting Victoria prior to attending the annual meeting of the society's B.C. division in Vancouver, McIlroy said early attacks are accompanied by "insiduous symptoms that in the early stages could be mistaken for nervous or neurotic reaction."

There are 35,000 multiple sclerosis victims in Canada and, while McIlroy says this does not appear that significant in terms of national population figures, the fact that it hits mainly young adults is the tragedy.

"It hits young adults in the prime of life, in their most productive years, the breadwinner or the mother with small children."

Multiple sclerosis is a disease in which patients become allergic to and destroy their own nervous system's insulating materials, McIlroy says. Researchers are still trying to find the cause and cure.

The search has been a long one. Multiple sclerosis was first identified by the French neurologist Charcot 100 years ago.

The disease rarely strikes people over the age of 40, the doctor says.

"The current view is that multiple sclerosis is probably caused by a virus which you contact early in life and which probably lies dormant in your system for many years," McIlroy says.

Eighty per cent of the funds raised by the society in Canada go to medical research, in support of research programs across the country.

In 1977 five research projects were funded at the University of British Columbia, as an example, and two studentships at the Mainland university.

Barrie Wright, executive director of the society's Victoria and Vancouver Island division, says 200 Victoria residents are multiple sclerosis victims and another 140 people suffer from the disease in other parts of Vancouver Island.

She says her organization is mainly concerned with providing patient comfort and care but once a year goes to the public to raise funds for research.

This year's drive — Carnation Day — will be held May 12-13 with municipal police forces and high school students helping out.

In 1977 $12,000 was raised. This year's target is $20,000.

Far-Flung Pickets In Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen Australian seamen, from the British-registered cargo ship M.V. Allunga, sacrificed their shore leave here Friday to picket the downtown offices of Utah Mines Ltd.

At 14,500 kilometres, it probably qualifies as one of the farthest-flung flying picket actions in the history of labor.

The pickets, members of the Seamens Union of Australia, were protesting the company's use of flag-of-convenience ships to deliver Australian coking coal to Japan and Europe from Utah's mine in Queensland.

PWA Crash Inquest Delay Comes Under Fire

CRANBROOK (CP) — An inquest into the death of 43 persons in the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet opens here today on a complaint from British Columbia's supervising coroner that the public has been kept waiting too long to learn what caused the mishap.

Glen McDonald said in Vancouver on Saturday that the public doesn't know what caused Canada's sixth-worst air disaster at the airport in this southeastern B.C. city because the inquest has been held up until completion of Transport Canada's crash investigation.

"I think that within two or three weeks we are entitled to have all the information that Transport Canada has, and to hear from all the witnesses," said McDonald. "Then we can adjourn and it can do the technical studies."

McDonald said local coroner Dr. Alan Askey could have held the inquest earlier to hear the information then available, but decided to wait for the full Transport Canada report.

The inquest opened Feb. 17, and then adjourned the same day after the eight-member jury viewed the crash site and received pathologists' reports on the cause of death of 42 persons whose bodies were found in the wreckage.

A 43rd victim died of burns in hospital in Vancouver Feb. 22. Six others survived the crash.

PWA officials said after the accident that the Boeing 737 landed on the airport runway, then attempted to take off again after the pilot apparently saw a snowplow on the runway.

A survivor said he saw part of the thrust reverser on the right engine fly off after the touchdown, which could account for the jet veering to the left on takeoff. Thrust reversers are used for braking after touchdown.

The jet approached the airport from Calgary on instrument flight rules during daylight but with visibility limited by snow.

An air radio operator normally gives pilots instructions on the clearance of the runway. Snowblower operator Terry George said in an interview that he was given no warning from the air radio operator that an aircraft was landing.

A team of 14 Transport Canada investigators has been studying the crash, and spokesman Bill Almolky said the final report was not expected until the end of May.

Almolky said the delay was caused by difficulty in transcribing a flight recorder tape that was badly damaged in the crash.

TEACHERS BACKED

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The British Columbia School Trustees Association decided by one vote Sunday that teachers should be allowed to run for school board office. The resolution passed at the association's annual meeting by a vote of 173 to 172. Trustees also decided to join the Canadian School Trustees Association after withdrawing last year. However, the BCSTA wants the national association to allow individual school boards and not the provincial trustees association, to have the option to join.

April Conquest Of Waddington Unprecedented

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-member British and Canadian mountain-climbing team have made an unprecedented April climb to the summit of Mount Waddington, 241 kilometres north of here.

It is the highest mountain in British Columbia.

Rod Wood, a Vancouver Island architect, and Englishman Doug Scott reached the 4,016-metre peak April 25 after an eight-day back-packing and climbing expedition from the head of Bute Inlet.

Team member Stevie Smith, of Vancouver Island, said Friday that Scott, who also has climbed Mount Everest, was the first to reach the summit in very bad weather.

Mount Waddington, also known as mystery mountain or unknown mountain, is encircled by a large glaciated region of 800 square kilometres and is particularly dangerous in April because of very difficult snow conditions and avalanche hazards.

The expedition, sponsored by the Outdoor Education Centre of Vancouver Island, left Campbell River on Vancouver Island by boat and travelled to the head of Bute Inlet.

The team then faced a five-day back-packing trip through B.C. coast rain forest before reaching the Tiedemann glacial field. The six men and two women spent three days crossing the glacier and three nights in snow-holes—man-made snow caves—before reaching the final rock tower before the summit.

Scott and Wood left the rest of the team to make the final assault on the peak in nine hard climbing pitches.

Don Serl, a mountain-climbing instructor in Vancouver, said Friday "I don't think there's ever been anyone who's climbed it in winter except in the mid-60s, but they were flown in."

Other members of the team were Laurie Wood, Ross Nichol and Claude Ruel, all of Vancouver Island, Janine Caldebeck of Vancouver, and Jim Allen of Quadra Island.

Housing Units For Seniors At Union Bay

Construction of a 12-unit senior citizen housing project at Union Bay, south of Courtenay, has been approved in principle by the provincial government, Housing Minister Hugh Curtis has announced.

The project is sponsored by the Baynes Sound Lions Senior Citizens Building Society.

Curtis also said the Yellowhead Pioneer Residence Society at Barriere, north of Kamloops, has been granted a $108,500 grant for the construction of 12 senior citizen housing units.

ZONING INSPECTOR
CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT
VICTORIA, B.C.

Salary: $1242-$1497 per month.

Under direction, and in close cooperation with the community planning staff, to carry out a wide variety of field and office duties related to the administration of zoning by-law regulations within the electoral areas of the Capital Regional District. The Zoning Inspector will check all permit applications to ensure compliance with zoning regulations, interpret such regulations for building inspection staff and the public, and provide technical advice on zoning matters. The Zoning Inspector will also investigate complaints concerning possible by-law infractions and prepare reports on such investigations. Other duties will include the regular up-dating and maintenance of zoning by-laws and maps for the Building Inspection Division.

Applicants should have senior secondary school graduation or equivalent with some post-secondary school training in a related field such as community planning. Applicants with previous experience in the field of municipal by-law administration combined with a demonstrated willingness and ability to meet and deal with the public in a diplomatic manner will be given preference. An ability to compile brief written reports on a variety of zoning matters would also be an asset.

Applicants must posses a valid B.C. Driver's Licence.

The successful applicant will be entitled to a wide range of benefits as provided by the Union Agreement.

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Vegetables. . .Easy

Seized with the idea of growing fresh vegetables at a fraction of today's prices? You can do it, so hold tight to the idea and follow through with it.

A garden plot of any size, a rented allotment, tubs and planters at least 12 inches deep and 12 inches across, any of these are suitable; and several hours of sunshine are needed for success.

If new to gardening, start with short-term vegetables since the results will reach the meal table in a shorter time than the more prosaic potatoes, carrots, parsnips, celery. And the quickly grown kinds will have the flavors and the nutrients you have the right to expect when brought from the garden to the table within minutes.

Start now with small-hearted leafy lettuce, white summer turnip for small root and edible tops, summer squash, green onions, and radishes to get interesting and nutritious results.

Summer squash are more quickly grown than is generally believed, for a few days after seeing the first female flowers, the young fruits are at their best for eating.

Seeds must be sown indoors, two to a three-inch container (any kind but it must have drainage at the bottom); let them germinate in a sunny window, then give light and air (but no night frosts) until at least two pairs of true leaves are expanded.

The weaker seedling in each container will be cut off at the surface to allow space for the stronger. Three or four plants of each chosen variety will be enough for four people to enjoy an abundance of these delicious vegetables.

Squash plants cannot go into the garden until night and day temperaures are settled to early summer warmth, perhaps the end of May.

Summer varieties to be cut while small for immediate use are dark green Zucchini and golden Summer Crookneck. The fruits are useable when grown to five inches in length. Sliced raw occasionally as salad vegetables in place of cucumbers (more difficult to grow), the mineral and vitamin content is most beneficial in summer. Both can be lightly steamed (three to five minutes) as a change.

If you can find Vegetable Spaghetti Squash, grow a couple of plants for an entirely new kind of vegetable by end of August. More about it later in the season.

Green onions, small, red radishes and a variety of small lettuce sown now will come quickly to useable sizes to repay the care you give. Sow two dozen seeds at a time, spaced an inch apart to lessen thinning. Sow again as the first ones germinate to keep the supply coming without waste.

Buttercrunch is a good, quick lettuce with a small buttery yellow heart but with every leaf crisp and green. No waste. Radishes must be quickly grown; small varieties are crisp and tender at the size of a dime about 10 days after germination.

If you buy a few started tomato plants now while available, look for early bush varieties — Fireball, Starfire, Salt Spring Sunrise, or Early Girl.

It may be too cool to plant them out. Transfer each plant to a five-inch container of soil. Water well when needed; but remember that water cools the soil, and tomatoes like warm soil.

Put the plants outdoors in sun for the days and indoor again by eight o'clock. They will grow well without fertilizer until the first tiny fruits are seen — early June with these varieties.

When your vegetables start producing, keep track of what you use. At today's prices you will be amazed at their value; and their flavours will delight you.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Porn Cuts Sex Crimes?

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Easy access to pornography decreases the incidence of most sex crimes, says a Danish criminologist who likes to compare pornography with bananas.

Prof. Berl Kotchinsky, of the University of Copenhagen's Institute of Criminal Science, noted recently in Pornography in Denmark — A Review that the wave of erotic pulp which swept the country in the late 1960s and early 1970s is receding.

"Pornography has found its very modest place, as something quite indifferent to most people, as entertainment and a spice of daily life to a minority," he wrote.

He stuck by his earlier controversial findings that freely available pornography seemed to bring a decrease in all sex crimes but rape.

The police of both Denmark and Sweden, where pornography has been equally easy to find, agreed that most sexual crimes are down. Rape was on the increase, but only by a fraction of the rising rates of such crimes as robbery and vandalism.

Kotchinsky compared the pornography wave with the long-awaited banana boats which arrived in Danish ports after the privations of Second World War occupation.

"Bananas hit the front pages. Everybody talked about bananas, ate bananas until they were satiated. Today a few people eat a lot of bananas, most people enjoy a banana once in a while, quite a few hardly ever."

In a detailed study of sex crimes over the high pornography years, Kotchinsky conceded that much of the fall might have been due to the fact that women in a time of sexual permissiveness and frankness simply do not bother to report minor offences.

They took a tolerant view of such things as exhibitionism, peeping toms (down 80 per cent) and "physical indecency" (down 58 per cent). Police attitudes became more lenient as well.

But both police and mothers remained horrified by child molestation, reporting and prosecuting with vigor.

This crime fell by 56 per cent in Copenhagen in 1965, the year in which the first hard-core pornography magazine hit Denmark, selling more than two million copies.

RAID NETS $300,000 IN FAKE CHEQUES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A green garbage bag half-filled with payroll cheques with a value of $300,000 was seized during a Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit raid on a city house.

A CLEU spokesman said Sunday that a large number of cheque stubs were also recovered indicating cheques from the alleged forgery operation are already in circulation. Most of the more than 500 cheques were made out in the amount of $600 and a number of them were drawn on a Vancouver law firm.

James Joseph Dupont, 39, and Joseph Dean Maday, 21, both of Vancouver were charged with possession of forgery equipment.

Disarmament Rally

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — About 4,500 demonstrators marched through central Brussels on Sunday calling for disarmament, police said. They shouted slogans against the neutron bomb and called for a reduction in military expenditure by Belgium, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Riding Change Interest Rises

The royal commission on electoral reform will end its hearings at the end of this month and chairman Judge Larry Eckhardt said today he will immediately begin an interim report on electoral boundaries.

Eckhardt said of the six terms of reference his commission is working under, the issue of boundaries is the most important.

He says he is operating under no official time frame, but will produce the sub-report as quickly as possible. He said the interim report itself will be a massive undertaking.

The judge said he couldn't say if it would be ready before the current legislative session ends, likely sometime in late June.

When Eckhardt is finished he will have held at least one hearing in every provincial constituency.

So far the reports he has received have been diverse, he said, although one trend he has noted is a desire to have the voting age lowered from 19 to 18 years in provincial elections.

A number of submissions have called for limiting elections to Canadian citizens. Now any British subject who has lived in Canada for 12 months, including six months in B.C., is eligible to vote in provincial elections.

Eckhardt also said participation in the hearings has improved 300 to 400 per cent both in attendance and quality of submissions since he left the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island. He said there seems to be less apathy outside the populated areas.

'Human Error' Blamed by Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Two types of transmissions in some Ford cars and trucks, which are said to slip accidentally into reverse from the park position, may have caused 104 more accidents and 30 more injuries than first reported.

However, Ford Motor Co. said its engineers have found no defects in the transmissions and that the problem may be "human error."

The new accident reports were contained in documents filed by Ford at the request of the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The agency is investigating claims that a defect put the automatic transmissions into reverse, causing the vehicles to run over or crush bystanders.

The latest Ford documents indicate that such transmission failures may have been responsible for at least 277 accidents, 100 injuries and nine deaths since 1966.

An unidentified Ford spokesman, quoted by The Detroit Free Press, said the company has no plans to recall the vehicles because its engineers have found no safety defects.

"We have established that some drivers are having difficulty," the spokesman said. "We suspect, but have not been able to confirm it yet, that some people are just not engaging the transmission properly in the park position. Human error, I think, is a prime consideration in this problem, but what I am telling you is not conclusive."

Ford's new report came in response to the safety agency's recent decision to expand its investigation of the possible transmission failures.

Last November the agency began investigating the C-6, a type of transmission used since 1966 on most full-sized Fords and Mercurys as well as on light trucks.

The agency broadened the investigation in March to include a second type of transmission, known as the FMX, after learning that three of the nine fatal accidents in its files involved vehicles with the FMX. The FMX has been used since 1969 on a variety of cars and light trucks.

Approximately 14 million C-6 and FMX transmissions have been built since 1970, but it is not known how many cars now on the road contain either transmission type.

Rare Crocs Get Help

ROME (AP) — A team led by a British wildlife biologist is saving from extinction a breed of crocodile that is the oldest species of the reptile in existence, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization says.

The animal is the gharial, unique to India and Nepal. Authorities said it has changed little in 70 million years.

Dr. H. R. Bustard says the gharial's main enemy is man, who has dammed rivers, raided nests for eggs and trapped the species for their skins, highly prized by leather crafters.

Korea Plane Electronics War Victim

By DANIEL GREENBERG
Washington Post

Zoom lenses and electronic listening devices in U.S. space satellites regularly collect extraordinarily detailed data from every part of the Soviet Union. And, though not happy about it, the Soviets nevertheless sit still for that long-range portraiture. Why, then, did they recently gun down a South Korean passenger plane that, by all accounts, innocently blundered over their territory near Murmansk?

A good place to look for the answer is in the plane's inadvertent involvement in the closest thing to war now going on between the two superpowers: deliberate border-area intrusions designed to provoke the other side into revealing its electronic capabilities. We do it to them and they do it to us and our friends, all in the course of a free-wheeling electronics competition that is one of the fastest growing and most secret aspects of the arms race.

Shooting incidents in the cat-and-mouse game are extremely rare, since the intruders — unlike the errant passenger plane — usually scoot away as soon as they have provoked the other side into activating, and thus revealing, its warning and defence systems. And the game goes on, spurred by the realization that an endless surge of new developments in electronics has become the centrepiece of military competition between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The value of being aware of the other side's electronic capabilities was devastatingly revealed in the opening phase of the 1973 Yom Kippur war, when electronic jamming devices aboard Israeli aircraft were unable to neutralize the radar guidance of the surface-to-air missile systems that the Soviets had supplied to the Arabs. Reports have it that the Israelis lost over 100 aircraft before a rush shipment of newly devised U.S. jamming equipment enabled them to counter the missiles' guidance radar.

With that experience, plus similar events in the Vietnam war, deeply impressed on the minds of military planners, the urgency of sniffing out the other side's electronics, while advancing one's own, has been accorded the highest priority — just short of the point of risking direct military contact.

This competition has led to the development of an endless series of measures, followed by countermeasures, that, in turn, lead to counter-counter-measures, and so on. Thus, knowledge of the frequency on which a defensive radar operates permits the offence to generate a jamming signal that can "blind" the radar or even feed it deliberately erroneous data as to location of the intruder. The jamming signal, however, is a giveaway that the defence can use for homing in on a missile — unless, of course, the radar guiding that missile is jammed by still another signal.

The necessity for split-second moves in the race between signal and counter-signal accounts for the fact that immensely complex, though miniaturized, computers are becoming standard equipment on combat aircaft. Between take-offs and landings, today's Red Barons are mainly passengers in an airborne electronic maze.

Though increasingly versatile electronic equipment is being developed to permit instantaneous scanning and jamming of the other side's signals, great value is still put on "collecting" those signals so they can be stored in a computer for swift recognition and response. Thus the value of provoking the other side into turning on its electronics so that eavesdropping recorders can carry them home for analysis.

As is usually the case with revolutionary technical developments of military value, the effects of the new electronics range far. With the United States generally regarded as well ahead of the Soviets in packing more electronic capability into less space, the defence department is pushing hard to restrict export of the underlying know-how. And to keep ahead, it is looking for ways to restore the close university-based science link that it lost during the Vietnam war. One ironic concern is that the civilian electronics market now so far exceeds the military's relatively small and highly specialized needs that the military services aren't getting the attention they could formerly command.

Developments in military electronics also affect military planning and budgets far beyond the immediate costs and capabilities of the gear for jamming and counter-jamming. A major element in the decision not to build the B1 was the expectation that our aging force of B52s, though far slower-moving than present-day interceptors, could be equipped with what amounts to electronic "armor" against Soviet defence forces. And though the cruise missile is too small to carry any significant amount of jamming gear, its survivability is based on plans for electronics-laden aircraft to "jam" it through Soviet defences.

Lawyers 'Hustle'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former chairman of the British Columbia Legal Services Commission says a ban on advertising by lawyers is hypocritical because lawyers advertise in many ways.

Don Jabour, who is fighting a ban on advertising by the Law Society of B.C., told the Consumers Association of Canada that "lawyers have to hustle business like anyone else."

"They belong to social clubs, service clubs and golf clubs at their firm's expense, where they get the opportunity to mix with the right people and make the right contacts."

He said lawyers also find it does not hurt to get your name in the newspaper through community work, public affairs and politics.

Since February, Jabour has been operating a law office in North Vancouver after advertising in city newspapers. The ads include a price list for such categories as simple wills, uncontested divorces and other routine legal matters.

He told the association that many lawyers charge very reasonable fees and that surveys in the United States and Canada indicate that only a small percentage of the population would think of going to a lawyer for common legal problems.

"As lawyers, we often see people come in with problems that are much worse because they did not seek legal advice sooner," he said.

MacDonald Fights for Vets

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald is reported to be fighting a tough battle in cabinet to get about $18 million in increased pensions for disabled veterans.

The increases, which at most would amount to about $300 a year for some would be the first increase in basic pensions for 109,695 veterans in five years.

Veterans sources say the minister is renewing a battle he lost in the fall and is meeting resistance from ministers who say government spending restraints will not permit the increase.

Hints of the battle in the cabinet have been dropped in both the Senate and the Commons.

Ray Perrault, government leader in the Senate last week told Senator Jack Marshall of Newfoundland, former Progressive Conservative veterans critic:

"I can say that there is great concern about the plight of these veterans, and the matter is under active study at this time.

"It may be that the minister (MacDonald) will wish to make a statement on his own behalf within the next while."

And when Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre), New Democrat veterans critic, suggested to applause in the Commons Friday that legislation raising the pension could be passed in one day, Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachan said:

"When the decision has been taken to give effect to the suggestion, I will be glad to consult with honorable members."

Sources said thet MacDonald has not yet won his fight, despite pressure from veterans organizations and in Parliament.

For months Marshall, Don Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich), Marshall's replacement as veterans' critic in the Commons, and Knowles have been pressing the government to act. They have raised the matter as many as three times a week.

They and veterans organizations seek two things:

—To have the disabled veterans' pensions brought back to the level of pay of a composite group of five categories of public servants. The government did that in 1973, but the pensions have fallen behind again.

To make it possible for the spouse of a person receiving a disability pension of 48 per cent or less to claim a widow's pension when he dies.

Veterans organizations and critics want the last one most. But it is expensive and nobody has any hope of getting it immediately.

At any rate MacDonald is reported fighting for the disabled pension first.

"He is taking them one at a time," one source said.

The cost of the disabled increase is said to be between $17 million and $18 million a year. The total cost of disabled and widows' pensions is $414 million annually.

All parties in the Commons voted in 1973 to permanently link disabled pensions to the level of the composite public service group.

That would have meant that the pension would go up every time the group got a pay increase. The government balked at this and said it would consider increases from time to time.

Meanwhile, the pension was indexed to the cost of living.

At present the 100-per-cent disability pension for a single veteran is $7,160 a year for a married veteran it is $8,950. The composite group salary is about $300-a-year more than that.

SKINNY DIPS START AT VANCOUVER YW

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nude bathing has arrived at the downtown YWCA, at least 80 years behind the tradition of the men's bastion up the street.

An announcement that women in the buff would be welcome in the pool between 11 a.m. and 2. p.m. went out only a day after a sign was posted April 30 reminding men that the YW would be off limits to them after 9 a.m.

When the noon hour fitness class was told they could cool off au naturel they cheered and clapped. When a few doffed their shorts and sneakers and jumped in, swimmers still in the pool from an earlier class took one look and tossed their bathing suits on the side of the pool.

"It just seemed like a neat idea," says aquatic director Marg Hewitt. "We want to create an environment where women feel good and comfortable about being women."

At the YMCA, men have always enjoyed their swimming unencumbered. In fact in the 1930s swimming suits were forbidden because the wool material clogged the drains. Although synthetic trunks are here now, the men still swim nude.

YWCA program director Barb Davis says that by July 1 even those males who have been allowed for the early-morning dip will be barred.

"There's no hard feelings about it," says Davis. "We had a meeting with the men to explain our position and there was pretty good understanding on their part.

About the only man still on the premises is the janitor, who declines to give his name.

"Well, it's not up to me, is it now? I'm just here to tidy up the place. For all I care they can wear galoshes in the pool."

Low Tar Cigs No Help?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A Harvard University study says smokers may be deceiving themselves if they think they are less liable to get smoking-related diseases by switching to low-tar and low-nicotine cigarettes.

The report says most smokers hold the smoke from low-tar cigarettes in their lungs longer in an apparent effort to extract more satisfaction.

The two-year study, which involved about 30 smokers, was conducted by Harvard's Tobacco and Health Research Program. It was funded by the National Institutes of Health and seven U.S. tobacco companies.

Dr. Ami Rubin, one of the researchers, said regular pack-a-day smokers consistently altered their inhalation patterns when given low-tar cigarettes.

Police Arrested

LONDON (Reuter) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has announced the arrest of a number of high-ranking policemen and prison officials, the official Radio Uganda reported Sunday. The broadcast, monitored in London, said Ali Tovili, former director of police training and operations, was among those arrested.

Top Debaters Here

The Canadian student debating championships will take place in Victoria starting May 12.

About 75 debaters will compete at Greater Victoria schools in the hopes of winning the top honors in the National Student Debating Seminar. It is being held here for the first time.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier and MP Allan McKinnon will open the debates during a ceremony at the University of Victoria at 10:30 a.m. May 12.

Former B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson will speak on this year's debating theme: Employment Opportunities for Young People.

A series of workshops featuring other politicians, business and media representatives will take place at UVic after the opening ceremonies. All activities will be in room 144 of the MacLaurin Building on campus.

Seven delegates from each province and the territories will speak on variations of the theme in secondary schools May 13 and 15. On May 14, a separate speaking competition will be held.

Awards will be presented by the provincial secretary's ministry during a closing dinner on May 16.

'More Than Meets Eye'

The season for St.Luke's Players ends next week with the production of another light comedy. More Than Meets the Eye is a play with an American background and it will run at St.Luke's Hall, Cedar Hill Cross Road, Wednesday through Saturday.

It is, briefly, the story of an author who makes his living writing children's stories under the name of "Grandma Letty". However, no one except his immediate family — not even his publisher — knows his true identity. The comic complications are triggered when the publisher arrives from New York to present Grandma Letty with a plaque as being the most outstanding "grandma" of the year.

In the hilarious situations that develop are cast members Ed Rowley, Kathy Reddington, Ron Way Sr., Victoria Downes, Dave Shearer, May Errington, Tod Daimon, Jennifer Haslam, Cheryl Howrigan and Joan Tremayne. The director is Mike Schneider. Curtain is at 8 p.m. and tickets will be available at the door or may be obtained in advance at the Hillside Mall ticket office.

Finlayson Warning Urged

A coroner's jury has recommended danger signs be erected to warn hikers of the potential hazard climbing the steep west face of Mount Finlayson.

The jury made the recommendation after hearing evidence into the death of 16-year-old David Andrew Wade of 1151 Princess.

The boy slipped and fell about 100 feet to his death on April 9 while climbing with his brother Anthony, 17, and three friends.

The jury ruled the death accidental.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre told the jury he had known of several cases of people "coming to grief on that mountain."

Insulation Loan Plan Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro says its loan plan for home insulation and multiple glazing has been extended to March 31, 1979.

Since the plan began April 1, 1977, until the end of January, 1,044 loans worth a total of $400,874 were made.

Under the plan, B.C. Hydro finances expenditures of up to $500 by its gas and electric customers to insulate ceilings, walls and floors to Hydro's and trade standards, and for replacement of single-glazed windows and patio doors with double or triple glazing.

Loans range from $50 to $500 and repayment is over a six to 24-month period, at 10-per-cent interest.

Caravaners to Promote B.C.

Five Victoria couples will hook up their travel trailers next Wednesday and leave Victoria on a cross-Canada tour.

"As we travel we plan to promote British Columbia and the Capt. Cook bicentennial celebrations," said Charlie Cameron, organizer of the calvacade. "We are fully equipped with brochures and maps."

They will travel to the farthest point on land on the Atlantic Coast — somewhere in Newfoundland. Then they will make a circuit tour of the United States, returning to Victoria in April or May next year.

The couples are members of the Dogwood Trailer Club of B.C., and four are past presidents.

They are closely connected with the B.C. Association of Travel Trailer Clubs. Its aims are to promote safety, fellowship and courtesy on the highways.

The men are all qualified recreational vehicle saftey instructors and have taught Capital Regional safety courses.

The group consists of Cameron and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Casson, Mr. and Mrs. Max Faryon, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Fox, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton McAlpine.

Okanagan Cities Approve CUPE Pact

KELOWNA (CP) — The Okanagan Mainline Municipal Labor Relations Association Sunday ratified contract agreements it reached last week with negotiators for the Canadian Union of Public Employees in Kamloops and Revelstoke.

The OMMLRA also voted to lift a lockout which has been in effect at eight other British Columbia Interior centres since April 19.

The lockout was prompted by the strike action taken March 2 by civic workers in Revelstoke.

The new one-year contracts with four per cent wage increases are retroactive to Jan. 1.

Most of the benefits were non-monetary and included improved sick leave and severance pay and an apprenticeship program to be developed with the assistance of the labor ministry.

The agreements did not contain job security or contracting-out clauses that had been the primary focus of controversy in the negotiations.

Siedo Tzogoeff, chief OMMLRA negotiator, said the absence of a contracting-out fortified the victory for the association.

He said Kamloops was not locked out, "but it was under strong pressure during negotiations that it would be."

EATON'S

Mother's Day May 14th

Mom — I love it when you get dressed up to go out with Dad. You look just beautiful. I want you to keep on looking beautiful, so I asked the lady at Eaton's what you would like to wear. She showed me this. It's exclusive to Eaton's, and they call it the big top. The lady said it was the latest thing in big tops. It's cotton, and has a mandarin collar and an elastic cuff. She said the newest way to wear it, is to push up the sleeves. You know . . . for a more sophisticated look. It's your choice — white, black, pink and blue.

The Crowd Cheered ...

NEW YORK — An international audience of more than 2,000 filled Carnegie Hall with bravos, standing ovations and floor stomping in a tribute Sunday to pianist Vladimir Horowitz on the 50th anniversary of his debut in the United States. Horowitz, 73, who has not played outside the U.S. since 1951, offered the first tickets for his international golden jubilee concert to foreign fans. Housewives, bankers, art dealers, and musicians from 11 countries used their savings, won quiz shows or took out loans to come to New York to hear Horowitz give the all-Chopin recital. Tour groups came from Japan, France and West Germany, while other Horowitz fans travelled from Canada, New Zealand, Brazil, Mexico, Britain, Spain, the Netherlands and Italy.

MAUI, Hawaii — Gordon Gibson Sr. has sold his 28-acre Kihei resort, the Maui Lu, but his successors have promised to retain the same character instilled by the colorful British Columbian who made a fortune in the forest industry. Gibson was vacationing in Maui in 1956 when he found the beautiful but arid Kihei area and, with trained eyes, identified a potential underground water source near a grove of unusually large trees. The property had changed hands 24 hours earlier, but Gibson, in his inimitable style, offered double the price and within a few minutes was shaking hands on the deal.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt may begin physical therapy in a week to 10 days, says his doctor, Larry Carey, chairman of the Ohio State University surgery department. Flynt, paralysed from the waist down, was shot March 6 outside a courthouse in Lawrenceville, Ga., where he was being tried on obscenity charges. A mistrial was declared after the shooting.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Betty Ford, wife of former president Gerald Ford, spent a relaxing weekend at her desert home following her discharge from Long Beach Naval Hospital, a family spokesman said. Bob Barrett said Sunday that Mrs. Ford's treatment for alcoholism and drug addiction was "absolutely successful." He said she will not require continuing treatment.

Pomp of Royalty Loved by Charles

NEW YORK — Prince Charles said in an interview published Sunday that he would change none of the pomp and ceremony surrounding the monarchy.

"I happen to enjoy it enormously," the 29-year-old heir to the throne told Time magazine, adding that it was an important aspect of the monarchy developed over a thousand years.

Prince Charles said he was not worried because some of his views might seem old-fashioned nor was he sufficiently ambitious or overconfident to have decided what mark he would like to make on history.

"I would only hope that it won't be a messy mark," he said.

Speaking on a number of topics the prince said:

—"I believe it is best to confine myself to three basic aims at the start: To show concern for people, to display interest in them as individuals, and to encourage them in a whole host of ways.

—"I would like to see further ethnological programs shown on television because I believe it is essential to make a concerted effort to reduce the barriers if prejudice and misunderstanding when it comes to racial matters. These exist primarily through ignorance . . ."

—"I happen to be one of those people who believe strongly in the idea of the Commonealth, and I will continue to do all I can to preserve and improve it as a living association in the world of the future."

Asked about his views on his own protest generation the prince said: "I think you are a bit-late with this question. I suspect my generation has now passed through its anti-establishment and protest phase and is becoming more established every day. You forget how old I am."

Time also published an interview granted by an intimate of the Queen and three generations of the Royal Family on condition that his name be withheld.

The interviewee said: "Charles won't marry for some time . . . it's certainly not going to be to any of the girls mentioned in the press so far.

"Charles knows the sort of girl he wants to marry, but I would not think he's sure he's actually met the one. He does not want anyone who is likely to accept him very readily. If she did, it would be for the wrong reason, wanting to be Queen."

He said Jane Wellesley, daughter of the Duke of Wellington, would have been right.

But she was so hounded by the media after going out with the prince that at first she said she never wanted to see him again and it was months before she relented.

"Charles has learned his lesson," the interviewee added. "He's never again going to expose the girl he hopes to win over to the press."

It Was a Bad Day

SEATTLE — There are days when nothing goes right. Not only did Martin Luther lose the boat he lived on when it exploded and burned, but the U.S. Coast Guard cited him for polluting Lake Washington.

The explosion Friday evening came shortly after Luther, 34, and a friend fuelled the 60-foot wooden vessel Patricia.

What's this? A lake right in the middle of downtown Victoria, complete with birdlife?

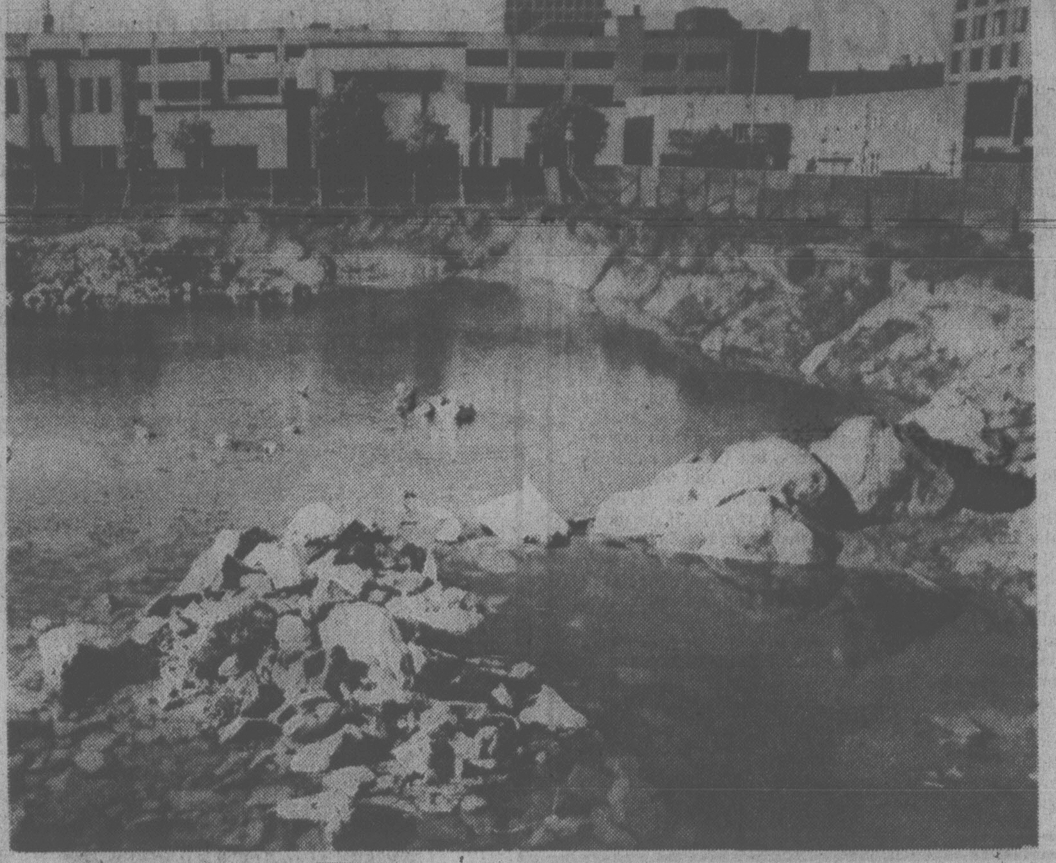
Almost four years ago developers Rotherham Holdings Ltd. obtained a building permit for a large hotel-apartment-retail development on the site, with a maximum height of 14 stories and total floor space of more than 220,000 square feet. But apart from some sporadic excavation, nothing happened.

Then, about six months ago, the firm told the city that due to the depressed state of the market it would build only a smaller first phase on the Blanshard end of the site. Still there's no sign of construction starting, but if anyone cares it's certainly not the basking seagulls.



LEVESQUE SIMILAR TO W.A.C. - FORSEY

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Senator Eugene Forsey says Quebec Premier Rene Levesque ranks with two former Canadian premiers who he said put the interests of their own provinces above national unity.

In a speech during the weekend to about 120 United Empire Loyalists, Forsey compared Levesque with W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland.

Forsey, a recognized expert on constitutional matters, also said Levesque is one of many personalities in Canadian history who has tried to destroy a responsible system of cabinet-style government and replace it with a series of roadblocks.

Forsey said some Canadians approach the restructuring of the constitution with perilous frivolity and he condemned those who want to restructure the country along United States constitutional lines.

He said changing the Senate into an elected upper house would "paralyze the body politic of Canada."

"It's time for people like us, who believe in the basic principles of the constitution, to establish ourselves against these destructive influences."

Berton Vows Jail On Language Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Author Pierre Berton pledged Saturday to go to jail if necessary to fight Quebec's French language charter, known as Bill 101.

Calling the language legislation "the road of racism and authoritarianism," Berton told the annual meeting of the Writers Union of Canada that he would carry an English sign in Quebec, breaking the law there.

"I will carry a poster personally to a book store in Quebec and hammer it up. I'll say: 'Carry me to jail.' At least we'll get some publicity out of it," he said.

Posting the sign would be illegal under Bill 101 which requires that all advertising be in French only, even in English book stores, Berton said.

He urged authors, publishers and book-sellers to join in a campaign of open defiance and ridicule of the law.

Such a campaign may be compared with Martin Luther King's civil disobedience in the United States, "breaking a foolish law to show that the law is an ass," Berton added.

The importation of unsold copies of U.S. editions of Canadian books, known as remaindering, also was discussed.

94th YEAR, No. 253 ★ ★ ★

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, MONDAY, MAY 8, 1978

15 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

And in Britain Too You Say . . .a Pity

LONDON (AP) — The traditional roast beef dinners of Olde England are being replaced by convenience foods and this nation of tea drinkers is switching to coffee.

These are some of the findings of a government report published today by the Central Statistical Office, surveying 40 years of British eating habits.

The British are consuming 16 per cent less beef, less bread and butter and fewer potatoes, the report said:

There has been a five-fold increase in the amount of chicken being eaten, along with more pork, eggs, milk, cheese and rice. Frozen foods are steadily replacing fresh foods.

People are drinking 12 per cent less tea and 500 per cent more coffee than before the Second World War.

The British love of beer remains about the same — 125 litres per head each year — while hard liquor and wine consumption has trebled over the past four decades.

The average British family spends $30.30 (U.S.) a week on food, or 19 per cent of household expenditures.

CABBIE ROBBED

Three persons are being held by Colwood RCMP while they investigate an early morning robbery in which a taxi driver was thrown over a bank at Colwood.

Police said the driver, who they won't identify at this time, picked up a man and two women between 1:30 and 2:30 a.m. in downtown Victoria and drove them to Colwood where he was assaulted, robbed and pushed down a bank.

The trio fled on foot.

No charges had been laid by mid-morning.

TANKER WASHES ASHORE

U.K.'s Beaches Drenched in Oil As Winds Shift

Times News Services

The oil drifted onto eight kilometres of coast between the villages of Corton and Hopton-on-Sea.

The 18,879-ton tanker Eleni V was cut in two Saturday when it collided with the French ore carrier Roseline in a North Sea fog six miles off the English coast. No crew member of either vessel was injured.

The tanker's stern section, containing most of its 5.7 million-gallon cargo, was being towed to Rotterdam, the Netherlands. The bow, beached four miles from the fishing port of Great Yarmouth, has leaked an estimated 294,000 gallons of oil.

An overnight wind shift began washing oil ashore before tugs could approach to train a detergent spray on it, but the tugs today were spraying the oil still at sea. A giant mechanical shovel was building a sand rampart at Corton to keep additional oil off the beach.

A department of trade official said divers would check the hull of the Eleni V's bow section to see if the oil left aboard could be pumped into another tanker.

The spill came less than two months after the supertanker Amoco Cadiz ran aground off northwest France, broke up and spread 64.7 million gallons of oil on the Brittany beaches in the world's worst oil spill.

Meanwhile, in Geneva after slogging through a month of meetings, Canadian negotiators are becoming pessimistic about the adoption of adequate measures to prevent pollution of the world's oceans.

They are extremely frustrated at their difficulties in getting through not only to some of the lesser-developed countries which are suspicious about the motives of the big maritime powers, but at the stiff attitude of many of those major powers themselves.

Earlier enthusiasm for a tougher regime flowed with the oil spilling from the supertanker Amoco Cadiz which went aground off the Britanny coast in March. But this enthusiasm seems to have faded as special interests float to the surface.

Among the most prickly and adamant delegations are Britain, the U.S.S.R., Cuba and Greece. Norway and even France, chief victim of the Amoco Cadiz, have balked at new international anti-pollution standards proposed by the U.S. and Canada among others. The French made a proposal early in the conference but have been notably silent lately.

Some of these countries, France, Britain and Norway among them, have been quick to declare or to threaten unilateral action to pro-

Stiff Land Rules Eyed In Saanich

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A comprehensive program for protecting recreation and conservation lands in Saanich, through purchase, tough development controls, financial incentives, public information and other measures, has been recommended by the municipality's Staff Environment Group.

On the basis of a study conducted last summer, which provided detailed information on about 400 parcels of land in rural Saanich, the group concludes that action is needed now if Saanich is to protect its natural heritage and ensure for present and future residents "a quality of life much higher than that offered in most of urban North America."

And the advisory group — which consists of planning and engineering department officials — warns that such a program will require not only diligence and commitment but the "systematic allotment of a relatively large amount of capital."

Among the specific recommendations in the report, which will be discussed by Saanich council's environment committee tonight, are:

— A long-term (10 to 25 years) program of land acquisition, which would employ a wide range of acquisition methods including leasing with options to buy, puchase and lease back to owner and purchase granting lifetime estate to the original owner.

— Development restrictions through zoning and subdivision regulations, including establishment of a minimum 20-acre lot size in several areas of the municipality.

— Creation of a new category of municipal park, entitled "conservation park" or "nature reserve," where public access could be restricted "during critical periods for vegetation or wildlife, or when an unacceptable level of environmental degradation occurs."

— A public information program, designed to encourage gifts of land or sale of easements to the municipality.

Claiming that the rewards will be worth the cost and effort involved, the Staff Environment Group adds: "The consequences of inaction would be irreversible, and the loss irreplaceable."

NEARLY $9M TAX MONEY BOOTED

TORONTO (CP) — Sloppy management by officials of Sport Canada and many amatueur sport and recreation associations cost taxpayers nearly $9 million over five years, according to the Globe and Mail.

A back audit of the fitness and amateur sport branch revealed that at least 50 amateur organizations owed the federal goverment agency about $8,830,000 for projects between 1972 and 1976 and the agency wrote off at least $8 million of the debt rather than force many groups into bankruptcy, the paper reports.

Benzene Hazard Charged

KITIMAT (CP) — The union representing workers at Alcan Smelters and Chemicals Ltd. is demanding the removal of a supervisor for "human experimentation" by exposing workers to what it says are unsafe concentrations of benzene.

In meetings with Alcan in February, the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers (CASAW) said the chemistry laboratory supervisor failed to monitor benzene levels and required an analyst with severe symptoms of benzene poisoning to continue working with the chemical.

Other workers, says a CASAW spokesman, have been exposed to long-term low-level concentrations of benzene, since identified as medically dangerous.

A recent United States government literature review conclusively linked benzene to leukemia, chromosome disorders and malignant blood diseases, forcing the adoption of an emergency temporary standard of one part per million (ppm). Benzene was banned last week as a consumer product in the U.S.

A Farewell From Moro

Times News Services

ROME — Police sealed off all roads into and out of Genoa today in their search for the Red Brigades kidnappers of Aldo Moro, who told his wife in a goodbye letter: "They are going to kill me shortly."

Police said 26 arrests made during the weekend brought them no closer to finding the former premier, kidnapped March 16 by the Brigades and sentenced to death "by a people's court" April 15.

Italy's largest newspaper reported today the Red Brigades gang has compiled two long lists of potential victims for their terrorist attacks, complete with photographs and addresses.

Milan's Corriere della Sera said a police raid April 18 on a Rome apartment used by the gang as the hideout for one of their masterminds had uncovered the two lists.

Meanwhile, terrorists shot and wounded a doctor in the legs in Milan today. The Red Brigades did not immediately claim responsibility for the attack on Dr. Diego Fava, 52, but it was the fourth such attack in five days and the Red Brigades claimed responsibility for the other three attacks.

U.S.$ Buoyed By OPEC

Times New Services

The United States dollar opened higher in Europe today, apparently buoyed by the oil cartel's decision to retain the dollar as its currency.

The price of gold opened lower in London at $171.95 U.S. an ounce, down from Friday's close of $172.95.

The 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a meeting in Saudi Arabia rejected Iraq's demand to shift from the dollar because of the decline of the U.S. currency.

Questions On Noose Ruled Out

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Ron Basford Sunday rejected any suggestion that there should be a referendum on the subject of capital punishment in this country, as contrary to the Canadian parliamentary system.

"You elect people to office for their judgment, for their decision-making, and I'm not sure why capital punishment is in any different category than abortion or a whole list of subjects," he said on the CTV Question Period show.

He said that his omnibus bills containing amendments to the Criminal Code on pornography, rape, prostitution and various other aspects of crime covered in the code would go before a meeting of the attorneys general late in June or early July.

NEWS BRIEFS

Rafters Missing

SQUAMISH (CP) — A search was to resume today for two teen-aged girls missing since Friday when a rubber raft overturned on the Mamquam River about nine kilometres upriver from the this community 60 kilometres north of Vancouver. An RCMP spokesman said Sunday a male teen-ager who was also on the raft made it to shore and notified police.

Absenteeism Cut

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer said Saturday that about 1.5 million student days have been saved during the 1977-78 school year because of efforts by school staff in British Columbia to combat absenteeism.

Tourists Pitch In

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — Thousands of tourists made their own beds and hefted their own baggage again today as a hotel strike along Spain's southern sun coast went into its third day with workers accusing management of a lockout.

Lava Still Pours

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — Mount Etna, Europe's highest volcano, kept pouring lava from its main crater for the ninth day today. Experts said the burning lava was not threatening arable land or inhabited villages on the slopes of the volcano.

$79 Fare Wanted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans International Airlines, the world's largest charter air carrier, asked the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board today for approval to offer a $79 scheduled air fare on 10 flights this summer between New York and Los Angeles.

Slayings Admitted

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz pleaded guilty today to all six "Son of Sam" killings that terrorized the city in a year-long murder rampage.

Socreds See Victory in Morals Crusade

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wildly cheering Social Credit party members predicted Sunday their new leader, Lorne Reznowski, will set the country on fire preaching economic reform and Christian morals.

"On to victory, on to victory," party members shouted in French and English when it was announced he had defeated his only opponent, Martin Hattersley, by 356 to 115.

Lex Miller, an Alberta delegate who faces Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark in the next federal election in Yellowhead riding, said he was surprised but pleased with Reznowski's victory over Hattersley.

Like many of the delegates, Miller said he believes Reznowski is the man to strengthen party support beyond the borders of Quebec. The party's eight MPs all come from Quebec and none has been elected from outside the province since 1965.

"Reznowski is a good Christian man," said one elderly French-speaking woman with a Reznowski photograph pinned next to the cross on her dress. "We Qubecers can live with him."

The 49-year-old University of Manitoba English professor had campaigned largely on promising to rid the country of homosexuals, abortionists, euthanasia, sterilization and corrupt bankers.

The government of Prime Minister Trudeau was "slaughtering the innocents," spreading degeneracy and enslaving the public to high finance by allowing interest to be charged on loans, said the father of five.

"It's Social Credit or slavery."

Much of his campaign and victory speeches also criticized the news media for allegedly laughing at and spreading lies about the party.

About half of the delegates at the two-day convention came from Quebec and at the urging of the MPs, supported Reznowski, who has never been elected to public office. He ran in the Manitoba riding of Provencher in the 1968 federal election but placed last on a slate of four.

He will run in the Winnipeg riding of St. Boniface in the next election. Since 1968 the constituency has been represented by Revenue Minister Joe Guay, who has since been appointed to the Senate.

Former B.C. cabinet minister Phil Gaglardi bowed out of the leadership race when his supporters were unable to fulfil his request for a plane and $1 million to use campaigning.

Ride a Whale? 'Not Me,' Says Trainer

SCHRAGE
. . . Haida has his respect

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Sealand killer whale trainer Cees Schrage wouldn't be caught dead climbing into the same pool as Haida.

"Not me," he says. "I wouldn't take the risk."

He thinks people who do are courting trouble.

As far as Schrage is concerned, whale's backs are not for riding, nor their pools for swimming, at least by humans.

"If I want to ride I'll get on a horse," he says. "But to do that with a whale . . . frankly I'd be too scared."

He says 13-year-old Haida, like all killer whales, is temperamental and moody, perhaps even more so because he's a male.

He wouldn't venture into the pool with the whale even though he's worked with Haida for several years and there's an obvious close bond between the two.

"The problem is he likes company. If I went in he probably wouldn't let me out. And who would I be to argue. He weighs 4½ tons; I weigh 200 pounds. He can stay underwater for 15 to 20 minutes. But what he doesn't understand is we humans can't."

Schrage (the name's pronounced schraw-haw) says he thinks Haida likes him most of the time, but when the whale doesn't he lets him know by spitting at him or trying to grab Schrage by the leg and give him a nip with his razor-sharp teeth.

Schrage says he used to do a kissing act with Haida.

One day Haida performed the trick sloppily and Schrage made him do it again. The whale didn't want to but Schrage insisted and knelt by the pool encouraging him. Haida circled and then exploded out of the water hitting Schrage on the face, sending him sprawling.

Schrage says he picked himself up and decided to try once more. He went to the pool edge and gave the cue again for kissing.

This time Haida came out with his mouth wide open. Schrage jumped away and as he did so, he says, he could hear the snap of the whale's jaws clamping shut.

"I never bothered with the trick again . . . and never will," he says.

Still Schrage doesn't believe killer whales are inherently dangerous to humans and seldom mean harm.

Boat Capsizes, Woman Drowns in Cowichan

A young woman drowned in the Cowichan River Sunday afternoon when an inflatable boat in which she was rafting overturned, trapping her under a log.

Duncan RCMP said Deborah Anne Carson, 21, of Duncan, was thrown into the river with her husband Wayne, 38, and a neighbor, Richard Agitheitkoetter, 16, when the raft was caught in strong current near a jam of debris in four to five feet of water.

All were wearing lifejackets, but the woman apparently failed to surface from the spill because her legs were caught between a submerged log and other debris.

Carson and the 16-year-old went to her assistance immediately when they saw through the clear water that she was pinned. Police said they were not successful until Carson went underwater and forced the log away with his feet.

The trio had ridden the three-man inflatable about 1½ miles downstream to a point off Riverbottom Road near a bible camp when they approached the obstruction and swift water.

The mishap was the second in two days in B.C. involving rubber rafts.

A search was to resume today for two teen-aged girls missing since Friday when a rubber raft overturned on the Mamquam River about nine kilometres upriver from Squamish, 60 kilometres north of Vancouver.

An RCMP spokesman said Sunday a male teen-ager who was also on the raft made it to shore and notified police. The teen-agers, from Vancouver, had been picnicking in the area, the spokesman said.

Names were withheld by police.

SOME CLOUD THEN SUN

Calm, bright weather may suffer a minor setback as clouds move over coastal B.C. tonight and Tuesday morning, but a return to sunshine is forecast for most of the week.

The five-day outlook is for clear sky with short overcast.

Two days of warm sunshine at the weekend equalled the year's top temperature for this area, 18 degrees at Patricia Bay weather office both Saturday and Sunday. At Gonzales obervatory the thermometer rose to 17 degrees Sunday, up one from Saturday.

Speedway Sponsor Ban 'Disciminatory'

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. government policy prohibiting breweries from sponsoring motorsport events is unrealistic and discriminatory, the manager of Western Speedway said today.

Tony Mortel said it doesn't make sense to penalize car racing by denying the sport such sponsorship when breweries are allowed to support other athletic endeavors, like baseball.

He said drinking alcohol is prohibited at Western Speedway, off Millstream Road, and those involved in the sport have strict policies about the participants and their use of alochol or drugs while driving.

Mortel said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, responsible for the liquor administration branch, is "way off base on this one.

"He's picking on the wrong group of people."

Until this year, Carling O'Keefe had been the speedway's prime sponsor but had been reducing its involvement over the past few years. As a result, Mortel worked out a deal last winter with Labatt's to transfer sponsorship.

However, the government then informed Labatts that there was to be no further connection between alcohol and auto racing.

The speedway has negotiated a deal with Gray Beverage Co., local distributors of Pepsi-Cola, to provide some money and a large number of Victoria businesses have also rallied to Speedway's cause.

MORTEL

MAIR

Vic Woodland, general manager of the liquor control and licensing branch, said today the policy stems from a review of the government's advertising, marketing and promotional code about 1½ years ago.

The policy backs up the attorney-general's campaign to rid the highways of drinking drivers, he said.

"Drinking and driving, wheels and alcohol, this is what our big problem is," Woodland said.

The idea is to eliminate any association between driving and alcoholic beverages, he said. There is also a policy of disallowing breweries to sponsor midget or junior teams of any kind.

Woodland said it is all part of a national trend toward cracking down on drinking and driving. He said a national advertising, marketing and promotional code is being worked on which will toughen up the policies in this area.

Woodland said there is a growing national feeling that breweries should be prohibited from advertising completely.

Mortel said the government's policy is hypocritical and unrealisitic.

He said the government cracks down on motorsports while at the same time allowing beer parlors to have huge parking lots for the beer drinkers to park their cars.

"For a free enterprise government, they are certainly very selective about choosing who is free," Mortel said.

He said alcohol is sold at Sandown race track and there is no reason to believe that horse race fans are any more responsible than those who fancy car racing.

He said he wrote a letter to Mair in March and didn't get a reply until he phoned the minister's office "and raised hell."

He then replied to Mair's letter April 3 countering the minister's statements and has not yet had a reply.

He said he is considering taking some form of legal action but won't consult Western Speedway's lawyer until after he hears from Mair.

FESTIVAL WINDUP SET

The concert, one of the most versatile presented in recent years, begins and ends with ensemble performances.

The St. Patrick's School speech choir will open with two pieces, and the evening will close with the Metropolitan United Church Choir directed by Don Kyle.

In between there will be dance items: Kim and Nicole Martin's My One and Only Highland Fling, and from ballet classes, a Valse choreographed by Maureen Eastick.

Award-winning violinists David Lowe, Alan Horgan (who won the prestigious Congress of Strings Scholarship), and Mark Neumann who will represent Victoria at the Provincial Festival, will be heard in solos. Piano representatives at the Provincial, Miranda Wong and Bob Tweten, will play Chopin and Bartok respectively, and also from piano classes there will be Noni Urquhart, Marlis Neumann, Melinda Cownden, and Arne Sahlen (City Medallion winner).

Singers Carmen Gozdan and Anne Bennett (Rose Bowl and Provincial representative) are taking part and cellist Marlene Tureski will play a portion of the beautiful Saint Saens Cello Concerto with orchestral part performed at the piano by Anne Crose.

Karen Hough playing the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata for Horn and Piano with Heather Pidcock, and Janet Underhill accompanied by Wendy Stofer playing two movements of a Vivaldi Concerto for Bassoon, are also chosen for the Provincial Festival. Wind players who received enthusiastic praise from adjudcator Martin Boundy — Isabel Ramsay and Philip Thompson — will be heard in a Telemann Sonata for two flutes.

Target: Vice-Principals

Greater Victoria school superintendent Allan Stables has recommended vice-principals be sent back to the teaching ranks after a maximum of seven years if they fail to win promotion to principal.

In a special report to the school board, Stable suggests an organizational policy change that would weed out "career vice-principals," some who have been in their jobs 20 years.

The position should be regarded as training for principalship, not a career in itself, Stables says in a paper scheduled for discussion at the board's June 26 meeting.

The change would eliminate ineffective administrators and bring new blood into the system by providing opportunities for ambitious young people.

A new set of criteria would be established to judge vice-principals on a yearly basis, with a major evaluation after five years. If candidates are judged unsatisfactory for jobs as principals, they would return to the classroom as teachers.

Two year extensions would be granted under special circumstances, Stables says in his report.

Greater Victoria Teachers Association president Syd Langhelt said today such a change could have positive effects for younger ambitious teachers, particularly women, who want to move into the administrative ranks.

Upward mobility at present is hampered by declining enrolment, which creates a "real bottleneck of administrators," he said. "They get locked into a position and remain static."

He also welcomed the idea of administrators getting back to their roots as teachers, but said some protection must be arranged for the incumbents who have been vice-principals as long as 20 years.

Stables recommends one year notice be given to all vice-principals before the change takes place.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Can you tell me if a regulation size basketball hoop is large enough so that two basketballs can fit through side by side.? M.M.

A. No. The inside diameter of a basketball basket is 18 inches while the circumference of a basketball is between 29½ and 30 inches.

Q. The old Christmas Day came on Jan. 6. Why did they change it to Dec. 25? When did New Year's Day come after Jan. 6? A.F.S.

A. Bishop Liberius of Rome ordered people to celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25 in A.D. 354. Christians of Egypt celebrated Christmas on Jan. 6 and many members of the Eastern Orthodox Church still do. New Year's Day became Jan. 1 when the Gregorian calendar was introduced. The Julian calendar places the first day of the year 13 days later on Jan. 14.

Dial 911 for Emergency?

An emergency dialling system that would allow residents in the four core municipalities to dial 911 when they need police, fire or medical help will be considered by the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee at a meeting Tuesday.

The dialling system was rejected by the committee in 1975 because it was too expensive.

Saanich's fire and emergency committee asked the intermunicipal body to take another look at the matter because of a letter from area resident Marilyn Wilkins.

She complained that in times of emergency seven-digit numbers are too long and hard to remember.

To the Music Master, a Fond Farewell

LAZLO GATI, THE MUSIC master, will not be coming up to Campbell River any more, and even such a drastically non-musical person as I must feel that we have lost a friend.

For Gati's popularity with local concert audiences was nothing less than fantastic. He held us in his hand.

Twice a season or thereabouts, Gati would bring the Victoria Symphony Orchestra — or as much of it as he could stuff, with instruments, into a couple of buses — north to play for us. At first, the concerts were held in the local junior high school. When that burned down we worried that lack of an adequate stage might throw a crimp into Gati's visitations.

But with cheerful adaptability, the maestro made do with the stage-plus-makeshift-extension provided by our Van Isle Theatre.

Gati gave us more than good music. We were a mixed audience; enthusiastic, but in many cases ignorant of the conventions that attend the presentation of symphonic selections. We clapped in all the wrong places. Gently and always with the kindest good humor, Gati took us in hand.

In layman's language, he unravelled the music for us. He deepened our appreciation and understanding of each movement by telling us what it was about. Without a trace of condescension, Lazlo Gati contributed to our musical education.

We liked him. I venture to think that he liked conducting for us. We repaid his efforts with full-house audiences, and with standing ovations.

Good luck to him in his new endeavor . . . but let the good man know that we up here will miss him.

As a puzzled ex-Victorian, I find myself hard-pressed to follow Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's reasoning when he urges another major shopping centre on a downtown which is obviously not straining its present facilities.

I suggest that any outfit so unwise as to launch yet another downtown department store, or shopping complex, would be flying directly in the face of Victoria's over-all development pattern. And as such, its sponsors would be courting disaster.

Increasingly, downtown is going to be tourist country — and all the more so when the city finds the sense and the wherewithal to build that needed but long-delayed convention centre.

For its salvation, downtown must look more to the visitor and less to the resident. Why, after all, in a city of extensive and spacious suburbs, should the year-round resident discommode himself my shopping to any great extent downtown?

He's got it all there in his local shopping centre, plus welcome freedom from traffic congestion. This to the extent that anyone planning another department store for Greater Victoria would, as a matter of basic business savvy, choose an open, suburban location.

The future of downtown Victoria isn't hard to predict. As a matter of fact, it can be previewed in Vancouver's Georgia-Granville-Robson area.

What you will find there, predominantly, is the smart specialty shop, tourist-oriented, and a variety of restaurants, all of which to the casual eye appear to be flourishing.

For Bawlf, a precept to ponder: Left to the residents, downtown will continue its downhill course. If you want to perk it up, go after those tourists.

We are now out of the "R" months, but in this cold spring, the oysters are still far from spawning. So today we will tap an oyster bed down the line for a dozen or so of its highly-superior bivalves. These will be dredged in flour, then tumbled with bread-morsels in a smoking-hot pan, and fried in butter.

A brisk peppering, a final touch of Worcester sauce, and they will be ready for the table

Pepper-pan oysters . . . Can any man eat better?

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Advancing oil issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher today in active mid-afternoon trading.

Trading was halted about 1 p.m. in shares of Cara Operations Ltd. after the stock climbed 2⅛ to a new high of $16 a share on the sale of 2,200 shares.

Hambro Canada Ltd. has said it was considering a merger between Foodex, which last traded at $7¼ a share, and a wholly-owned subsidiary. Hambro holds a 58-per-cent interest in the company.

Canadian Vickers was halted pending the results of negotiations between its parent company and an unidentified company for the sale of its 72-per-cent interest. Canadian Vickers last traded at $30¾ a share.

Canadian International Power Co. Ltd. Class A shares were up six cents to $2.00 a share following its opening resumption after the company announced its third distribution of assets. Class B last traded at $22⅛ a share.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B gained 2 to $47, Consumers Distributing 1¼ to $12, Westburne International 1¼ to $23¼, Home Oil A 1 to $41¾ and Canadian Occidental Petroleum 1 to $18½.

New York

Traders also seemed to respond favorably to news that Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' oil ministers had adjourned a weekend meeting without making any plans to increase prices.

Saudi Arabia's Ahmed Zaki Yamani was quoted as saying he didn't expect any oil price increase through the rest of 1978.

Continental Oil picked up 1 to $30 and Exxon rose ¾ to $49⅜. Both companies are taking part in the search for oil and gas in the Atlantic Ocean off New Jersey.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 310,300 shares, compared with 350,600 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

Alcan climbed ⅜ to $31½, Brunswick Mining and Smelting 15 cents to $3.35, Inco A ¼ to $18⅝, Bell Canada ⅜ to $56¼ and Kaiser Resources ¼ to $14½. Trans-Canada Pipelines dipped ⅛ to $14⅝, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅛ to $29⅛ and FCA International five cents to $2.40.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices slipped fractionally near the close of light trading today on the London stock market.

The Financial Times index was down 0.7 to 480.8 an hour before the close.

Canadian issues advanced.

FIERY END to manufacturing a cathode ray tube is made by this glassblower at the Raytheon Company in Quincy, Mass. He is heat-sealing the end of the 23-inch tube, which is being manufactured for the company's air traffic control systems division. The tubes — similar to those in television sets — provide air controllers with such information as the altitude, speed and identity of aircraft.
